RAIL SHARES MEET BRISK DEMAND IN LATE TRADE

Official Summary of Interstate Commerce Commission's Consolidation Plan Probably Accelerates Inquiry for Issues.

SHARP RALLY IN GENERAL LIST

Heavy Week-End Covering by "Bear" Traders Brings About Advances of 1 to 10 Points—All Not Held.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Heavy week-end covering by "bear" traders brought about a sharp rally of 1 to 10 points in today's brief session of the market, although the gains were not fully maintained. The recovery embraced practically all groups of stocks, with a brisk demand for the railroad shares featuring the late trading.

Publication of the official summary of the Interstate Commerce Commission's revised consolidation plan probably accelerated the late demand for the railroad shares, although many bankers and railroad executives believe that the final grouping of the country's railroads will differ widely from the plan proposed. Union Pacific led the rally with a gain of 5 points, while Atlantic Coast Line, Chesapeake & Ohio, Southern Railway, Wabash, Norfolk & Western and New York Central all closed with net advances of 2 points or more.

Tin Plate Production Increase.

One of the most interesting developments of the day's news was the announcement of an increase from 60 to 80 per cent in tin plate production this week. Otherwise, the day's business news was rather colorless in character.

Today's rally was regarded as a natural correction of a temporarily over-sold market condition. Columbia Carbon, which broke 21 points yesterday, rallied 10 today. Auburn Auto advanced 8 points, Brooklyn Union Gas 7, and Safeway Stores 5½. U. S. Steel common showed a net gain of 1 point at 262 after having crossed 264, and International Combustion preferred lost all but 1¾ points of its extreme gain of 7½. Montgomery-Ward, which was the target of bear attacks yesterday, showed a net gain of 2¼.

German Mark Higher.

Establishment of a new high level for the year by German marks was the main development of importance in the foreign exchange market. Most of the other leading European currencies lost ground, sterling cables being quoted a shade lower at $4.88 3-16.

Stock prices, with other tables and market news, will be found on Pages 10A, 11A, and 12A.

FARMERS' GRAIN CORPORATION TO PAY CENT ABOVE MARKET

Wheat Immediately Goes to 4 Cents Above Yesterday's Close at Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—A measure of confidence was restored to the grain market today by the announcement of the Farmers' National Grain Corporation that it immediately would enter the market with a bid above current cash prices, and wheat opened at a maximum gain of 4 cents above yesterday's close.

$406,850,000 COTTON LOSS

Association Officer of Texas Bases Estimate on Present Price.

By the Associated Press.

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 21.—W. B. Mary, secretary-treasurer of the Farmers' Marketing Association here, issued a statement yesterday estimating that farmers of Texas would lose $406,850,000 on this year's cotton crop if marketed at the average price of 17 cents.

He said he based his figures on the growing costs of farmers in Texas and Nueces County. These figures, he said, showed an average loss of $103 a bale between cost of production and sale price of the cotton, in Texas, and an average loss of $40 a bale for the entire South.

BOY RIDES 7 MILES ON TAIL OF PLANE; LEAPS AS IT LANDS

Was Helping Hold Machine and Did Not Hear Command to Let Go.

By the Associated Press.

CAMDEN, N. J., Dec. 21.—A 17-year-old farmer boy had a terrifying seven-mile ride from the tail of an airplane yesterday.

The lad, William Coumbe, with other farm hands, was asked by Don Darby, a Curtiss-Wright flying pilot, to hold down the tail of his machine while he warmed up the engine. William readily assented.

When the motor was ready Darby signaled to the volunteers to let go. Coumbe did not hear the warning and soon found himself clinging to the tail unit.

Unaware of his passenger, Darby flew his craft for the seven miles between Moorestown and Camden at an altitude of 1500 feet. As the plane leveled to make the landing the boy jumped and rolled over several times. He was taken to a hospital, where it was said he suffered only a shaking up.

IMPORTER IN SAN FRANCISCO PHONES MOTHER ON LEVIATHAN

Record for Long Distance Call to Ship at Sea Is Thus Established.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 21.—A new long distance record for a telephone conversation with a ship at sea was established when Isadore Rosenberg, New York importer, stopping here, talked with his mother and brother on board the liner Leviathan in mid-Atlantic yesterday.

Rosenberg said the three-minute conversation was as distinct as a local call. Pacific Telephone and Telegraph officials said the call was the longest since the commercial service between ship and shore was inaugurated two weeks ago.

FIVE-DAY WEEK ADOPTED BY SAN FRANCISCO BUILDERS

Shorter Working Hours Effective Jan. 1 to Relieve Unemployment.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 21.—Inauguration of a five-day week for San Francisco building trade workers, effective Jan. 1, was announced today by W. H. George, president of the Builders' Exchange. The shorter week will apply only to mechanics employed on buildings, eliminating members of the building trades working in factories and shops.

The building trades now are working under a five and one-half day week. The new schedule will make the Saturday a holiday and subject to the usual payment for overtime.

Slackness in the building industry which has resulted in unemployment, George said, was responsible for the innovation. He said the exchange expected employment would be increased approximately one-sixth by the shorter week.

TUNNEY DEMANDS DECISION BY COURT ON WOMAN'S SUIT

Files Motion at Bridgeport, Conn., When Mrs. Katherine King Fogarty Seeks to Drop Action.

SHE HAD CHARGED BREACH OF PROMISE

Asked for $500,000 From Former Boxing Champion —Litigation by Husband Still Pending.

By the Associated Press.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Dec. 21.—The desire of Mrs. Katherine King Fogarty, Fort Worth (Tex.) divorcee, to withdraw her $500,000 breach of promise suit against James J. Tunney, found the retired heavyweight boxing champion demanding a fight to a decision.

Frank L. Wilder, Mrs. Fogarty's counsel, announced in court yesterday, after he had obtained permission to quit the case as her representative, that Mrs. Fogarty had dispatched a letter authorizing a withdrawal of the action which was brought in Superior Court last May.

Tunney's attorney, Homer S. Cummings, immediately filed a motion for judgment on his cross-complaint, which, among other things, alleges the suit was brought merely to defame Tunney and to extort money. The motion will be argued next Friday before Judge Carl Foster.

Mrs. Fogarty's letter, Wilder said, was written in Boston, Mass., and was dated Nov. 4.

At present, Tunney is residing in Greenwich, Conn., with his wife, the former Polly Lauder, whom he married abroad before the breach of promise suit was filed.

A suit for $500,000 brought against the former boxer by John E. Fogarty, one-time Fort Worth plumber, who charged that Tunney's promise to wed his wife influenced her to obtain a divorce from him, is pending.

Mrs. Fogarty charged Tunney proposed to her in Hot Springs, Ark., June 3, 1925. She accepted, she said, but she found later he had a change of heart.

Tunney was in Italy when the suit was filed, but he answered through counsel, denying everything. He also charged that the woman had twice been "bought off" when she threatened to sue him.

CAT AROUSES MAN AND WIFE WHEN OVERLAND HOME BURNS

Goes From Basement to Bedroom to Give Alarm; Dog Overcome by Smoke.

Tabby, a Persian cat, aroused Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lyle, 9635 Tennyson avenue, Overland, when fire destroyed their home early today.

The cat went up from the basement, where fire from an overheated furnace had made some headway, entered their bedroom and awakened them with loud cries. The Lyles' collie dog, Shep, was overcome by smoke and had to be dragged out of the basement.

The house, a one-story four-room brick bungalow, was valued at $5000 and its contents at $2000.

Fire from a defective flue destroyed the two-story frame house of Mrs. Jeanette Fox, 2730 Hanley road, St. John's Station, early last night, with an estimated loss of $9000 on the house and $1000 on the contents.

RELATIVES SEEK MISSING WITNESS IN RYCKOFF CASE

Mother of J. W. Stultz Thinks He Would Communicate With Her if Free to Do So.

HE KEPT LIGHTING CONTRACT RECORDS

Vanished on Eve of Grand Jury Session That Indicted City Officials and the Contractor.

The family of James W. Stultz, an electrical engineer in the Department of Public Utilities, who vanished from St. Louis nine months ago on the eve of a grand jury investigation of the Ryckoff street lighting contracts, involving the department in which Stultz was employed on the Ryckoff records, have had no word from him and are more puzzled than ever at his failure to write or to return home.

The mother of the missing engineer, Mrs. Harriet Stultz, 4175 Botanical avenue, an invalid, to whom he was known to be devoted, does not think he left St. Louis of his own volition and has come to fear that he went away against his will at the instance of others. She thinks also that he would not have left her without telling of his intention unless he left under duress and is certain he would communicate if free to do so.

Frank L. Stultz, also a city engineer and brother of the missing man, has views similar to those of his mother. He has run down every clew to the whereabouts of his brother but has found no trace of him. He has not, however, abandoned hope that his brother will return.

Handled Ryckoff Records.

As chief clerk of construction under George B. Heath in the lighting division of the Department of Public Utilities, Stultz had charge of the Ryckoff contract records, compilations from which were used to make up the estimates of work for which the contractor was paid.

Those estimates were first challenged by Comptroller Nolte, who withheld a payment to the contractor and made a check of the amount of cable charged for. By this action the Comptroller saved the city about $20,000, which Ryckoff eliminated from his bill to escape what he termed endless litigation.

Two years later, or last January, following admissions by A. M. Ryckoff of Chicago, that he had made "short cuts" in the contract to reimburse himself for money paid to grafters, a survey of the work was made by an engineer for the Post-Dispatch. This survey indicated Ryckoff had been paid for more work than he had done. These disclosures resulted in a grand jury investigation, which was called for by Mayor Miller.

The grand jury, after hearing Comptroller Nolte and other City Hall witnesses, indicted Ryckoff, the contractor; Heath, who had the title of Chief Electrical Engineer in the Department of Public Utilities, and John C. Pritchard, director of that department. The charge was obtaining money by false pretenses in overpayments to Ryckoff for brick and concrete sidewalk repaving.

Gone When Grand Jury Sat.

Two days before published announcement that Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller would make the grand jury investigation Stultz left home. He attended a political meeting that night, and next day was seen downtown in company with a young woman who subsequently testified before the grand jury that she had left him on the street.

Had he remained in St. Louis he would have been called as keeper of the Ryckoff records to appear before the grand jury. He would have been asked to explain the jumbled condition of the records upon which payments to Ryckoff were made, a condition that baffled Comptroller Nolte in his attempts at a thorough check of cable. Records for large areas were missing, and what remained were in such disorder that Arthur C. Meyers, engineer for Comptroller Nolte, said they amounted to little more than so much waste paper.

There is no charge pending against Stultz, and there has been no testimony that he juggled any of the records. He is thought to possess information that might be of value to the State, and should he return to St. Louis would be called by the Circuit Attorney for a conference concerning what he knows of the case.

$2000 ROBBERY IN BUTCHER SHOP AT 415 MORGAN

Nine Employes and Two Officers of Fischer Meat Co. Ordered by Four Men to Face Wall.

Moultin Brothers Find Way Barred as They Start to Drive From Home, 1153 Bayard, to Bank.

Nine employes and two officers of the Fischer Meat Co., 415 Morgan street, were herded face against the wall by four armed men who took approximately $2000 from the cash drawer at 9:50 a. m. today.

The robbers, who held handkerchiefs over their faces, ordered the four employes in the store to enter the office, where Fred Fischer Sr., president of the company, and his son, Fred Jr., were working with five employes. All were forced to face the wall and were warned against looking around.

One of the robbers then scooped the money out of the cash drawer and all ran out of the store to an automobile, in which a fifth man waited, and in which they escaped.

Butchers Robbed of $1092.

Abraham and Hyman Moultin, kosher butchers, were robbed of $1092 in currency and $392 in checks when they drove out of a garage at the rear of their home, 1153 Bayard avenue, at 8:30 a. m.

A Buick automobile containing three men barred the path of the Moultin car from the garage, and two of the men alighted and pointed pistols at the brothers.

The robbers warned the Moultins against following them and drove away down the alley. The brothers, proprietors of a butcher shop at 1247 Walton avenue, were on their way to a bank to deposit the money when they were held up.

At a Nation-Wide store at 4470 Castleman avenue, two Negroes robbed the proprietors, Roy Bosewell and Walter Jones, of $254 in currency.

Two men, who held handkerchiefs over their faces, took $55 from the safe of the Essig Lumber Co., 6240 Easton avenue, after they had forced Henry Lang, secretary of the company, to open it. They departed after ordering Lang and and employe to lie on the floor in a rear room.

Burglars who broke into the Luxemburg office of the St. Louis County Gas Co., 249 Lemay Ferry road, knocked the combination off a safe, but failed to get it open. Small change was in the safe.

Robber With Rusty Pistol Gets $25 in Two Holdups.

Police are searching for a robber carrying a rusty nickel-plated pistol, who was outwitted by one person, accepted the word of a second that he had no money, and appeared satisfied with small amount handed him by two other persons he held up last night.

The robber, described as wearing a soiled gray cap and a brown overcoat, approached Millard Mikel, chauffeur for the Stix, Baer & Fuller Dry Goods Co., who had stopped his truck at Belt and Enright avenues at 7:30 o'clock. The holdup man inquired, "Have you and money?" "No," responded Mikel, and the man turned and walked away.

Thirty minutes later the robber entered a restaurant at 1338 Hodiamont avenue, pointed a pistol at Miss Lucille Stieglitz, a waitress, and asked for money. Miss Stieglitz handed him $15 from the cash register and he departed.

An Imaginary Policeman.

At 8:50 p. m. the robber ordered Isaac Stillman, proprietor of an apparel store at 1014 Hodiamont avenue, to give him money. "See, I mean business," the robber declared, displaying the rusty weapon. "There goes a policeman down the street," remarked Stillman, looking through the window at an imaginary officer. The robber fled without loot.

The robber's last appearances was was at 9:40 o'clock at Friedwald's Pharmacy, 5598 Easton avenue, where he was recognized by Bernard Davis, a clerk, as a man who visited the store last Sunday and asked for money. On that occasion Davis said the cash register was empty, and the man departed. Last night the man pointed the pistol at Davis while requesting money. Davis handed him a $10 bill and he left.

Robbed of Union's $25.

William F. Wagner, 5245 Emerson avenue, business agent for the Electrical Workers' Union, reported he was robbed of $175 by two Negroes, who forced their way into his automobile at Leonard and

REARRANGEMENT WOULD DISRUPT MANY OLD TIES

Provides for Five Groups in East, Two in New England, Three in South and Nine in West.

SUGGESTION IS MERELY TENTATIVE

Report Is Made in Obedience to 1920 Mandate of Congress as Possible Basis of Action.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21. — A plan for merging practically all of the steam railroads of the United States into 19 operating units was laid down by the Interstate Commerce Commission today in compliance with a congressional mandate.

Five eastern trunk lines would be formed, headed by the Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, Wabash-Seaboard, New York Central and Chesapeake & Ohio. The Boston & Maine and the New York, New Haven & Hartford would form the key system in New England.

In the South there would be three systems headed by the Atlantic Coast Line, the Southern Railway and the Illinois Central.

Other key systems under the plan are as follows: The Great Northern-Northern Pacific, the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific; the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy; the Union Pacific; the Southern Pacific; the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe; the Missouri Pacific and the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific and Chicago & Northwestern.

Two Canadian groupings were also allowed but were not included in the list of trunk systems.

The Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific would head the Canadian systems.

Breaks Many Old Ties.

Many long-established relationships between existing carrier systems would be disrupted by the carrying out of the proposal, but the commission said that it represented the attempt to create a transportation system in the country which would maintain competition and give every important traffic center recourse to two or more lines for transport service.

Without specifying the actual local treatment necessary, the Commission declared that any railroad consolidation "should be accompanied by unification of all terminal lines in the respective terminals," so that all terminal properties should be thrown open to all users on "fair and equal terms" regardless of terminal ownership.

A long study and much controversy within the Commission and in the railroad field preceded the announcement. Since 1920, when Congress authorized general railroad consolidation on a basis of maintaining competition and further maintaining existing routes and channels of commerce, the Commission has repeatedly asked to be relieved of the mandate ordering it to prepare the plan.

Not Compulsory.

Commissioner Eastman in an opinion concurring with the proposal declared that "the plan is very little more than a procedural step." He added that "there is nothing compulsory about it nor even any assurance that authority will be sought to carry out the consolidations which it proposes. The important time will come when we take action upon definite applications," to bring about rail consolidation.

In the actual alignment of railroads projected by the plan there was marked difference with some of the proposals made by important railroad interests which have sought to take advantage of the consolidation law.

In Eastern territory the Commission plan would leave the New York Central and Pennsylvania systems largely as they now are

SAYS HE KNOWS WHO KILLED FILM DIRECTOR

Ex-Governor of California Quoted as Having Solution of W. D. Taylor Murder.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Dec. 21.—The San Francisco Call-Bulletin quoted former Gov. Friend W. Richardson of California as saying that a motion picture actress murdered William Desmond Taylor, one of Hollywood's famous motion picture directors, who was mysteriously shot in 1922. The former Governor did not name the actress.

Richardson was quoted as saying that when he told the foreman of the grand jury at Los Angeles and the chairman of the jury's criminal committee that he had the solution of the mystery, and asked if there was any chance of an indictment, he received a negative reply.

"They explained," the quotation continued, "that either Keyes (Asa Keyes, then District Attorney) or one of his deputies would be in the grand jury room and that before any person could be brought to trial for the murder, the important witnesses would be spirited away, bribed or murdered."

After going into the history of his differences and sharp exchanges as Governor with Keyes who is now serving a prison sentence for accepting bribes while in office, Richardson said he heard a prisoner in Folsom prison knew much about the murder of Taylor and that he explained the situation to the prison board.

"I told them," said the quoted story, "that already the word was around that I had the solution of the murder and that unless we took quick action the convict in Folsom prison would be murdered."

The convict was paroled and Richardson said the last he heard of him he was in Vera Cruz, Mexico.

In answer to the question as to why he had not presented the facts to Buron Fitts, present District Attorney at Los Angeles, Richardson was quoted as saying he "left the Governor's office before Fitts became District Attorney. The witnesses we had then probably we could not get together again. I don't even know where my records of the case are now."

The slaying occurred in January, 1922. After four years of investigation Keyes announced the inquiry was closed.

Edward F. Sands, Taylor's butler, generally was thought to have been connected with the slaying. He disappeared after the murder and never has been found and is still wanted on suspicion of murder.

SHIP AGROUND OFF MEXICO; PASSENGERS TAKE TO BOATS

Venator's Requests for Relief Sent to Chicago Office Are Intercepted.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 21.—Messages from the captain of the American steamer Venator, 626 tons, which plies between New Orleans and Puerto Mexico, say the ship is aground five miles west of Puerto Mexico and passengers have taken to boats. A gale is blowing.

The Department of Communications intercepted the messages, which were to the ship's Chicago headquarters, and instructed authorities at nearby ports to send relief.

The ship left New Orleans about Dec. 17 for Puerto Mexico.

FRANCE TO INSIST ON SUBMARINE FOR DEFENSE OF COAST

ITALY SENDS REPLY TO PARIS

Roman Government Expected to Demand Again Naval Parity to Protect Sea Borders.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 21.—The French Government today was transmitting to the Powers invited to the London naval conference a memorandum setting forth the broad lines of French policy.

The memorandum is understood to express France's desire for limitation based on adequate defense of its own security, the security of its colonies and trade routes and sets forth the French attitude to be taken at the London conference at Geneva.

It was also said the memorandum expressed the French contention that submarines must remain as the basis of coastal defense. The document will be made public soon.

The Italian reply to the recent French memorandum on disarmament problems is expected to reach Paris some time today. While no hint of its contents has been made it is expected that it will, in a general way, repeat Italy's contention for naval parity with France.

FRANCE TO DEMAND AN ADEQUATE FLEET

By ARNO DOSCH FLEUROT,
Paris Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1929, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (The New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

PARIS, Dec. 21.—That France will take a strong position demanding protection for her coasts and colonial possessions at the naval parley at London, was stated in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday by Georges Leygues, Minister of Marine.

Global tonnage and not tonnage by categories will be the demand of France, whose delegates will be instructed to tell the London conference that fleets should not be calculated by arithmetic, but by political necessities.

"The London parley is only preparatory to the Geneva general disarmament conference," Minister Leygues told the chamber. "France has made more cuts in tonnage since 1914 than any other power involved in the conference but has a fleet of light vessels which is the world's fastest and defies comparison."

He said that in the last two years the navy had become popular, with a doubled number of candidates for the naval colleges. France, he said, must assert herself upon the sea "as long as the League of Nations has not the armed force to compel obedience to its decisions. At London we will place ourselves under the banner of Article VIII of the League of Nations pact."

The chamber wildly cheered the Minister.

Wants Germany Invited.

M. Herriott, former Premier and member from Lyons, raised two points which held great attention; first, that Germany should be invited to go to the London conference, and, second, that the freedom of the seas cannot be properly discussed at London.

"While half the other powers," he said, "limited their naval construction at the Washington conference, Germany has worked in silence without limitation and has just launched a vessel which is the terror of all navies, and yet within the limits of the Versailles treaty."

He referred to the new christened Admiral Scheer of 10,000 tons, which, by advances in construction, is able to carry 11-inch guns whereas earlier types of this tonnage usually carried a lighter armament.

Freedom of Seas.

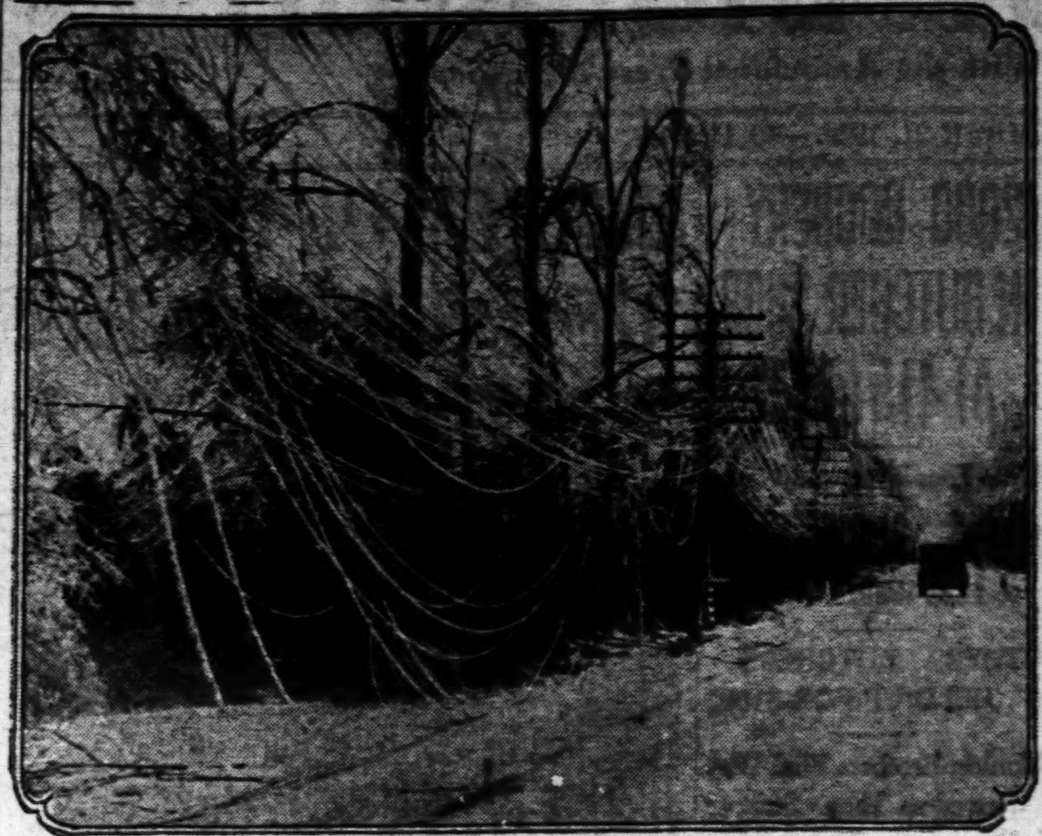

The German technical advance cannot be discussed at London, but it can at Geneva, said Herriott, and added:

"The question of the liberty of the seas will necessarily be raised at London although it can't be treated properly except in an international atmosphere. The question of territorial waters is bound to the question of liberty of the seas, and the question of territorial waters is inseparable from land frontiers. The only place where all these can be discussed effectively is at the general disarmament conference at Geneva."

Deputy Mottu, who was delegated by the Republicans of the Left to question the Government, said that France needed to keep in mind that the Hoover-MacDonald agreement could not be called a move toward disarmament but merely toward parity between Great Britain and America and he warned against the "British-American naval hemomony and Anglo-Saxon peace."

He said that the British Admiralty has a purpose in disarming France at sea, adding, "Meanwhile Germany is constructing new types of ships which technicians say will change all naval tactics." He ended with a shot at parity, which he said was impossible to make definite when new types of construction such as German engineers have involved can change the balance and "leave only paper parity."

What Blizzard Did to Wires in New York State

I. C. C. FOR MERGER OF U. S. RAILWAYS INTO 19 SYSTEMS

but would enlarge materially the Chesapeake & Ohio system by adding to it the Erie and Pere Marquette and a large group of connecting short lines.

The Baltimore & Ohio would have complete ownership of the Reading and the Central of New Jersey, now affiliated, and a half ownership of three other roads, the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton; the Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville and the Detroit & Toledo Shore Line. It would also be allowed to keep the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg which it now tentatively controls but would be separated from the Western Maryland, which it has been engaged in purchasing during the last two years.

A new fifth trunk line system would be created in Eastern territory around the Wabash by incorporating with that system the Wheeling & Lake Erie, the Pittsburg & West Virginia, the Western Maryland, the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co. of Indiana, a half interest in the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton and finally the Seaboard Air Line running down the east coast to Florida with most of its adjuncts and connecting lines.

In connection with eastern systems the Commission set aside several proposals advanced by the Baltimore & Ohio, the Chesapeake & Ohio and the Wabash. Its rearrangement of properties indicated a disposition to break up some present ownerships, and several of the new systems would have parts of lines long owned by other and competitive systems. In connection with that it was noted that almost complete control over the Virginian would be assigned to the New York Central.

New England and the South.

In New England territory the Boston & Maine and the New York, New Haven & Hartford would be built up into two regional systems by the inclusion of connected and associated lines although the New York Central was left ownership of the Boston & Albany. Association of the Atlantic Coast Line with the Louisville & Nashville was confirmed by the plan. To the Southern Railway Co. was assigned the Florida East Coast Line which is now independent and the Norfolk Southern but the Mobile & Ohio which it has long controlled was excluded.

In addition its long established ownership of the Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville was reduced to a one-fourth interest, the balance of that line being assigned to the Baltimore & Ohio and northern systems.

For the Illinois Central the commission proposed the addition of a large number of short lines in southern territory including the Gulf & Ship Island, the Yazoo & Mississippi Valley Railroad, and likewise the Minneapolis & St. Louis, a new independent line running into the Northwest. Radical changes in present railroad alignments were exhibited by the attachment of the Mobile & Ohio to the Chicago & Northwestern system along with several other short lines in southern territory into which they road has not hitherto reached.

Boston & Maine.

MINNESOTA PRESS GAG LAW TO U. S. SUPREME COURT

Attorneys Representing Saturday Press Say Case Will Be Taken Before Highest Federal Tribunal.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 21.—The Minnesota State Supreme Court yesterday upheld the constitutionality of Minnesota's newspaper "gag law."

Attorneys representing the Saturday Press indicated that the matter would be taken to the United States Supreme Court for a final decision.

The law, enacted by the 1925 Legislature, was upheld once before by the Supreme Court which passed on the act when a temporary restraining order was issued against the Saturday Press, a Minneapolis publication, in Hennepin County District Court.

When the injunction was made permanent another appeal was taken, and the high court acted on that appeal today. Under the act, a single judge, sitting as a court of equity, can suppress a publication.

Efforts for Repeal Failed.

The case has attracted nationwide attention, and the Civil Liberties League furnished attorneys to fight the law. Efforts to repeal the law during the last session of the State Legislature, which convened last January and continued through April, were unsuccessful.

Attorneys attacked the law on the ground that it is contrary to the due process of law provision of the Federal Constitution in that the property of a publisher is taken away from him without due process of law. It was further claimed that the statute violates the guarantee in the Federal and State constitutions for the freedom of speech and press.

The suppression act does not violate the due process of law guaranty contained in the State and Federal constitutions, nor does it violate the State's constitutional provision for the freedom of the press, Chief Justice S. B. Wilson said in the Court's opinion.

Much Material Scandalous.

"The act was to abate a nuisance," the opinion said, "arising out of the operation of a newspaper business, as authorized by the laws. Presumably an evil, inimical to the public welfare, existed in this State which the Legislature intended to remedy. No claim is advanced that the method and character of the operation of the newspaper in question was not a nuisance if the statute is constitutional. It was regularly and customarily devoted largely to malicious, scandalous and defamatory matter.

"The claim is advanced that the statute is in contravention of Article 1, Section 3, of our State Constitution relating to the liberty of the press, and also that it violates the due process clause of both Article 1, Section 7, of our State Constitution and the Fourteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

May Go to Supreme Court.

"In our opinion, the laws of 1925, Chapter 285 (the gag law), violate neither the State nor the Federal Constitution. The record presents the same questions upon which we have already passed. Our former opinion will disclose other grounds urged by the appellant and such grounds have been urged in this appeal, although we do not discuss them in detail.

"The argument is made that the judgment goes too far and literally prevents the defendants from publishing any kind of a newspaper and thereby deprives them of their means of livelihood and the legitimate use of their property. It is sufficient to say that the assignments of error do not go to the form of the judgment. We see no reason, however, for defendants to construe the judgment as restraining them from operating a newspaper in harmony with the public welfare to which all must yield. The case has now been tried. The allegations of the complaint have been found to be true. Though this is an equitable action, defendants have in no way indicated any desire to conduct their business in the usual legitimate manner."

700 RESCUED WHEN BOAT RAMS NEW YORK FERRY

Crowded Vessel Struck by Freighter on Hudson River—Ten Injured in Rush for Escape.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Seven hundred passengers, many of them women and children, struggled in panic for life preservers and to reach rescue craft last night when the New York Central ferry boat, West Point, and a car float of the Erie Railroad crashed in midstream opposite West 42d street, Manhattan in the Hudson River.

All passengers were taken off by three boats of the Electric ferry and five tugs of the New York Central. At least 10 were cut and bruised in the rush to climb to the deck of the car float through cabin windows they had broken. All the injured were treated in Weehawken by surgeons of North Hudson Hospital and went home.

The West Point left the West 42d street slip at 7 o'clock and was proceeding slowly across the river, preparatory to turning and heading north when the car float, loaded with coal cars, struck the ferry boat amidship on the port side, cutting a wide gash.

Many of the passengers were jolted from their seats, others who were standing were knocked down, and motor trucks and automobiles sent rolling back and forth in the gangway.

Men and women broke windows, which could easily have been opened and then began dropping down on the deck of the float, the bow of which still held fast on the West Point.

The first boats to draw alongside the disabled craft, now rapidly taking in water, were the Gov. Moore, Charles W. Culkins and Grenville Kane of the Electric Ferries, Inc. Next on the scene were five tugs of the New York Central Railroad.

Only about 15 minutes were required to make the transfer of passengers, but it was necessary to carry many of them ashore when the rescue craft docked at Weehawken, where ambulances were awaiting. The West Point was still afloat this morning and Capt. Youmans, who remained aboard with his crew, believed the pumps would keep her from sinking until a dry dock can be made ready for it.

This was the second ship collision in New York harbor this week. Last Wednesday the liner, Fort Victoria, was rammed by the coast steamer Algonquin, off Sandy Hook and sank.

COMPTROLLER OF U. S. FOR BRANCH BANKING

J. W. Pole Thinks Plan Would Be Salvation for Smaller Depositories.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Urging the extension of branch banking by national banks as a way to assure a safe and sound system to rural communities, John W. Pole, Comptroller of the Currency, says in his annual report that such a development would be of advantage to agricultural communities.

At the same time the Comptroller pointed to the growth of group banking, in which holding companies have acquired the stock of several banks, and the defections of banks from the national field to seek broader privileges under state laws as reasons why the national bank laws must be liberalized.

He said that total resources of all of the 25,330 banks in the country on last June 30 aggregate $72,172,505,000, an increase of $598,177,000 over the previous year. National banks numbering 7506 were shown to have total resources of $27,440,228,000, a decrease of $1,068,000,000, while the number of all banks had decreased in the year by 883.

Of the total resources, he continued, 250 banks in the cities had resources of $33,400,000,000, while three-fourths of the banks of the nation were in country communities and classed as country banks. The country banks, he said, operate with small capital funds and economic developments since the war have had the effect of decreasing their opportunities to operate at a profit.

On the question of bank failures, Pole said that no "important failures" had occurred among banks in the larger cities between last Jan. 1 and Nov. 1, and that, "whereas a depositor in a large city bank, whether a wage earner or a business man, has had full protection, the depositor in the small country bank has suffered severely from the inability of so many banks to meet their deposit liabilities."

"It is cause for immediate concern that the operating conditions faced by country banks show no prospect of improvement under the present system. There are many country banks now operated at a loss and many others operating upon earnings insufficient to justify their capital invesement.

"Comprehensive study of the banking situation for the last nine years clearly indicates that the system of banking in rural communities has broken down through causes beyond the control of the individual banker or the local community."

8 DEPUTIES ACQUITTED OF KILLING 6 STRIKERS

Found Not Guilty of Second Degree Murder at Burnsville, N. C.

By the Associated Press.

BURNSVILLE, N. C., Dec. 21.—Eight Deputy Sheriffs on trial for the death of six men killed during a strike disorder at Marion, N. C., Oct. 2, were acquitted of second degree murder today.

The verdict was returned at 9:32 a. m., the jury having been out more than 22 hours.

The trial had been under way for more than a week. The defendants, B. L. Robbins, Webb Fender, Robert Ward, William Twiggs, Charlie Tate, Jim Owens, Dave Jarrett and Taylor Green, offered a plea of self-defense. The State, however, contended they fired into a group of pickets in front of the Marion Manufacturing Co., while the strikers were fleeing from tear gas bombs the officers had thrown in their midst. According to the State, the strikers were both "quiet" and unarmed.

SEVEN PERSONS, SIX IN ONE FAMILY, KILLED BY TRAIN

Truck Carrying Four Children and Parents, With Christmas Supplies Is Hit.

By the Associated Press.

CLARINDA, Ia., Dec. 21.—A family of six persons was wiped out in a grade crossing accident here last night in which seven lives were lost.

Fay E. Flass, 40 years old, truckman and farmer of College Springs, Ia., was leaving Clarinda for home with his family. They had been Christmas shopping. His small truck was struck by a northbound Burlington route train on the Tarkio branch at the crossing on United States Highway 71.

The dead. Glass; his wife, Mrs. June Glass, 30, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Anderson of Hopkins, Mo.; their four children, Frank, 13; Dee, 9; Mary, 6, and Neva, 4; and a man believed to be Charles Adkins, 25, farm laborer of College Springs.

Adkins, who had a wife and two children, had been working near Clarinda and was to meet the Glass family here yesterday and return with them to College Springs.

The truck was loaded with Christmas gifts and provisions of all kinds for the holidays. It was carried about two blocks by the locomotive. Identification of the bodies was difficult.

COLD DELAYS TRAINS FROM 1 TO 5 HOURS

Even Those From South and Southwest Running Behind Schedule.

The combination of bad weather and the usual heavy holiday travel continued to disrupt train schedules today. No train due at Union Station this morning was on time and some were from one to five hours late.

The C. & E. I. midnight train from Chicago, due at 7:30 a. m., was scheduled for 1:30 p. m. A second train over the same road was canceled. Other Chicago trains were two and three hours late, as were Wabash, Pennsylvania and other Eastern trains. Missouri Pacific and M., K. & T. trains from the South and Southwest, not usually affected by winter weather conditions, were among those running behind schedule.

Icy tracks, making high speed dangerous, ice-clogged switches in terminal yards, and delays for connections are the principal difficulties in railroad operation at present. In some instances departing trains have been detained from one to three hours to await connections with other trains.

A Wabash Railway freight engine was derailed by ice on the rails in Forest Park, east of the Union boulevard crossing, yesterday noon. Trains were not halted as the adjoining track was open.

Street car, bus and vehicle traffic in the city returned to normal today.

Progress is being made in opening Illinois State highways which have been blocked by drifts. Most St. Louis County roads are open again and all Missouri State roads are open except for certain minor stretches. A route is now open to Chicago, the Automobile Club of Missouri announced. It follows U. S. No. 40 from St. Louis to Vandalia, Ill.; U. S. 51 to Bloomington and thence Illinois No. 4 and a detour via Streator to Chicago. Other Illinois roads out of the St. Louis district, besides some previously reported, were open today as follows: No. 4 to Carlinville, No. 12 to Lebanon, No. 13 to Carbondale, No. 3 to Ashland (north of Jacksonville), and No. 11 (U. S. No. 40) across the State and on the way East.

At the Municipal Lodging House 971 homeless men were quartered last night, the record for this year. There are accommodations for 1[illegible] men.

W. FRANZ ESTATE ZIGZAGS FROM 27 TO 8 MILLIONS

WIDOW'S PEACE OFFER REJECTED

E. W. Franz, Original Plaintiff, Refuses to Sign "Exoneration" of Trustees at Pasadena.

While the stock market ticker daily changes the value, the Ehrhardt Franz estate, which this year fluctuated in market value between $27,000,000 and $8,000,000, continues to be the subject of litigation in Federal Court between the heirs and trustees.

Few estates in America have experienced such fluctuations, due to the fact that the Franz estate consists almost entirely of stock. The estate, according to the trustees' last report, holds 232,500 shares of Burroughs Adding Machine Co. stock, which had a market value of $11,900,312 at yesterday's closing price of 42⅛ a share on the New York Stock Exchange.

At the year's highest price of [illegible], reached just before the recent securities crash, the shares had a paper value of more than [illegible],000,000. At the year's lowest price, more recently, a forced sale would have netted a little over $8,-[illegible],000.

Investment of $21,000.

So large are the estate's stock holdings, a comparatively mild drop, such as yesterday's meant a depreciation of more than $500,000 in the market value of the shares. Assets of the Franz estate, aside from Burroughs stock, are valued at approximately $400,000.

The estate has grown to its present proportions from an original speculation of $21,000 in 1896 in the American Arithmometer Co., parent of the Burroughs Co., made by Franz, a St. Louis grocer, who died two years later. Under Franz's will, his widow, now 89 years old and living in Pasadena, Cal., receives the income from the estate for life, and nine heirs or groups of heirs will share the estate at her death.

Federal Judge Faris is now re[illegible]ring an application of three of the Franz heirs for removal of the trustees, Gustav A. Buder and Gustav A. Franz, another heir, on the ground they have not made proper accounting as between the assets of the father's estate and property acquired outright by the widow.

"Exoneration" of Trustees.

It was disclosed yesterday that settlement of the litigation was suggested and rejected at a family reunion held by Mrs. Franz at her Pasadena home last month. At that conference the original plaintiff, E. W. Franz of Baxter Springs, Kan., was asked to, but refused to sign the following "exoneration" of the trustees:

"To G. A. Franz and G. A. Buder, trustees:

"In order that I may not be misjudged, please be advised that the purpose of my suit was to establish as a matter of law that the stock dividends issued by the Burroughs Adding Machine Co. on the original holding of E. D. Franz estate in your names as trustees were corpus and as such belonged to the original estate of my father, Ehrhardt Franz.

"Further, that there was no intention to charge you, or either of you, with having mismanaged, misdirected or breached the trust agreement. If in any proceeding my attorneys made any such allegation or charges, either in the bill in equity or in any subsequent petition, motion or brief, they were made without my knowledge or approval and were not sanctioned by me.

"In view of the fact such allegations are untrue, I wish to retract same to the extent that I am chargeable with the acts of my attorneys."

Drafted by Lawyer.

This paper was termed an "exoneration" by Oscar E. Buder, St. Louis lawyer, who attended the reunion in behalf of his brother, G. A. Buder.

Oscar Buder admitted drafting the statement as a modification of one submitted to him by E. W. Franz. He was asked whether Franz's refusal to sign the "exoneration" caused the trustees to drop an offer to distribute half of the estate among the heirs. "No, the proposition came from the other side," replied Buder.

$256,000 in Fees.

Preceding his brother on the stand, G. A. Buder, lawyer and publisher of the St. Louis Times, was asked whether his law firm, Buder & Buder, had not received $256,000 in legal fees from the Franz estate in the last 20 years.

"That might be the figure," the witness conceded. Previous testimony had been that the figures in five of the years, 1923-25-27, amounted $95,000.

"Is that too much or too little considering the work you did?" Buder was asked.

"Whatever it was, it was not enough. I wouldn't do the work again for four or six times as much," Buder answered.

"Isn't it a fact you received

..."No, I don't think so." Buder said. "Loans to these companies were made in the usual course of business and were made on collateral. It was just like lending some of the funds to banks in which I am a director."

Buder added that the loans had been repaid and Mrs. Franz is now a large stockholder in the American Press.

Buder is a director and general counsel of the Burroughs Co. He contends his insistence upon the estate retaining its Burroughs stock is responsible for its enormous growth.

OWES $104,323, HAS $25, CONTRACTOR SAYS

Cecil R. Holm Lists Only Clothing as Assets in Bankruptcy.

With unsecured liabilities of $104,323 and only the clothing on his back as assets, Cecil R. Holm, a contractor, 5836 De Giverville avenue, today filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy.

His principal creditors as listed are Mary T. Clyde of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, New York, $26,250, and Edyth Clyde of the same address, $15,000, money lent him on notes in 1921. He also lists a judgment for $50,000, obtained against him in 1927 by Earl Aubuchon, address not given.

Listed miscellaneous debts include post-dated checks in varying amounts up to $100, given to Ralph W. Lefner, 4608W Ashland avenue.

The only assets listed consisted of his personal clothing, which he valued at $25. He is a son of Victor Holm, St. Louis sculptor.

GUS NATIONS WOULD BAR FARIS FROM TRYING $1,000,000 SUIT

Acting as his own attorney, Gus O. Nations today filed an affidavit of bias and prejudice against Federal Judge Faris and moved for a disqualification of the judge to try the suit of Nations for $1,000,000 damages against Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt who, in a series of newspaper articles after leaving the office of Assistant Attorney-General in charge of prohibition enforcement, made references to Nations in connection with operations of the Griesedieck brewery.

As his reason for the move to disqualify Judge Faris, Nations alleged that he was informed in 1927 that Judge Faris told D. G. Gibson, prohibition worker, that he entertained a hostile and unfriendly feeling toward Nations, because the latter in 1924 related that Judge Faris had reported the sale of liquor in a saloon, which Nations later raided, and the owner of which was sent to jail by Judge Faris.

Nations' suit against Mrs. Willebrandt was filed in the State Circuit Court, but recently was transferred to the Federal Court on application of Mrs. Willebrandt, and by chance was assigned to Judge Faris' Court.

SHAKEUP IN OFFICERS OF MUSICIANS' UNION

Opponents of Strike Settlement Elect New President, Vice President and Treasurer.

Members of Musicians' Union No. 2, who became dissatisfied with the handling of the recent strike of musicians employed in movie theaters, have succeeded in electing Samuel P. Meyer, a cornet player formerly employed at the Shaw Theater, as president of the union to succeed Guy M. Daily, who has held the office for five years.

The election was held Thursday at union headquarters, 3535 West Pine boulevard, with four candidates for president indorsed on the ballot. Meyer was elected by a wide margin over Daily, who ran second. Harry Hoffmann, supported by the same group that sponsored Meyer, was elected vice president, taking the place of Fred Riddell. William Boenecke was elected treasurer, defeating the incumbent.

The only officers retained were D. K. Howell, veteran recording secretary, and V. C. Wolf, financial secretary. F. L. Oatman was appointed chairman of the Board of Trustees.

Dissatisfaction within the union arose from the fact that the old officers met employers' terms after keeping 300 musicians in movie theaters out on strike for three months. The strike was called Sept. 15 in an effort to force the owners of neighborhood theaters to accept an agreement providing for minimum orchestras in each theater. Under the settlement only a limited number of musicians is employed in traveling orchestras, which visit the various theaters periodically.

RECEIVERSHIP SUIT AGAINST CYTRON MORTGAGE CO. INC.

President of Company Denies Merit of Action Filed by Edward A. Byrne.

A suit for a receiver for the Cytron Mortgage Co., Inc., 110 North Ninth street, and three other corporations said to be allied with it, was filed in Circuit Court today by Edward A. Byrne, a creditor of one of the companies. Byrne owns a $500 bond issued in December, 1926, from an issue of $150,000 for the benefit for the Convent Garden Apartments, 356 North Taylor avenue. It is alleged that the bonds fell due Dec. 15 last but have not been paid.

According to his petition the issue was signed by Anna M. Staed, whom he says is a "straw holder" of title for the Cytron Mortgage Co. Title to the property now stands in the name of the Estate Development Co., an alleged Cytron subsidiary, which, with the Cytron Securities Corporation and the Ebony Investment Co., is named as co-defendant.

Gustav Cytron, president of the mortgage company, declared that the suit was without merit. The bond obligation, he said, rests with the Estate Development Co., of which Roy Britton is president.

Robbers Take Farmer's Wheat.

MARYSVILLE, Kan., Dec. 21.—Three men robbed Francis Blazer, 32 years old, a farmer 15 miles southwest of here, of 90 bushels of wheat and then attempted to kill him with a hatchet. After the attack, the men departed with the wheat in a motor truck.

SPECIAL MEETING OF ALDERMEN ON GARBAGE MEASURE

Second Reading Today of Bill Extending Hog-Feeding System for Two to Five Years.

A special meeting of the Board of Aldermen will be held today for the second reading of a bill authorizing the Board of Public Service to receive bids on a two or five year contract for disposal of garbage by hog feeding, a temporary continuance of the present method under the plan proposed by the Aldermanic Streets Committee as a result of its recent $4000 survey of methods used in 15 cities.

The committee's report, recommending the incineration of garbage by a private contractor as a permanent method of disposal, was approved by the Board of Aldermen yesterday. Under the committee's plan, the present hog-feeding contract, which expires in February, 1930, would be renewed for two or five years, pending arrangements with some company to build an incinerator under terms which would permit the city to buy the plant at the expiration of 5, 10 or 15 years.

Two Negative Votes.

The committee's report was approved by a vote of 26 to 2, Aldermen Wiehe and Waldman opposing and Alderman Brinkman not voting.

Wiehe argued that the incineration proposal should be delayed until a time when the city could afford to build and operate its own plant. Waldman, a dissenting member of the committee, argued for a reduction plant rather than an incineration plant.

Alderman Fett, chairman of the committee, declared the survey had shown that incineration plants operated satisfactorily in most of the 15 cities and that other cities were planning to adopt incineration. Six reduction plants, he said, were so odoriferous that members of the committee, including Waldman, refused to enter them.

Waldman replied that the plants that smelled badly were old. A modern reduction plant, such as the one in Indianapolis, he said, would be as odorless and sanitary as an incinerator and less expensive.

How Present Plan Works.

Alderman Wimer approved the report although he said he did not believe that incineration was a practical method. "I'm afraid we will build another monument like the old plant at the foot of Chouteau avenue," he said. "I think the only way of incinerating garbage is with rubbish as they do it in Milwaukee."

Under the present garbage disposal contract, which would be temporarily renewed under the plan, garbage is hauled to the foot of Chouteau avenue and shipped by the contractor to an island 56 miles downstream where it is used for hog-feeding. The cost to the city is $5.24 a ton, $4.50 for collection and 74 cents for disposal.

The board voted to file the bill for the widening of Chippewa street between Grand boulevard and Jefferson avenue, from 60 feet to 80 feet, because of the protests by numerous property owners who contended that traffic did not warrant the widening and that the improvement would benefit only a small group of business men. This disposes of the plan for the time being.

$2000 ROBBERY IN BUTCHER SHOP AT 415 MORGAN

Easton avenues at 8 p. m. Wagner told police only $25 of the money represented union funds.

Miss Bernice Lynch, 460 Greer avenue, was robbed of her purse containing $2 by a Negro, who threw her down in front of her home at 6 p. m.

A robber driving an automobile that had been reported stolen by Sylvester Burban, 4667 Heidelberg avenue, earlier in the evening, held up Harold Bauer, attendant at an oil filling station at Kingshighway and Maple avenue at 9:30 p. m. and escaped with $15.

Samued Ehrlich, a grocer, was locked in the icebox in his store, 3043 Franklin avenue, at 6 a. m. today by a Negro, who took $209 from the cash register and escaped.

$280 and 90 Street Car Tokens Taken on East Side.

In three holdups in East St. Louis yesterday $280 and 90 street car tokens were taken.

A Piggly Wiggly store at 1410 State street was robbed of $50 at noon by a man who locked two clerks in an icebox.

Homer Slayden, motorman of a one-man Broadway street car, was robbed of $30 and the tokens at the end of the line, Twenty-ninth street and Missouri avenue, by a Negro.

Sam Cohen was robbed of $200 in his shoe store, 601 Trendley avenue, by two men.

GERLING FAVORED FOR SCHOOL HEAD BY FOUR OF BOARD

Five Others More or Less Inclined to Vote for Making Him Permanent Superintendent.

Four of the 12 members of the Board of Education are definitely committed in favor of electing Henry J. Gerling to a four-year term as Superintendent of Instruction at an early date. Five other members are more or less inclined to support Gerling, but are not committing themselves in advance of the report of a special committee on the superintendency.

Gerling's supporters are certain that some or all of these five will vote for Gerling, though they may wish to defer the action until the committee is heard from. The remaining three members likewise are awaiting word from the committee, whose report likely will guide their votes on the superintendency.

The board will hold a special meeting next Friday to hear a progress report from the committee. Those supporting Gerling may try to force the issue in his favor, but others regard as premature the endeavor to settle the matter until a final report is received. Seven votes would suffice for an election.

Testimonial to Gerling.

The Principals' Club, an organization of grade school heads, held a banquet at Hotel Chase last night as a testimonial to Gerling, who has been acting Superintendent since last July. Seven board members were present, the whole board having been invited. Of those present, Henry P. Schroeder, Ben Weidle, Emil Barth and Richard Murphy declared themselves openly for Gerling.

President Arthur A. Blumeyer, Dr. David C. Todd, chairman of the special committee, and Howard G. Cook, also there, refrained from committing themselves, although Cook wished Gerling a merry Christmas and Blumeyer and Dr. Todd spoke pleasantly of him. Gerling's backers believe these three board members are inclined to support him for the place, which pays $11,000 a year.

It also is supposed, among board members, that Myrt A. Rollins and A. S. Werremeyer are likely to vote for Gerling. However, all members who are not definitely committed have left the way open to heed any other recommendation of the committee. Indications are that Blumeyer, Cook, Werremeyer, Dr. Todd and Rollins would require strong arguments in favor of another candidate to sway them from Gerling.

Mrs. Michael at Banquet.

Mrs. Elias Michael also attended the banquet, but left early to keep another appointment and did not enter the discussion of the superintendency. She and Mrs. E. R. Kroeger and John C. Tobin have kept clear of the talk in support of Gerling and are believed to be less inclined to vote for him, but they have emphasized their neutrality. The situation at present does not presage serious friction in the board, even if the members should disagree on the election of a superintendent.

The special committee consists of Dr. Todd, Mrs. Michael and Weidle. At the banquet Weidle said he would nominate Gerling at the January board meeting. Gerling indicated in a speech that he would accept the place, but he has refrained from campaigning for it and is willing to take any assignment from the board. He has made a generally good impression with the board and the teaching corps.

About six of the 30 or more principals at the dinner spoke in highly favorable tones of Gerling's work and apparently the audience was in sympathy. A similar attitude was evident at a banquet in Gerling's honor given by the Grade Teachers' Association Dec. 6.

Former St. Louis Pastor In English Pulpit Ousted

The Rev. George Chalmers Richmond, Ever a Storm Center, Removed as "Too Emotional" —Sent to Scotland.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 21.—The Rev. George Chalmers Richmond, Philadelphia, who has been filling temporarily the pulpit at St. Columba's Church in Hull, left yesterday for Scotland after some of his congregation had complained some of his sermons had been of a political nature.

Canon E. Arthur Berry, Vicar of Drypool, under whom Dr. Richmond had worked, said he had suggested last Saturday that the latter not preach on Sunday. "I felt he was too excitable and emotional," the Vicar said.

Dr. Richmond was born in Springfield, Mass. A graduate of Yale Theological School and Hartford Seminary, he has held pastorates in New York, Philadelphia, St. Louis and Los Angeles. He was tried in 1925 in the Ecclesiastical Court of the Diocese of Pennsylvania under 17 charges of defiance of Bishop P. M. Rhinelander and was found guilty on three. He was suspended for two years, but immediately restored.

He took over the Hull pulpit on Sept. 1 to obtain experience in English church practice.

Dr. Richmond held a conference with the Archbishop of York and Canon Berry, after which arrangements were made for Dr. Richmond to undertake other work in Scotland.

Dr. Richmond Occupied Pulpit of Central Church Here.

Dr. Richmond, who already had become widely known as "the holy terror" of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Philadelphia, came to St. Louis early in 1920 as pastor of Central Church, founded by the late Rev. Dr. W. J. Williamson and which held meetings in the Wednesday Club Auditorium, Taylor avenue and Westminster place. He soon announced that persons of all creeds were welcome, but that Central Church would be maintained without denominational connection.

A bachelor, he lived at Hotel Statler and moved among business men and commercial organizations rather than among clergymen. Before coming to St. Louis, he had aroused much criticism by drinking beer with some of his parishioners in New York and by supporting striking street car employes and inviting a Jewish Rabbi to occupy his pulpit in Philadelphia. The Bishop of the diocese termed the latter action one of Dr. Richmond's "unpardonable eccentricities," to which Dr. Richmond replied that if the Savior were on earth He, too, would advocate the open pulpit.

SUIT FOR RECEIVERSHIP AGAINST BOILER FIRM

Friendly Action Filed Against Heine Company to Determine Standing.

A friendly receivership petition was filed in Federal Court today against the Heine Boiler Co., a Missouri corporation, by the Bethlehem Steel Co., which two days ago obtained a receivership in New York Federal Court for the International Combustion Engineering Co., holding company for the Heine firm and several other plants in this country and Europe.

Local proceedings were instituted to extend the receivership to this jurisdiction. The Heine company filed notice of consent and appointment of a receiver will be a formality.

In the petition it is stated the Heine company is solvent and has assets far in excess of its liabilities, if the business is continued, but has not sufficient funds to meet its immediate obligations.

Certain creditors are pressing claims and threatening to sue and attach the property, forcing immediate liquidation and working great harm, the petition states. It is doubtful whether a forced sale would realize enough to pay the debts, the petition adds.

Liabilities of the Heine company are listed as $1,431,896.33, with assets valued in excess of $3,000,000.

When request was made by an attorney for immediate appointment of a receiver, Judge Feris put it off until Monday, remarking: "If this is a foot race, I want to see the starter."

The Heine company has a local plant at 5319 Shreve avenue, and another in Phoenixville, Pa.

POLICEMAN ARRESTED, ACCUSED OF DRIVING AUTO WHILE DRUNK

Patrolman Clarence Rose of Maplewood Runs Into Parked Car; Two Women Hurt.

Clarence Rose, Maplewood policeman, was arrested by St. Louis police and booked "suspected of careless driving, felonious wounding and driving while intoxicated," after an automobile he was driving had crashed into the rear of a parked car in front of 5830 Columbia avenue last midnight.

In the other car were Paul Roberts, 3305 Eads avenue, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bush, 726 Dover place, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry McKnight, 3459 Utah street. The women were cut and bruised.

Police reported Rose was examined at City Hospital and found to have been drinking. Rose denied being intoxicated and insisted the collision resulted from his car skidding on the icy pavement.

ALL CLEWS FAIL, MOGLER MURDER INQUEST CLOSED

Open Verdict of Homicide Returned by Coroner in Case of State Senator Slain 19 Days Ago.

A Coroner's verdict of homicide at the hands of persons unknown was returned today in the case of State Senator Joseph Mogler, movie theater owner and bondsman, who was shot to death by one of two masked men in his Mogler Theater, 3936 North Ninth street, Dec. 2.

During the 19 days elapsed since the unexplained murder, the inquest had been continued twice by Coroner Dever for further police investigation. Today Detective-Sergeant Thomas J. Moran, in charge of the investigation, repeated his testimony of last Saturday that no definite information pointing to a motive for the crime or the identity of the slayers had been developed.

The session was brief with Moran as the only witness. He told the Coroner he had been devoting his full time to the Mogler case. Lately, he said, his time had been taken up with "the work of elimination," resulting in the belief that he had dismissed a number of extraneous theories and clews. "We intend to continue the investigation," he said, "and we are hopeful that eventually we will arrive at a solution."

Since Mogler was killed many made the janitor a prisoner and theories, clews and tips have been investigated by detectives in the case, and dozens of men and women who knew him have been questioned. Beyond the known fact that two men entered the theater, killed the Senator as he walked into the theater lobby, no definite information has been obtained.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles: that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Program Pests and Ticket Peddlers.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THERE is hardly a day but what hundreds of St. Louis business and professional people are called upon by solicitors, both professional and volunteer, to buy space in programs, unofficial directories, song books and other one-time publications, of little or no value from an advertising standpoint. In addition to the program and ticket-selling racket, many merchants are asked to contribute cash or merchandise to a bazar, dance, entertainment or some equally worthy enterprise. Just why organizations should be given something for nothing has never been explained. Perhaps the immortal P. T. Barnum could in his day, but why bring that up? The average business man of today might refuse to send his own employes to a dance, bazar or entertainment, yet he is being constantly bothered, harassed and sometimes actually forced into helping a group whose members, in many instances, have an income equal to or exceeding his.

I do not refer to bequests to organized charities, as these are mostly worthy and few of us refuse their call upon our purses. The Better Business Bureau renders a most praiseworthy service in keeping the public advised through the press of the many and varied money-raising schemes in which the sale of tickets and so-called advertising space constitute an important part. In addition to the good work of the Better Business Bureau, something should be done to curb the activities of countless program pests and ticket peddlers, whose species of solicitation forces the struggling business man to contribute to a bunch of merry-makers on the basis of reciprocity which is seldom exemplified to a profitable degree.

Program advertising and the purchase of tickets may be considered good will, but confidence does not have to be purchased where good service is rendered and where prices are right. I doubt if there has ever been a program that compelled a merchant advertising therein to summon the police to hold back the crowd at his store. Advertising in newspapers and other recognized mediums has in some instances been responsible for the condition described, and it is these agencies that should continue to merit the support of business people generally, as against the other type which is far from being productive of profitable results.

ARCHIBALD CALDWELL.

Newspapers and Regulation.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IN the issue of Dec. 17 "A Subscriber" writes that he would like to see newspapers required to publish public statements of earnings, be controlled by a commission, and have advertising rates fixed by a commission.

The subscriber's statement plainly showed that he knows little of newspaper management when he advocates control by commissions as public utilities in the true sense. The newspaper is a public utility, rendering a great service at a modest price. It cannot, however, be compared with electricity, telephones, etc.

Public utilities are operated under franchises, protecting them from other competing companies. While newspapers are necessary, they are not necessarily essential in the same sense as public utilities as defined by law. Newspapers are essential for progress, but no publisher can say "pay or be ruined."

If a law was enacted to require rules such as the subscriber suggested it would be fatal to small publications that sometimes lose money seven months out of the year. I speak as a small town editor.

CALEB C. WATSON JR.

Lake City, Ark.

That Terrible Mr. Legge.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

SOMEBODY tie a can to that Legge who is kicking up such a rumpus. How did Herb ever pick such a person to head the Farm Commission?

Now, lissen. If that baby says that the Government can lend money at 3½ per cent to the farmer against commodities in warehouse, what I want to know is, how can the Government refuse to lend money at the same rate to any organized groups against the same security—goods in storage?

What are we bankers going to do—forget about the grain commission men, for the moment—just think of us bankers. Now we get along this way: a bunch of us chip in a million dollars and open a bank. We get $9,000,000 deposits, and have $10,000,000 to lend. We can lend say at 6 per cent. We pay our depositors from nothing up to say 4 per cent. So we have gross revenue of say $600,000, and have say $270,000 to pay as interest on our deposits, leaving us $330,000 gross, annually, on our million invested, 33 per cent profit (which is about the average for the banks of the U. S. A.) Now I ask you, man to man, where are we going to get this gravy if Legge gets by with his 3½ per cent direct to the farmer?

This is sheer bolshevism. I want to tell you, gentlemen, that we bankers are the brain, bone, sinew, nerves and I will go even so far as to say, the gall of the body politic, and Legge is striking at our very solar plexus!

J. PIERMONT BORGIN.

TWO UNHAPPY APPOINTMENTS.

A most depressing incident is Mr. Hoover's appointment to the Federal bench of Albert L. Watson of Pennsylvania and Richard J. Hopkins of Kansas. There is ample evidence that neither man is qualified for the important lifelong position of District Judge and that both appointments are dictated by purely political considerations. The incident sharply contradicts Mr. Hoover's announced purpose to divorce government from patronage, and his effort to guard the Federal bench particularly from unworthy Judges.

Fred E. Britten, Florida Republican, was severely rebuked by Mr. Hoover in a letter made public Oct. 21. The President acknowledged that the chief executive was primarily responsible for the appointment of men "who will execute the laws of the United States with integrity and without fear, favor or political collusion." He pointed out to Mr. Britten that the "success of the Republican party rests upon good government, not on patronage." This was in response to Mr. Britten's demand that the Florida Republican organization be permitted to dictate appointments, irrespective of merit.

Earlier in the year Mr. Hoover announced that he would make public the names of the more prominent officials and citizens who indorse candidates for appointment to the Federal judiciary, a plan which would end the political practice of public officials indorsing one man and privately working for another.

It thus comes as a shock that Mr. Hoover would defer to the powerful Pennsylvania and Kansas organizations in the matter of Hopkins and Watson. From all appearances, Mr. Hoover is not keen about either man but failed to resist the importunities of the Dave Reeds, Allens and Cappers who furthered their candidacies. Attorney General Mitchell, to whom the records of the two men were referred, "recommended" them with the greatest reluctance and only after tremendous political pressure had been brought to bear in their behalf. Mr. Mitchell said of Watson:

"The candidate is not all that I could wish, but he is the best I could find to solve the problem."

He told a Senate committee that he was profoundly dissatisfied with Watson's qualifications.

Watson is called "the appointee of the Pennsylvania Railroad" because his principal sponsor was President W. W. Atterbury of the Pennsylvania. The Pennsylvania has 17,000 employes and 2500 miles of track in the district over which the new Judge will preside. It was argued in behalf of Watson that the fact he owes his appointment as Judge largely to Atterbury's influence would not affect his judicial decisions in cases involving the Pennsylvania, but the association is at least one tending to lower the dignity of the Federal bench. Nor is Watson's legal career impressive. He abandoned it for two years to become a bond salesman, and much of his practice has been in the trivial matter of uncontested divorce cases.

Hopkins' record is unsavory. He is a fanatical dry and, while Attorney General of Kansas, accepted money from the Anti-Saloon League for making speeches. He claimed that this was merely expense money. In any case, the records show he received 24 checks from the dry organization, five for $100 each, one for $150, and the rest for smaller amounts. As a member of the Kansas Supreme Court he was guilty of an astonishing opinion declaring in effect that the State's Attorney General had power to grant immunity for a crime in advance of its perpetration if, in his opinion, such action would aid in the enforcement of the prohibition laws. Official records in Topeka disclose that Hopkins, as Attorney General, did not comply with the law requiring him to report and account for fees collected by his office in the prosecution of liquor and gambling cases. No point of personal honesty is involved in the last charge, but only a certain negligence about complying with law hardly in keeping with the standards which should be required of a Federal Judge.

It is said Mr. Hoover implored Senators Allen and Capper of Kansas to withdraw Hopkins' name, but they refused to do so, and in the end the President backed down. Both appointments prove that even so independent and well-meaning a President as Mr. Hoover could not, or would not, withstand the desires of professional politicians intent upon having their way about Federal patronage. The result is that the Federal bench, whose increasingly important functions make any let-up of its standards exceedingly dangerous, is saddled with two men who do not belong on it.

AIR MAPS FOR TAX ASSESSMENT.

Boston, we learn from Capper's Monthly Magazine, has enlisted the aid of aerial photography in the business of tax assessment. The city is to be mapped from the air, section by section, with the object of discovering property which has "never been seen by the assessor, much less listed by him." We are inclined to believe that an assessor unable to see property from the ground would not be helped greatly by an air map. On the other hand, an air map might be useful in the complex business of assigning values to various sections of a large city. We pass on the idea to Assessor Gehner for whatever it may be worth. A splendid air map of St. Louis, made by army aviators, is available.

The Mexican army, it is announced, will be reduced by one-third. That should put most of the Generals on the pension rolls.

BLUE LAWS FOR OLD SHEP.

The reformers, having had more or less success in curbing the immoral checker players of La Crosse, Wis., the wicked cigarette advertisers of Lynn, Mass., and other decadent specimens of homo sapiens, now have turned their attention to the animal kingdom. Their first uplift is directed toward the dogs of Mount Pleasant, Utah. A curfew law has been enacted, and if Old Shep is found wandering about after 6 p. m., his owner will have to pay a $25 fine, with Shep probably landing in the workhouse. Only circus dogs ever learn to tell time, and they probably never put that talent to any practical use, so wrist watches and engagement pads for the pets of Mount Pleasant wouldn't help much. One of our oldest proverbs gives every dog his day, and every boy knows that this does not end at 6 o'clock, for a lot of unfinished business generally is on hand at that time. Even announcing feeding time as 5:45 sharp will not always fetch Old Shep safely home from tree-lance rabbit chasing before the curfew tolls.

The reason for the Mount Pleasant ordinance is that sheep are said to have been bothered by night-prowling dogs. The Utah sheepmen must be losing their ancient virility and resourcefulness. In the past they have always known how to handle sheep-killing dogs without calling for the help of the bluenoses.

COMMUNITY FUND PROSPECTS.

There is good reason for elation in St. Louis over the success of the campaign for the 1930 Community Fund. The unprecedented goal of $2,000,000 was not only attained but was exceeded, by $17,617. Thus St. Louis meets the greater need of the destitute and the disabled for the year to come, a need which was emphasized in the campaign and undoubtedly stimulated giving. The city also has shown definitely that it does not want to go back to the old wasteful system of solicitation by each agency alone, but prefers the convenience and economy of operation insured by one concerted effort.

The fact that the campaign surpassed all previous efforts both in the total pledged and in the percentage of increase over the year before does not mean that it was an easier task than in the past. On the contrary, it was more difficult, coming at a time of business uncertainty and having as its background a sizable deficit as well as a depressing record of only lukewarm successes too often in the past. However, these apparent obstacles served to spur on the workers in impressing the public with the needs of the city's charitable and social agencies. In the fund campaigners' hard work and the citizens' sympathetic response lies the secret of the drive's fine success.

The $2,000,000 goal was determined by figuring the minimum budgets of the 51 agencies which benefit from the Community Fund. The total covers the deficit from last year's fund, so it will be seen that while the citizens have been generous, the fund is not lavish. Next year, unless another deficit is incurred meanwhile, the fund will be able to "start even," with $2,000,000 as the tentative minimum goal.

Perhaps the most reassuring feature of the campaign just ended is the great number of large contributions. Of these gifts, $200,000 are pledged for duplication in 1931 and 1932, affording a splendid nucleus for future efforts. With our wealthier citizens convinced of the fund's merits and giving accordingly, the task is lightened, and further, a burden is removed from citizens of lesser income. With the impetus given by the large pledges and the excellent service of all concerned in the campaign just closed, the future of the Community Fund for continuing its good works seems very bright indeed.

TRAFFIC.

In his column on Wednesday, O. O. McIntyre turned aside from inconsequentials to commend Police Commissioner Whalen's solution of a traffic problem which, he says, was "slowly strangling theatrical life" in New York. The Whalen regulations were at the outset profusely derided and denounced, but chaos has apparently been resolved into order. A journey that formerly consumed a fretful hour is now accomplished, by actual timing, in 16 minutes.

Is there a Whalen in St. Louis to disentangle our traffic knots? This city is glutted with congested points where movement is at times laborious, difficult and dangerous. There are corners unpoliced and without signals where motorists and pedestrians are frequently on the edge of accident. Our parking privileges are lavishly bestowed, but we pay the price. We pay in the way of obstructed traffic and lost time, and we also pay in cash. Our liability insurance rates are excessive in comparison with those of many other cities of our class. These rates, so insurance people explain, are necessitated by inadequate regulations inadequately enforced. Experienced motorists say that driving is easier and safer in Chicago, for example, notwithstanding its greater volume of traffic, than in St. Louis.

More traffic officers—a traffic code competently drafted to meet conditions—enforcement of traffic laws—lower insurance rates. In that program lies the solution of our serious and costly traffic problem.

A MEMORABLE VISIT.

St. Louis, and particularly those persons concerned with the Symphony Orchestra, have reason to be deeply grateful to E. Fernandez Arbos, whose term as guest conductor will end with tonight's concert. Under the leadership of Mr. Arbos, since the beginning of the season in November, the local orchestra has achieved a high measure of excellence. Moreover, a true cosmopolitan, Mr. Arbos has introduced symphony audiences to a wide range of composers, both classic and contemporary. And while he has given his hearers a new concept of the recent music of his own Spain, he has not been a special pleader, for it is scarcely an exaggeration to say that he conducts Brahms like a German and Debussy like a Frenchman.

There is still another cause for gratitude. Had it not been for Mr. Arbos, St. Louis and, for that matter, the United States, probably never would have seen the flashing grace of La Argentina. It was he who persuaded the Spanish dancer that a wider field of appreciation awaited her if only she would venture out of Spain. In the course of a career that has taken him to nearly every country in the world, Mr. Arbos has come to know all the outstanding personalities of music. He was a pupil of the great Joachim. It is to be hoped that he can be persuaded to come again to St. Louis.

IS BISHOP CANNON NEWS?

Bishop James Cannon Jr. of the Methodist Church South went to Los Angeles for the purpose of aiding his son and daughter-in-law, who were charged with mismanagement of the Cannon Military Academy. The charges were dismissed later. Outside the courtroom photographers and talking movie men attempted to take pictures of the Bishop. He resented their efforts, grappled with one of them (the dispatches do not make it clear as to how successful a grappler the Bishop was), and shouted: "What right have you to take my picture?"

Of course, no man need have his picture taken unless he so desires, and photographers are often unduly persuasive. But a photographer's right to attempt to take a picture depends on whether the subject is of news value. Is Bishop Cannon of news value? Yes. His role of prime bigot and his activities as breeder of intolerance in a presidential campaign, not to mention his dealings with a bucketshop, have easily qualified him for headline fame. If he had not been so loud of mouth and so greedy of purse, no photographers would be bothering him now.

This weather might be appreciated by Byrd, Mawson and Wilkins.

"WE'VE GIVEN THE PEOPLE TWO FEDERAL JUDGES FOR CHRISTMAS!"

Is Corn 'Husked' or Is It 'Shucked'?

Missouri editor spurns barbarous phrase "to husk," of New England origin, used in Kansas, Iowa and Illinois; stands up for descriptive and muscal term "shuck," handed down from State's Virginia-Kentucky ancestors; words refer to different parts of the grain; "corn-shucking" festival has long, honorable history in State.

Tom Bodine in the Paris (Mo.) Mercury.

WE again, as is our habit, arise to dissent. They may "husk" corn in Kansas, Iowa and Illinois, but in the sovereign State of Missouri we "shuck" it.

We came through Cumberland Gap, and the Plymouth idiom has no place in our speech. "Shuck" is both phonetically and descriptively the better word of the two. Its rough sibilancy more nearly conveys the sound resulting when the outer covering is stripped or torn from an ear of Indian maize. It tears upward through the larnyx like sound English speech ought to do and cannot be forced through even the catarrhal chambers of a New England nose.

For this reason we are astounded that the national corn-shucking contest at Platte City, Mo. once the home of Virginia and Kentucky seandees, should be advertised over a nation-wide radio hook-up as "a corn-husking contest." That's New England talk and we are of the Tidewater and the Blue Grass.

In the idiom the tall, long-flanked men from these delectable regions brought across the river with them, a husk was the hard outer shell of grain, and was separated in the milling process—it is called bolting—into bran. Corn bran, a comparatively recent by-product, sells higher today than wheat bran.

Referring to that final authority on standard English, the King James translation of the Holy Bible, we find that the Prodigal Son had been living on "husks." That is, he had been eating the hard outer shell of the grain which the hogs had cracked off with their teeth and had left on the feeding ground as "chaff." The learned translators did not say he had lived on shucks, because he hadn't done any such thing. There were no shucks in "that country," wherever it was, and he could not have eaten them if there had been.

We doubt if the word "shuck," like "husk" of unknown origin, was in general use at the time of the King James' translation. It crept into use, no doubt, with the advent of Indian maize, or American corn, as a staple on the world market, and the latter is the only grain we know of that has both husk and shuck well defined. The two words are not interchangeable in referring to it, and the Jamestown arrangement, compared to that of Plymouth, has the advantage both of better phonetics and common sense.

To the Virginia-Kentucky Missourian—the best of the breed—husking grain means cracking off the hard outer shell, though he has never liked the word or used it, and this was either done at the mill, or at home, in Indian fashion, in making that vanished and delectable delicacy, lye hominy. He either shucked his corn as he gathered it in the field or hauled it to the barn lot, made a great pile of it, placed a jug or two jugs of whisky at the apex, and invited his neighbors and their niggers over to make a night of it when the skies were clear and the moon full.

They divided into "sides," each with a captain, and working on opposite sides of the huge pile, shucked toward the whisky. White and black, master and slave, worked shoulder to shoulder in friendly rivalry, singing as they strove. Negroes came for miles to a "corn shucking," and the music of their songs, echoing among the hills, heralded their coming.

It is a tradition as well as an idiom we defend, the heritage of folk poetry and folk legend, sucked from the breast of a Kentucky-Missouri mother, we insist on perpetuating through that idiom. The Plymouth stem can have "husk" and keep it, with whatsoever of legend and poetry may be associated with the word in the New England mind.

* * *

But when a Lieutenant-Governor representing the unfortunate Republican interregnum in Missouri and with a larynx that belongs by rights below the Ohio River and south of Gettysburg stands before a microphone and tells the world about "husking corn" in Missouri and a nasal-toned visitor from Kansas refers to a "husking bee" in Missouri, it is time for protest on the part of every true Kentucky-Virginia Missourian. It is such misrepresentation as will cause the ghosts of Benton, Vest, Cockrell, Stone, Clark, Doniphan, Shelby and Price to leap from the mold and stalk forth.

In Missouri corn will forever be shucked.

The Ax in Arden

From the Manchester Guardian Weekly.

THE latest threat to the face of England must disturb the complacency even of the most careless. For the ax threatens the woodland where Shakspeare walked, and villadom prepares to occupy the spinneys where he saw Puck's impish face peeping from behind oak and ash. The land on each side of the approach to Stratford from Warwick is for sale. It is one of the few highroads of which we may still be proud. An English scene, so perfect in its quiet beauty that even the tramcar and the hurrying cars that cut across it cannot displace its ancient loveliness, prepares the wayfarer for Stratford itself.

The other approaches to that town of pilgrimage, whether one makes entry from Oxford, Banbury or Evesham, are already largely ruined by rash building. But here, with old trees, lush meadows and the Avon itself for company, one finds a fitting entry to a famous scene. Is it to become the sport of the casual builder, and end by revealing no more of Arden than does a London suburb? The fact that such a fate is possible and even likely is a sharp reminder that we are deplorably laggard in urging local authority to use the powers that it possesses.

Nothing can arrest the large changes in the face of England that economic circumstances dictate. But at least the worst features of them can be checked. If the Warwickshire Council were awake to its responsibilities, a regional planning scheme would by now have made the ruin of such an area impossible.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.

PREDICTIONS were freely made, w... Vice President Curtis became presi... officer of the United States Senate, t... Senators were about to embark on an in... tensive study of parliamentary etiquette.

They had become a little lax in this re... spect while Charlie Dawes wielded the gav... "Hell and Maria" had been rather lavish... with them and inclined to let them have a good time when debate became heated. And, while Senators realized that Curt... knew them too well to employ two-fist... methods, nevertheless they fully recognize... that he had something closely akin to a passion for strict order when business was at hand.

The prophets were not wrong. It is doubtful if the Senate ever had a more strict presiding officer than the swarthy Kansan.

An incident which occurred during the Vare episode in the Senate is typical of his zealous Curtis is in this respect.

* * *

AT one time during debate, Robinson Bingham and Fess were on their feet seeking recognition from the chair. Norris was calling for a vote on his resolution to deny Vare his seat, and Heflin was adding to the confusion by asking for the yeas and nays. The Senate was in an uproar when Reed arose to make the point of order that the Senate was in disorder. Waterman and Shortridge joined the throng seeking recognition.

Down came Curtis' gavel with a resounding thud, and his voice boomed: "Let Senators take their seats."

All obeyed but Bingham, who repeated his request of: "Mr. President—"

Curtis brought his gavel down with greater emphasis, and again his voice boomed: "Senators will please take their seats."

Bingham ignored the order, and still standing, his face a bit flushed, again addressed the chair. It is a wonder that the resounding board on the Vice President's dais held up under the force of Curtis' blow with the gavel this time. In a voice that echoed through the chamber, he again commanded: "Senators will please take their seats!"

* * *

BINGHAM thought better of it by this time, and reluctantly sat down. Probably he thought next time Curtis would put the Sergeant-at-arms on him.

Once Bingham had taken his seat and order was restored, Curtis deliberately paused almost a minute until the chamber was absolutely quiet. Then, in a voice that was almost gentle, he said: "The chair recognizes the Senator from Colorado (Waterman)."

Probably a half-hour later Curtis relinquished the chair and strolled out to the Republican cloakroom. There he met Bingham, chatting with Cousens of Michigan. "Charlie," said Cousens, "I guess Hiram would be standing now if you hadn't gotten a little bit rough with him."

The three laughed. Bingham remarked that he thought he was within his rights, and for that reason he continued to stand. Curtis explained the situation.

IN AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF CALVIN COOLIDGE. (Cosmopolitan Book Corporation.)

THE town of Plymouth, Calvin Coolidge tells us, lies on the western slope of the Green Mountains, about 20 miles west of the Connecticut River, and somewhat south of the central part of Vermont. It was into this community, he adds, that he was born on the fourth day of July, 1872.

Having read so much, one has a correct foretaste of what the autobiography of Calvin Coolidge is going to be like. If one, by any chance, has come looking for romantic and stirring narrative in the story of the Vermont boy who became President, there is no use going on. But if one is looking for an autobiography that is not at all like any other that comes to hand, this is it, and one cannot do better than read on. It is doubtful if ever a President or other great man of earth, telling the story of his life, has achieved such restraint and simplicity. One reason may be that nobody else ever tried, but then if it had been tried, nobody could have done it as well as Calvin Coolidge has done it without trying. It is not to be doubted, for instance, that if another, less ingenuous, had been telling the tale, it would have been hard to forbear investing with foreshadowing significance the first visit to legislative halls, when our hero was taken at the age of three years and four months by Grandfather Calvin Galusha Coolidge to the State House at Montpelier and placed in the Governor's chair, which was much too large for him. But Calvin Coolidge was unimpressed and did not permit the incident to distract his attention from the stuffed catamount in the capital museum that had enlisted his greater interest. Nor was he swayed in the least from the ambition, already formed, to keep store, as his father had done.

Neither could it be said that in peddling popcorn and apples at the town meetings, his merchandising was a mask for a precocious interest in affairs of state. ON BOARD THE WILLIAM SCORESBY, Near Adelaide Island, Antarctica, Dec. 19 (Via S. S. Melville and KUP, San Francisco Wireless Station).—Twice last year with Eielson we crossed the high plateau and this time with Cheeseman piloting we flew the Lockheed-Vega as a seaplane over the black-faced steep cliffs of the western shore and over the 9000-foot plateau to Weddell Sea.

After weeks of setbacks and disappointments during which we were tied to the ground, we flew today for three hours at 10,000 feet and verified our dead reckoning on last year's flight.

Today clouds to 3000 feet covered Weddell Sea but its high western edge was distinguishable. We took off from the southern end of Neumeyer Channel, flew over Flanders Bay, went south along the coast of Beascoches Bay and then over Graham Land to Rochfabafen Valley, returning northward over Graham Land heights to a safe landing at Port Lockroy.

Best of all was the sight of flat ice in Beascoches Bay, which we expect to reach with the William Scoresby plane now being lifted aboard. If weather holds good, we will proceed to the ice edge, hoping soon to take off for the long flight.

THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF CALVIN COOLIDGE. (Cosmopolitan Book Corporation.)

THE little town of Plymouth, Calvin Coolidge tells us, lies on the western slope of the Green Mountains, about 20 miles west of the Connecticut River, and somewhat south of the central part of Vermont. It was into this community, he adds, that he was born on the fourth day of July, 1872.

Having read so much, one has a correct foretaste of what the autobiography of Calvin Coolidge is going to be like. If one, by any chance, has come looking for romantic and stirring narrative in the story of the Vermont boy who became President, there is no use in going on. But if one is looking for an autobiography that is not just like any other that comes to hand, this is it, and one cannot do better than read on. It is doubtful if ever a President or other great man of state, telling the story of his life, has achieved such restraint and simplicity. One reason may be that nobody else ever tried, but even if it had been tried, nobody could have done it as well as Calvin Coolidge has done it without trying.

It is not to be doubted, for instance, that if another, less ingenuous, had been telling the tale, it would have been hard to forbear investing with foreshadowing significance the first visit to legislative halls, when our hero was taken at the age of three years and four months by Grandfather Calvin Galusha Coolidge to the State House at Montpelier and placed in the Governor's chair, which was much too large for him. But Calvin Coolidge was unimpressed and did not permit the incident to distract his attention from the stuffed catamount in the capital museum that had enlisted his greater interest. Nor was he swayed in the least from the ambition, already formed, to keep store, as his father had done.

Neither could it be said that in peddling popcorn and apples at the town meetings, his merchandising was a mask for a precocious interest in affairs of state. No, he had learned from his grandmother that his father when he was a boy sold popcorn and apples at the town meetings, and he was anxious to grow up to be like his father.

However, following in his father's footsteps led him soon into paths of government, for his father was a Justice of the Peace and Notary Public and, observing him, young Calvin came to have a good working knowledge of the practical side of government, which he came to understand, he says, as consisting of restraints which the people had imposed upon themselves in order to promote the common welfare. One may be forgiven for doubting that young Calvin formulated this rather fundamental definition so early in life, but no matter.

When he was growing up there were husking bees, apple-paring bees and singing schools, parties for the young folks and an occasional dramatic exhibition by local talent, and not far away there were some public dances, but these Calvin was not permitted to attend. The atmosphere in which he grew was clean. The streams ran clear. The roads, the woods, the fields, the people—all were clean. His education began with alphabet blocks. "It is not yet finished," he says.

If, when he went away to Black River Academy to pursue higher studies, he was implicated in spiriting a domestic animal into a class room over night, it can safely be set down to mere student exuberance. It is not even admitted that he was implicated. As far as he now deems it prudent to discuss his own connection with this and similar escapades, is to say that he was never convicted and so must be presumed innocent. The young man, it will be remembered, later studied law.

In taking up the study of law Calvin Coolidge had turned aside from the ambition to keep store. Still, he planned for himself nothing greater than the career of a country lawyer, with perhaps a final place on the bench. "But it was decreed to be otherwise," he says. "Some power that I little suspected in my student days took me in charge and carried me on from the obscure neighborhood at Plymouth Notch to the occupancy of the White House."

If, as reverently implied here and another place or two in the narrative, the coming of Calvin Coolidge to the White House was providential, one cannot help wondering how Mr. Harding got there. Perhaps Mr. Coolidge would say that it is not always the case.

Now we have the true romance, for the first time, it would seem, of Calvin Coolidge and Grace Goodhue. There has been so much fiction written about this, Mr. Coolidge says, that he may be pardoned for relating the real facts. This, then, is the romance: "We thought we were made for each other. For almost a quarter of a century she has borne with my infirmities, and I have rejoiced in her graces."

It was all as simple as that, all the way to the White House. If an explanation is sought of how the Vermont farm boy became President, the answer is that he always aimed to be ready for whatever came along, and so, when he was nominated for President, he was ready. That was his simple creed, that when a duty comes, with it a power comes to enable its performance. So that when Calvin Coolidge looks back along the way he concludes that when any man is placed in the White House he cannot feel that it is the result of his own exertions or his own merit. "Some power outside and beyond him becomes manifest through him. As he contemplates the workings of his office, he comes to realize with an increasing sense of humility that he is but an instrument in the hands of God."

So the story ends, as simply as it began, and if one would carry away the secret of it all, it seems to have been the man's serene sense of sufficiency, coupled with the humility of one who feels himself to be a chosen instrument.

SOVIET EXCHANGES GUARANTEES WITH GREAT BRITAIN

Moscow Envoy and English Foreign Secretary Promise to Avoid Hostile Propaganda.

By ARTHUR E. MANN.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1929, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (The New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 21.—Ambassador Sokolnikoff of Soviet Russia, who was presented to the Prince of Wales, acting for King George yesterday, later called on Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson and they exchanged notes containing mutual guarantees against hostile propaganda by either country against the other.

The Ambassador also handed over supplementary notes giving a similar assurance regarding the British dominions.

Sir Edmund Ovey, British Ambassador to Moscow, will present his credentials there today.

After leaving the Foreign Office Sokolnikoff issued a long statement reaffirming the Russian Government's intention to keep its pledge to abstain from hostile propaganda, and detailing the large possibilities for future Anglo-Russian trade, but pointing out the necessity for the financing of Russia's purchases.

To Fulfill Obligations.

Regarding the question of propaganda, however, the Ambassador emphasized the fact of the difference between the economic and political systems of Russia and those of other countries. On this point the statement said:

"We have every intention of fulfilling loyally any obligations we undertake and at the same time we rely on the countries, friendly to us, taking into account on their side the unalterable basis of our political and economic systems. Under such circumstances it will be possible to consolidate relations between the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and Great Britain, founded as they will be on mutual benefit, and to lay a foundation of lasting and peaceful co-operation between the peoples of the two countries."

Trade and Finance.

Regarding the question of trade and finance, the statement said in part:

"The absence of normal relations between the two Governments rendered the international situation more acute and was a constant menace to the maintenance of peace. On the other hand, under such conditions it was impossible to develop stable trading relations or mutual confidence, and the well known figures for trade turnover between Great Britain and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics confirm this.

"Endeavoring to carry out more rapidly and successfully its plans of Socialist reconstruction, the Government of Soviet Russia on its side will be ready to take steps toward the settlement of the financial claims which are being made upon it, taking into account any counter claims. But whatever the steps the Soviet Government may take for this purpose, they must be directly connected with measures directly favorable to the further development and consolidation of the national economy of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

"I hope these questions will be investigated very thoroughly in the coming negotiations and that every effort will be made to find a solution to the problems confronting us."

MUSIC

Arbos' Farewell

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN.

ENFERNANDEZ ARBOS directed the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra in his final Friday afternoon concert yesterday. The program was devoted exclusively to the works of Richard Wagner and the assisting artist was Florence Austral. Everybody concerned came off well. The local band has never given such a complete and revealing disclosure of Wagner and Miss Austral proved herself one of the most richly equipped Wagnerian sopranos of this generation.

One of the articles of the American Credo, as promulgated by H. L. Mencken is that Wagner is always played fortissimo on cornets. The conductors of the blood-and-iron school, have done practically nothing to destroy that belief, alas! and it is only when one has heard the presumptively alien Wagner of a Toscanini or an Arbos that one realizes anew how much more there is to those great scores than is revealed by the casual operatic reading.

Any one who thinks that Wagner is all bluster and sensuous yearning should have heard "The Good Friday Spell" from "Parsifal" as Arbos played it. True enough the spirit that went spiralling upward in those measures was the spirit of a man, and not a demi-god, but it was a man who had been touched by the Great Mysteries. The "Meistersinger" overture would have further revealed Wagner to the unbeliever as the inspired poet-laureate of Man's everyday humors. In that music the traditional German gemuethlichkeit is given an embodiment that should stand for all time.

Arbos' whole program, which began with the aforesaid "Meistersinger" overture and ended with the Prelude and Love-Death from "Tristan," was a clinical demonstration of how a conductor can give the most serious attention to details without detracting from the effect of the whole. His orchestra was always eloquent and always in balance and his playing had, in general, that satisfying effect which usually results when an appeal to the senses is accompanied by a proportionately stronger appeal to the intellect.

Miss Austral sang "Dich Theure Halle" from "Tannhauser;" the "Liebestod" from "Tristan" and Brunhilde's Battle Cry from "Die Walkuere" as an encore. Her voice is heroically proportioned, but despite its size has the limberness of a coloratura. It is also rich and even throughout its whole range and she uses it with admirable taste.

The same program will be repeated tonight. It will be Arbos' last appearance before a St. Louis audience during the present season.

UTILITY PLANS SALE OF STOCK

BLYTHEVILLE, Ark., Dec. 20.—No public sale of stock in the Arkansas-Missouri Power Co. is contemplated, according to O. P. Moss, general manager, who issued a statement yesterday, following the announcement that the company had filed an amendment to its articles of incorporation with Jim B. Higgins, Secretary of State, increasing the capital stock to $10,000 shares of common stock of no par value and 25,000 shares of preferred stock at $11 per share.

Application for authority to sell 75,000 shares of common stock in the State at not less than $10 a share was filed by the company with the Arkansas Railroad Commission, and will be docketed for hearing at an early date. The increase of capitalization and proposed stock sale were for the financing of the company's program of improvements, much of which has already been completed.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.

ON the east side of Union Square from morning until late a stretch of sidewalk overflows with a simmering crowd that seems on the verge of boiling over any moment with suppressed excitement. They are mostly foreigners spouting old and new socialistic dreams.

Arms are flying and heads bobbing in perpetual argument. During big strikes mounted police skirt the edges to prevent outbreaks. The open forum centers directly in front of a co-operative cafeteria known as Prolectos, which has been dubbed the Red Stronghold.

Prolectos is the only successful communistic cafeteria in the country—the mecca for thousands of fur, dress and other garment workers seeking a panacea for the ills of the world. They have been drawn here from out of the myriad candle sputtering cellar cafes where they formerly held forth.

The presiding genius is an obscure garment worker whose real name is not known. He coined Prolectos out of a combination of "proletarian" and "co-operative." The restaurant is commodious, glittering with light, and serves well-cooked satisfying foods.

Six hundred stockholders are given a 10 per cent reduction in the price of food. But, despite the success of the place, no dividends are declared. Instead, a directors' meeting is held and profits are used for new improvements. Thus does it grow amazingly.

More than 5000 customers are fed daily. There are few times a day when one does not have to wait for a table. While many go there as sightseers, the majority belong to some communistic cult. When a visiting radical hits town, he immediately goes there.

Fiery young students in Latin Quarter hats and flowing ties hold forth in little table groups, sighing over a capitalistic world gone mad. Once in a while one in a frenzy of outrage will leap to a table top and declaim. And Union Square will ring with cheers.

I KNOW a fellow who can pass one of those "Fun, Magic and Mystery" shops without stopping in or even looking in the window, the old will-powered such-and-such.

A FREQUENTLY resurrected Sunday feature story concerns the wattled beldames and doughty Colonels of another day clinging to their jeweled snuff boxes for a pinch now and then. But tobacco shops along Fifth, Madison and Park avenue declare there is not one call for snuff in a year. About the only snuff sold is among seafaring men along South street and a few foreigners on the lower east side. In 1875 there were 20 snuff factories in New York. The lone reminder of these is an abandoned snuff mill standing as a landmark in Helvetia, N. J.

HOWEVER, love charms still sell along such utterly civilized sections as Riverside Drive. Two or three hawkers of love philters make a living in such fashion. They are sold chiefly to lovesick gobs on shore leave. The prices range from 50 cents to $1, and when the fleet comes in the peddlers reap a harvest.

FOR an hour I have been trying to think of the most interesting observation in New York during the week. And the incident standing out most vividly is a rather spruce gentleman of middle years who suddenly detached himself from the orderly pavement flow, hopped over a fire plug leap-frog fashion and turned back into the parade with dignity.

MANY of us, I believe, frequently curb such urges. I never pass a stone wall without experiencing an almost uncontrollable desire to balance myself tight rope fashion along its top. Some day, too, I'm going to make a few payments down on a wheel chair and try it.

"What has become," telegraphs L. T. L., "of Charles M. Schwab, the eldest of the Happiness Boys?"

CHILDREN'S DRAWINGS PUT ON EXHIBIT AT ART MUSEUM

Pictures Made by Pupils From Paintings on View in the Galleries.

The best of about 500 drawings made by children who have attended the drawing period preceding the Story Hour each Saturday at the Art Museum were placed on exhibition today in Gallery 25 and will remain over Sunday.

Most of the drawings are crude enough in themselves, but are interesting because they indicate the interest children have taken in the museum and the varying impressions they have gained from studying its features. Subjects for all the drawings were chosen from paintings or objects on view in the galleries.

Ruth Farrell, 13-year-old Central High School Student who lives at 7125 Emilie street, was awarded first prize for the girls' group, and John Pingree, 10 years old, of 5920 West Park avenue, won first prize in the boys' group. Second prizes were gained by Mary Jane Manning, 9 years old, who lives in a houseboat 3900 north, and Edward Montgomery, 12-year-old Negro, of 4322 Cook avenue. Prizes were items of drawing equipment.

PROF. WUERPEL AGAIN ATTACKS LYON STATUE

Monument Which Sculptor Calls Symbolistic to Be Unveiled Tomorrow.

The Gen. Nathaniel Lyon monument is an artistic waif unclaimed by either the "despised old" or the "misunderstood new," Prof. Edmund H. Wuerpel, director of the School of Fine Arts of Washington University, declared in a letter made public today.

Prof. Wuerpel, who was first to direct public attention to local artists' views of the monument, which is to be unveiled at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow at Grand and Pine boulevards, made sharp answer to Mayor Miller's remark, "If the people don't like it, they don't have to look at it."

"Does the head of the city government think," asked Prof. Wuerpel, "that he rises above right and wrong simply because he has been elected to office?"

Erhart Siebert, 2232 South Grand boulevard, sculptor, for whose commission the Camp Jackson Union Soldiers' Monument Association raised $15,000 by popular subscription, defends the monument as a new symbolism. He explained that he visualized the crisis faced by Gen. Lyon as a chasm across state progress, and that the horse was straining back while the rider reconnoitered.

"The claim that this mass of metal and stone is something new and has been conceived along symbolic and modernistic ideals," Prof. Wuerpel replied, "is not upheld upon viewing the achievement. It is neither modern nor has it any symbolism."

He pointed out that the sculptor had chosen to convey form by realism, which left "not the vaguest excuse for atrocious craftsmanship," and added, "One cannot even mitigate the harshness of this conclusion by saying it is badly done because it was meant to be symbolic.

"A symbol is something which replaces the actual. Can anyone point out in what way symbolism has been employed? No—there is no ground for either the much despised old school or the much misunderstood new school to stand upon.

"It is bad from whichever angle one cares to view it—form, design, expression or suggestion. Those things simply do not exist.

"To place such a work in a prominent place where it will be seen, nilly-willy, by he who passes, is a grave responsibility. The admonition that those need not look who do not like is an absurd syllogism. No lord nor Mayor nor critic dare contend that this is a worthy defense.

"Everyone has the liberty to demand what his sense tells him is right. There can be no hiding one's head in visionary sand piles. It is or it is not right to impose badness upon an unsuspecting populace, and it is not right to stamp a fine, progressive city with the badge of incompetence.

"I am sorry to wound the feelings of a fellow craftsman, sorry to hurt anyone who has honestly tried. But in this instance it is more than a man whom we consider: it is a cause.

"The monument is unpardonably inadequate; it is bad."

CAPT. WILKINS FLIES TO WEDDELL SEA

Leaves Neumeyer Channel and Returns Over Graham Land Heights.

This story is published exclusively in St. Louis in the Post-Dispatch. All news stories from members of the Wilkins party or from special correspondents assigned to it will appear only in the Post-Dispatch in this city.

ON BOARD THE WILLIAM SCORESBY, Near Adelaide Island, Antarctica, Dec. 19 (Via S. S. Melville and KUP, San Francisco Wireless Station).—Twice last year with Eielson we crossed the high plateau and this time with Cheeseman piloting we flew the Lockheed-Vega as a seaplane over the black-faced steep cliffs of the western shore and over the 9000-foot plateau to Weddell Sea.

After weeks of setbacks and disappointments during which we were tied to the ground, we flew today for three hours at 10,000 feet and verified our dead reckoning on last year's flight.

Today clouds to 3000 feet covered Weddell Sea but its high western edge was distinguishable. We took off from the southern end of Neumeyer Channel, flew over Flanders Bay, went south along the coast of Beascochea Bay and then over Graham Land to Rochtshaller Valley, returning northward over Graham Land heights to a safe landing at Port Lockroy.

Best of all was the sight of flat ice in Beascochea Bay, which we expect to reach with the William Scoresby plane now being lifted aboard. If weather holds good, we will proceed to the ice edge, hoping soon to take off for the long flight.

FUNERAL SERVICES TODAY FOR JACOB PORTER TIRRILL

Former President of Graham Paper Co. Died of Heart Attack.

Funeral services for Jacob Porter Tirrill, former president of the Graham Paper Co., who died suddenly at his home yesterday morning, were held at the residence on the St. Louis Country Club grounds this afternoon. Burial was private in Bellefontaine Cemetery, the Rev. William Crowe, of Westminster Presbyterian Church conducting the services.

Mr. Tirrill, who was 66 years old, succumbed to a heart attack. Retired from business since 1926, he had devoted most of his time to travel and charitable activities. He was a member of the St. Luke's Hospital Board and fostered many of the social welfare undertakings of the Presbyterian church.

Born at Alton, he came to St. Louis in his early youth and entered the employment of the Graham Paper Co. as a clerk. At 23 was one of the most successful traveling salesmen the firm ever had. In 1890 he became secretary of the company, and in 1905 was elected vice president. He was president from 1912 until his retirement three years ago. Each year since his retirement he had traveled over the territory he once visited as a salesman.

Mr. Tirrill is survived by his widow, Mrs. Frances Allison Tirrill, two brothers and one sister. Officers of the paper company will serve as pallbearers.

BLAMES CHURCH-GOERS FOR UNBELIEF OF OUTSIDERS

Failure to Try to Live Up to Ideals Discourages Others, Says Rabbi Thurman.

Insincerity and lack of conviction on the part of the religionists cause other men to question religion, doubt the existence of God and become unbelievers, Rabbi Samuel Thurman said last night in his weekly Friday night sermon at United Hebrew Temple.

"This is especially true of many of our young people today," Rabbi Thurman continued. "They have in reality high ideals and seek articulated expression of these ideals of righteousness and justice and honor among the adherents of the various denominations of religion, and, alas, they are disappointed to find the latter often woefully lacking ideals of any sort."

Speaking of a recent speech delivered here by Prof. Harry Elmer Barnes, sociologist, the Rabbi said: "Prof. Barnes minimizes the importance of the planet upon which we live. That, in my opinion, is no ground for scientific argument against religion. The greatest mistake Barnes makes is that the primary essential of religion is belief in God. Our answer is that religion is concerned far more with the search for God and his truth than with belief in Him."

BASS STOPS MORGAN IN 2 ROUNDS TO WIN JUNIOR LIGHTWEIGHT TITLE

PURSES OF BOXERS ORDERED HELD UP BY COMMISSIONER AS RESULT OF RUMORS ABOUT BETTING ODDS

By Ed Van Every
Of the New York World Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Benny Bass is the "big fish" today in the junior lightweight fistic pond. The new king of the 130-pounders needed only nine seconds less than four minutes to knock Tod Morgan loose from his crown and his consciousness. But it would not surprise me if last night's championship affair should cause whispering and lifting of eyebrows and that sort of thing. For it is said that the challenger was a favorite in the betting as high as four to one. Immediately after the contest James A. Farley, chairman of the Boxing Commission, ordered the purses of the contestants held up.

To some it was so good it looked bad. What is going to cause a lot of questioning is—why should a boxer of such superb skill as Morgan's and who has knocked out but few opponents, deliberately try for a knockout almost with the opening bell, and against an opponent who is regarded as about the most dangerous hitter in the game for his weight and inches.

Bass got over the first real punch, a left hook to the jaw, but before the contest was one minute old Tod was going after Benny with an aggressiveness that was altogether foreign to his usual style. He leaped in suddenly with a long right that landed high to the head and seemed to have Bass quite dazed. Benny started fighting behind a shell of arms and elbows and Morgan, who ordinarily relies on a masterly left, was cutting loose with one long right after another. Two more of these rights connected clean to the head and Bass was badly jarred. The way the first round went it looked as though there was a strong likelihood that Morgan would pull a surprise by retaining his title by putting the challenger away. The challenger was outboxed and outfought in the first three minutes.

And Then Comes the Finish.

Then with the second round only 51 seconds gone, it was all over and there was a new champion. But, make no mistake, there was no doubt about Morgan being knocked out, clean and decisively. Morgan came right out to take the play and after a few seconds of fast sparring let loose with one more right. Then it happened, the beginning of the end.

As the Seattle boy started his right, Bass at the same instant sprang in like a cat, his right swished out and curved his fist flush to the point of the jaw. Over went Tod on his back and stretched out as though he would not be able to get up inside of the count of 10. At nine, however, he came up off the canvas, but it was plain to see that he had not far to go.

Bass was on the champion with a rush and shot a left to the head that sent Tod reeling back. Again Bass leaped in and let loose with his right as part of his spring. This one found the mark and was a blow that might have felled a heavyweight for keeps. The impact of the smash lifted Morgan a couple of inches from the floor and sent him flying over on his side. With the count of seven he squirmed around to his knees and at 10 made an attempt to get up, but immediately fell over on his face.

In explanation of the betting, it should be said that Morgan has been fighting in poor form all year, while Bass has been fighting better than ever. Practically every boxing expert predicted a change of title. It should be said that Morgan was a slight favorite in the early betting and that the odds did not start to sway so strongly toward Bass until the heavy influx of Philadelphia money reached here today. So far as I could discern the fight was on the up and up. I'll say this: If the fight wasn't on the level the knockout was.

What the Principals Said.

"I was sure I would win," said Benny Bass after the contest. "I have been fighting better than ever this year and I went into the ring under the belief that Morgan was pretty well washed up. He has been beaten by quite a few second raters. Too much confidence almost got me in trouble in the first round, for I was clipped with a right to the temple that did not do me any good. I was hurt, but not as badly as I pretended. I played foxy for the rest of the first round so as to let Tod get gay with his right and he fell right into the trap."

Back in his dressing room after he had his title wrested from him Tod Morgan was so choked up he could not speak. His manager, Frank Churchill, said that Tod had fought a very foolish fight.

"When Tod came back to his corner at the end of the first round," stated Churchill, "we told him he was making a mistake by throwing so many rights. But he insisted that he had Bass hurt and that he believed he could knock him out. I told him never mind trying for a knockout, just go out and win the decision and look out for his right. I told him Bass was too dangerous a puncher to shoot at with rights. He used his own head and he got it."

James A. Farley, chairman of the State Athletic Commission, in ordering the purses of the contestants held up, had this to say: "So far as what took place in the ring in the Bass-Morgan bout, I cannot say that I detected anything suspicious in either the fighting or the knockout, but I did not like the betting rumors that were going about and it is practically on these grounds alone that I have ordered the money of the contestants held up pending an investigation."

Another Poor Decision.

There was none too much satisfaction expressed over the decision in the semi-final fight, which went to Al Ridgeway over Nel Tarleton, the clever Briton, who fought last night as a featherweight. Tarleton has a clean edge in at least five of the rounds. Ridgeway, after being in trouble several times through the fight, made a strong rally in the final round and had the Briton very tired.

Apparently, the officials did not judge this contest according to the rule of the Commission of this State which gives the contest to the winner of the greatest number of rounds and the officials apparently did not count points against Ridgeway for hitting low, something he was guilty of quite a few times, and for which he drew a warning in the seventh. Tarleton got all the cheers when the contestants left the ring.

Dominick Volante of England, 130, defeated Frank Marchese of Harlem, 123½, in an eight rounder. Murray Kead, 144½, defeated Hacord Johnson, 145, in a six rounder. Dino Tempesti, 140½, defeated Walter Babcock, 144, in four rounds.

Soccer Elevens To Play League Games Tomorrow

The Madisons will oppose the Tablers and the Hellrungs will play the Ben Millers in tomorrow afternoon's round of games in the St. Louis Professional Soccer League at Sportsman's Park, if the weather permits.

Phil Kavanaugh's Madisons and the Hellrungs were originally scheduled to play in a first round national cup tie match, but Winton E. Barker and other officials of the local circuit, after inspecting the field yesterday, stated the turf was in no condition to play a U. S. F. A. attraction, so they booked the league games, instead.

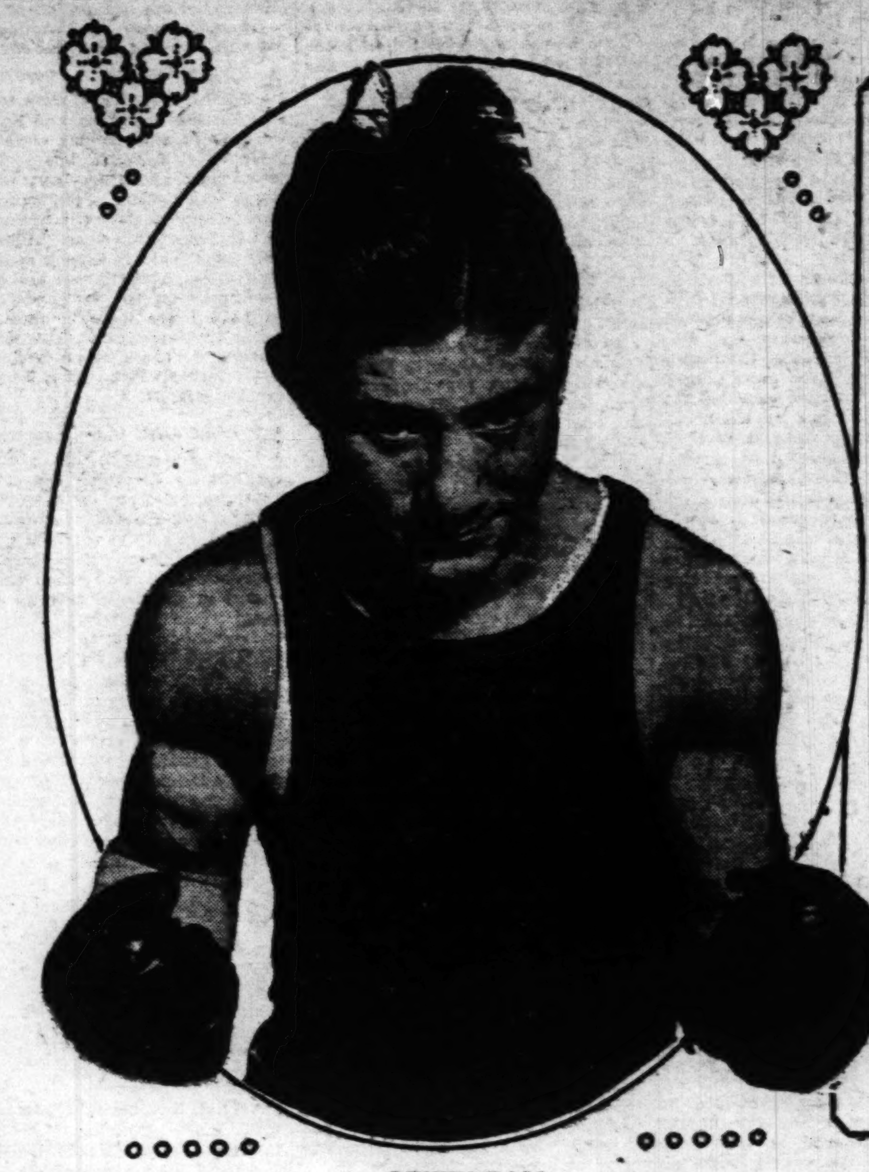

However, unless Old Sol softens the ice within the next 12 hours, President Barker stated that the league battles will be postponed. The cancellation of the cup game means that St. Louis soccer fans will not be able to witness a match in the national competition until Dec. 29, when the Madisons and Hellrungs will attempt to play. The second cup tie between the Ben Millers and Tablers will take place on New Year's Day.

The Holleys of Detroit, will furnish the entertainment here on Christmas Day, when they will take on either an all-star eleven or the local league leaders in an inter-city match.

Wellston and Kirkwood Win In County Games; Billiken Juniors Defeat St. Charles

Wellston defeated Jennings, 21 to 19, and Kirwkood turned back the University City five, 21 to 15, in the County High School League basketball matches played last night. In a non-league game yesterday afternoon, Webster made its first appearance of the season, smothering the Hancock team, 33 to 9.

The victory for Kirkwood was its second of the season. The team came from behind to gain the victory, inasmuch as U. City held a 12-7 lead at the end of the first half. However, the Kirkwood shooters started to find the basket with regularity in the closing half, while the defense stopped the University City stars.

Wellston, in gaining victory in its opening contest, showed plenty of speed. Close guarding of Emnet, star Jennings forward, played an important part in gaining the victory. He was able to score only five points, while the previous week against Clayton, he counted 16.

Wellston Off in Lead.

Van Loon of Wellston gave his team a good start by sinking two setups early in the game. Emnet then sank one from the middle of the floor but from then on could not get going. At the end of the first quarter, Wellston led 6-3. Again in the second period the Red and Black outplayed its rival and scored four points to three.

The third quarter saw Coach Halter's boys at their best. Holding Jennings scoreless, they increased their lead eight points on a setup by Gregg, a long shot from the middle of the floor by Van Loon, and two short shots by Houston. The fourth quarter was slow, Jennings vainly trying to score and Wellston playing defensive. The game ended as Emnett tipped in a shot from under the basket.

The whole Wellston team looked good. Poe, Van Loon, and Houston played well for Coach Halter, while Emnet and Hart looked good in spite of the defeat.

Freschi Star of Game.

By scoring five field goals, Bill Freschi, Webster right forward, was the high point man in the victory over Hancock. Ing, of Hancock, started the scoring by sinking a field goal after four minutes of play. When nearly a whole quarter of desultory playing had passed the Hancock coach sent in his second team.

In the second quarter Webster played very loosely against the Hancock scrubs. Only two field goals were counted for the Orange and Black, while the Hancock team scored one. At the end of the half the score was 12 to 7 in favor of Webster.

Webster hit its scoring stride at the half and Bill Freschi, who had a hard time finding the basket in the first part of the game, scored four field goals within two and a half minutes of the opening play. Harkey, who started off fast in the first period and scored six points, failed to score again, but his flashy playing was an outstanding feature of the game. Having a height advantage over the Hancock second string men, the Webster quintet was able to keep the ball above their heads and as a result the Webster score began to increase steadily. In the last few minutes of the final quarter the Hancock first team returned to the game but was unable to add to the score.

Freschi and Harkey starred for Webster and Ing and Lindhurst played well for Hancock.

St. Louis U. High and McBride Gain Victories

Prep. League quintets came through with victories in practice games last night, as St. Louis U. High crushed St. Charles, 26-7, and McBride nosed out the Alumni five, 22-16, in an overtime contest. The victory was the third in a row for the Junior Billikens, who had previously downed Marquette and Beaumont, while McBride's conquest of the "old grads" gives the Colonnaders four wins in five starts.

Coach Tim Stanton's Blue and White five handed the county quint a clean-cut trimming, the winners jumping into the lead in the opening minute of play and pulling far ahead as the game advanced. Fehlig started the scoring with a nice field goal shortly after the opening whistle, Minette counted on a free throw, Fehlig came through with another toss from the field, and Dilschneider made good on a charity flip, to give the Billiken Juniors a 6-0 lead at the end of the first quarter.

Scholle counted the only field goal of the first half for the losers at the start of the second period, but Connors, Fehlig and Dilschneider broke through for baskets to make the count 12-2 at the half.

The scoring efforts of the losers in the third period to a free throw by Bacon, while Dilschneider and Shea each sank a pair of field goals for St. Louis and Connors dribbled for a short shot under the basket, to bring the score to 21-3. Dilschneider accounted for all the winners' points in the last quarter dropping through two tosses from the field and one charity throw. Scholle got a field goal for the losers and Crosse made good on a two free throws to bring the St. Charles total to 7, as the game ended.

McBride Overcomes Lead.

McBride came from behind to win from the Alumni, the Colonnaders trailing from the start until the final two minutes of the game, when Boyle looped a pretty shot from midfloor to tie the score and make necessary an extra period. The graduate outfit of Mullen, Rotermund, Gorman, J. Kelly and Mortika, got off to a fine start and had a 10-5 lead at the end of the first quarter. The alternate Alumni five, which played during the second period, was not so successful, and managed to sink but one field goal, but held a 12-10 lead at the half.

Battling was hot during the third quarter, each five counting twice from the field to make the count 16-14, in favor of the grads at the start of the final period. The McBride denfense tightened and held the losers scoreless during the final quarter, and, with two minutes to go, Boyle came through with his field goal to tie the count. After one minute of play in the extra period, Cochran dumped in a setup shot to break the tie, Skinner folowed with a pretty field goal and Cochran ended the scoring with a basket in the final minute ,to give the Colonnaders the edge, 22-16.

The City High School League basketball games at Beaumont tonight will be featured by the attempt of two teams, Soldan and Cleveland, to retain the lead before the holidays force a cessation of activities. Cleveland meets Beaumont at 8 o'clock in the first game of the double-header and Soldan plays Central at 9 o'clock.

Both Soldan and Cleveland were victorious in the initial games, but Cleveland is expected to have a difficult time keeping its record clean since it opposes Beaumont, a team conceded an excellent chance to win the title.

Cleveland and Beaumont appear equally matched, as the latter five subdued Christian Brothers College, 23 to 20, a team which was defeated by Cleveland 31 to 27. Cleveland lost its first game of the season to McBride and McBride lost to Beaumont.

Coach Bert E. Fenenga has eight players, all of the same caliber, with whom he has been experimenting in an effort to find a smooth-working machine. The five which probably will assist in introducing Beaumont to the current campaign will be Ralph Landry and Kenneth Bieber, forwards; George Ketterer, center; Louis Schneemann and Captain Pete Halm, guards.

Owns Two Good Scorers.

Bernard Walsh and Bob Kalbitz, forwards; Ray Toberman, center; Campbell Elliott and Otto "Bu" Schwandt, have been assigned by Coach Raymond C. Lewis to oppose the Cleveland quintet. Additional Beaumont strength is found in Arthur Gerst, Harold Klein, Bob Bernard, Arthur McLeod, Tom Dowley and John Guhman.

If Soldan can overcome its inability to handle the ball, particularly on passes for setups, it may smother Central, because Barney Passer and Keith Walker are excellent shots. Coach Harry White will use Tom Cass at center and Ben Reese and Dave Cook at guards.

What Central will answer to a probable Soldan barrage depends upon Marvin Edelman, William Ens, Nathan Shechter, Herman Pfeifer and Ralph "Bud" Yourtee. The only drawback to Coach Alfred Friedli's chances to win the championship is lack of capable reserves.

Granite City Central Swamps Alton, 26 to 2

Granite City Central Juniors snowed under the Alton Juniors, 26-2, on the Alton court last night. The Comets came back after making a poor showing in the Madison game a week ago to give Alton its worst defeat of the season.

The winners displayed a variety of offensive plays and used a five-man defense which the Alton team was not able to puncture.

It was the sixth victory for Coach McCall's team in as many starts. They have scored 161 points to their opponents' 34. Central's second team has chalked up five victories in five starts.

The Central squad will enter the Junior tournament at Madison, Jan. 11.

McLarnin and Callahan Again One-Two in Consensus Ranking of Junior Welters

THIS is the sixth in the series of ten articles ranking boxers in the various weight divisions, as determined by a poll of 75 fistic writers in the leading pugilist centers of the country. In the balloting, first place on the list of ten in each division counts for 10 points, second place for nine, etc., with 750 points the highest possible total.

By Wilbur Wood,
Of the New York Sun Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Time seems to have halted its ceaseless march, at least as far as the junior welterweight division is concerned. The passing of 12 months finds the first four places in that class occupied by the same boxers who held them a year ago in the annual national consensus. This situation is without parallel in the four-year-old history of the consensus.

Jimmy McLarnin, baby-faced Irishman from the Pacific Coast, stands at the head of the procession. Mushy Calalhan of California, still champion in name, is No. 2 sion. Mushy Callahan of California, Negro, is third, and Ruby Goldstein of New York's East Side is fourth.

Though 75 nationally known critics collaborated in this year's consensus, as against only 60 in 1928, the percentage value of the vote polled by McLarnin and Callahan varies but slightly with the passing of a year of fistic history.

McLarnin this time has a total of 691 of a possible 750 points, for a percentage of .921, as compared with 543 points for an average of .724, shows some loss from his 1928 collection of 460 points for a percentage of .767.

McLarnin After Fields.

McLarnin, after outranking Callahan for two years, is not much concerned with taking over the latter's title, which never has cut much of a figure in the sock market. Jimmy, after fighting around the 140-pound mark for most of the year, now is ready to go after Jackie Fields' welterweight crown. McLarnin no doubt still can make 140 pounds, but there is no urge for him to do so, as the pickings in the 147-pound brigade is much richer.

The outstanding piece of work by the baby-faced Irish lad during the year was his victory on points over Sammy Mondell in Chicago in a non-title match. This victory was especially sweet to McLarnin in view of what happened when he met Mandell at the lightweight limit, more than a year previously. Jimmy's admirers always contended that making 135 pounds was to blame for his defeat on that occasion. They now can point to the second engagement, in which each fought at a natural poundage, as proof of their argument as to weight. (Note: At the time this was written, McLarnon hadn't yet met Goldstein, whom he knocked out in the second round at Madison Square Garden.)

Callahan is the second champion to be pushed off his perch by the critics. The first to be displaced by a mere contender was Bat Battalino, holder of the featherweight crown. Kid Chocolate was given first honors in that division.

In fact, Callahan never has been given a great deal of credit, his seat in the hall of champions always having been contested by expert opinion. The division was created by the National Boxing Association at its meeting in New Orleans on Jan. 16, 1922. The association named no champion, but claims for the new bauble were forthcoming immediately from Richie Mitchel, Pinky Mitchel, Eddie Fitzsimmons and Jimmy Duffy.

Instead of having these fight it out among themselves the awarding of the title was left to the result of a popularity contest sponsored by a Minneapolis boxing publication. Pinky Mitchel received the largest number of votes, and was duly proclaimed champion. In 1926, Callahan won the synthetic crown from Mitchel and by exercising great caution he still has it, though it has not yielded any considerable financial returns.

McLarnin receives 63 of the first-place votes, with eight for Callahan, two for Gans and two for Goldstein. Callahan is given ... second-place ballots, more than any other contestant.

St. Louis Coach and Three of Illinois Wesleyan Basket Aces

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Dec. 21. —A tie with Bradley for the title in 1925-26, an undisputed championship in '26-'27 and '27-'28 and a claim for the leadership last year conceded by many to be better than Lombard's because of a more representative schedule, is the great record of Coach Wallie Roettger, at Illinois Wesleyan.

Roettger has three veterans who rank with the best players in the State. They are Capt. Joe Baker and Fritz Rhea, at guards, who form a superb combination, and Bill Meehan, one of the greatest forwards to play for Wesleyan, since the days of Brick Young.

Wesleyan brushed aside the strong Marquette team here Monday night, 25 to 18, and is ready for the conference drive championship.

In the last four years, Wesleyan has won 47 conference victories and lost but seven for a grand average of .871.

U. S. C ELEVEN WILL ENGAGE IN MORNING WORKS

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 21.—If the early bird still gets all the plunder, then the University of Southern California eleven should cut something of a figure in its game with the Panthers of Pittsburg in the tournament of Roses Classic at Pasadena, New Year's day.

Coach Howard Jones, the man who guides the pigskin destinies of the men of Troy, has ordered morning practice for a purpose, with no excuse of an examination or laboratory session available as an alibi for tardy appearance at the 9:30 a. m. session.

But there is no vacation time from football lessons. After yesterday's signal practice, the first workout since the Trojan victory over Carnegie Tech., the U. S. C. players will gather this morning for a dummy scrimmage.

Coach Jones planned to be on hand, forgetting a bad cold and ready to map out a defensive aimed to smother the flashy attack presented by the unbeaten Panthers.

With the return of Jesse Hill, the fastest fullback on the Pacific Coast, the Southern California football board of strategy expressed the belief that with the full reserve strength on hand little time will be necessary for the polishing of an attack. This means that the greater of the time will be given over to preparation for the offensive with which Coach Jock Sutherland's aggregation hopes to deal out defeat to the Western eleven.

One break will come in the training grind, when the Trojans make a holiday of Christmas, but strenuous work will be taken up again the next day, with all the Southern California players breaking camp and moving to the shadows of the Arroyo Seco, so that they may complete their preparation in the Rosebowl, scene of the annual East-West encounter.

ARMAND EMANUEL IS WINNER OVER GAGNON

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Dec. 21.—Armand Emanuel, Los Angeles heavyweight barrister, gained a 10-round decision over Jack Gagnon, Boston battler, here last night in the Boston Garden's feature contest. The victor was off to a poor start, taking terrific body punishment in the second, but his boxing skill accounted for most of the other rounds. The Californian yielded seven pounds to Gagnon, who scaled 190½.

WRAY IS NAMED HEAD COACH OF PENNSY ELEVEN

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 21.—J. R. Ludlow Wray, familiarly known as "Lud," is the new football coach at the University of Pennsylvania, succeeding Lou Young, who resigned at the close of the present season to become a member of the Council of Athletics in an executive capacity.

With Wray's appointment Sydney Hutchinson resigned as chairman of the Football Committee of the Council of Athletics, and John P. Butler resigned as coach of the freshmen squad. Young will succeed Hutchinson as chairman of the Football Committee.

The appointment of Wray was a surprise to many interested in Pennsylvania athletics.

Wray has been line coach at Penn.

ARMY FOOTBALL STAR, ON WAY TO COAST, ARRIVES HERE BY AIR

John M. Lazar, regular center on the Army football team, is speeding across country by airplane to participate in the game against Stanford University at Pasadena, Cal., next Saturday.

Lazar, who was detained at West Point because of scholastic difficulties, was a passenger on a T. A. T. plane which arrived at Lambert-St. Louis Field at noon today. After successfully passing an exam yesterday Lazar left New York by train last night, boarded the plane at Columbus this morning, and is due to arrive at Los Angeles tomorrow afternoon. He should reach the coast as quickly as his team mates, who left the east several days ago by train.

BUD TAYLOR STARTS TRAINING FOR MASTRO FIGHT IN CHICAGO

All-America Star At Pittsburg Will Make Coast Trip

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Dec. 21. ASSOCIATE COACH ALEX STEVENSON today denied reports that Joe Donchess, All-America end on the University of Pittsburg's football team, might be left behind when the Panther goes to the Pacific Coast to play the University of Southern California, New Year's day, Stevenson said reports that Donchess would not make the trip because of scholastic difficulties were groundless.

The topic of the climate came to the fore in the discussion of Panther followers today as wintry gales sent Coach Jock Sutherland and his boys indoors, while from the coast came word that warm weather there is continuing. As evidence of the strenuous program outlined for the Panthers, the mentors made known today that a drill will be held Sunday morning at an armory.

By Henry L. Freund

Washington University's football schedule for 1930 was officially completed yesterday with acceptances from Westminster College and Illinois College for October games. The Washington schedule as definitely arranged will include four conference games, the largest number of valley games arranged by the Bears in many years. The other games on the schedule will include three affairs against minor colleges and the Thanksgiving day battle with St. Louis University.

The complete schedule follows:

Oct. 4—Illinois College.
Oct. 11—William Jewell College.
Oct. 18—Westminster College.
Oct. 25—Oklahoma Aggies at Stillwater.
Oct. 31 or Nov. 1—Drake at Drake.
Nov. 8—Grinnell.
Nov. 15—Creighton.
Nov. 22—Permanently open.
Nov. 27—St. Louis University.

There is a possibility that six of the eight scheduled games will be played at night. The first three October games for the Bears have been definitely arranged for evening affairs. The fourth game positively scheduled for night play will be the Drake game to be played at Des Moines. Drake was one of the first schools in the country to play night football.

Two games have been tentatively arranged for the evening. The Bears' visit to Stillwater, Ok., to meet the Aggies on Oct. 25 may be played after dark. The Grinnell game at Francis Field will be a night battle if the weather during the week is favorable.

Although no contract has been signed with St. Louis for the Thanksgiving fray it is virtually certain that the game will be played. The contracts for all other games have been definitely signed and returned to Artie Eilers, Bears' business manager.

TEXAS LEAGUE WILL MOVE HEADQUARTERS TO WICHITA FALLS

By the Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Dec. 21.—Removal of the Texas League headquarters to Wichita Falls will be completed the day after Christmas, according to J. Alvin Gardner, president of the Texas league.

Gardner, former owner of the Wichita Falls club, recently elected to head the Texas league, has finished arrangements to move the headquarters. The Texas Statistical Bureau, presided over by William B. Ruggles, will continue in Dallas, but all other business of the league will be transacted in Wichita Falls, Gardner said.

The president moved the headquarters because his home is in Wichita Falls. For many years the league offices have been in Dallas.

CREIGHTON WINS FROM OKLAHOMA AGGIES, 30-14

By the Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 21.—With both teams guilty of spotty shooting efforts, the Creighton University basketball team last night battled out a victory over the Oklahoma Aggies, 30-14.

The victory moved Creighton a step forward in the Missouri Valley Conference race and the local five will be offered an opportunity to take another forward advance toward the conference flag tonight when the two teams mix again.

At the half Creighton was out in front by a 16 to 12 margin. Krauser and Ley, for the Aggies, and Capt. Troutman, Van Ackern and Corcoran for the Blues, played the best game of the evening.

LOUISIANA HIGH WINS FROM HANNIBAL QUINT

LOUISIANA, Mo., Dec. 21.—The boys' basketball team of Louisiana High School defeated the McCooey Memorial High of Hannibal here last night, 22 to 8. The Louisiana and McCooey High girls tied in the opening game of a double-header, 17 to 17. These were the first high school games played here this season.

Caddy Who Won Efficiency Prize at Westwood Hopes To Play in National Open

Ralph Murphy Finished With 1.000 Percentage in Competition in Which Every Member of Club Voted.

By W. J. McGoogan

Ralph Murphy, 19-year-old caddy, who won the $100 prize offered for the most proficient caddy by members of Westwood Country Club for the past season, is looking forward to the time when he will be able to qualify in the national open golf tournament.

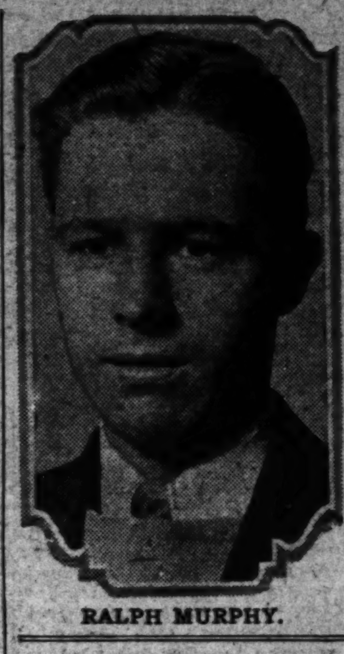

He has realized his earlier ambition to bat 1.000 in the caddy league for he was the only boy out of 100 contestants in the Westwood competition, who had a perfect record for the season.

Working five days and a half each week in a railroad office, Ralph caddied at Westwood each Saturday afternoon and Sunday last season and during the summer worked for practically every Westwood member at one time or another. The members turned in reports on his services at the end of their round and each of them marked "excellent" on Murphy's card.

The competition took into consideration the caddy's deportment on the links, discipline, behavior in the caddy room and in addition there was a monitor, who watched the boys on the greens to determine their ability in flagging a hole. In all of these things, Murphy excelled.

Has Caddied Nine Years.

Ralph has caddied at Westwood for about nine years and during his spare moments has picked up enough knowledge of how to play golf to make a score of 85 for 18 holes. Next year he plan to take up the game in earnest with a view to entering the qualifying round of the National Open at some future date.

RALPH MURPHY.

Golfers have a way of telling rather bluntly what they think about caddies, but it is seldom that the boys have a chance to say what they think about golfers. Westwood must have a good-natured crowd of members for when Ralph was given the opportunity of giving his opinion of the golfers for for whom he caddied he remarked that they were all good fellows out at his club, that a caddy out there who tends to his business never has any trouble.

But then maybe Ralph is considering some more caddying at Westwood or has gone into training for the diplomatic corps.

HAGEN, VON ELM TIED FOR LEAD IN COAST GOLF

Horton Smith's Brother Succeeds Him at Joplin

By the Associated Press.

JOPLIN, Mo., Dec. 21. REN SMITH has been appointed professional of the Oak Hill Golf Club here to succeed his brother, Horton Smith, effective Jan. 1, 1930. Ren has served as assistant to Horton Smith at the club. Horton's plans for the next year are not known here.

By the Associated Press.

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 21.—At the head of an army of a hundred or more select performers in the great Scottish pastime today trudged the great Walter Hagen, British open champion, and George von Elm, second ranking amateur in America, seeking the winner's spoils in the Pasadena $4000 open tournament.

The two players from Detroit broke par by two strokes yesterday under adverse conditions to wend their way through the opening 18 holes of play with scores of 69, while on their heels came five others, including the defending champion, Craig Wood, Bloomfield, N. J., professional.

Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., Densmore Shute, Columbus, O., and two Massachusett entrants, David Mackney of Lawrence and Lew Waldron, Boston, completed the quintet which finished with cards of 70.

Fifty of yesterday's starters, whose rounds were not completed as the shades of night closed in on the Arroho Seco, were to finish their eighteens today before those who turned in 78 or less teed off for the second round.

The 60 low cards after the second 18 holes today will qualify for Sunday's concluding 36 holes.

Larry Montes, champion of the Philippine Islands, along with Jimmy Foplis, Chicago, and Hutt Martin, Reno, Nev., will go to the tee tied for third place at par 71 figures, with 16 others making the opening round one over par.

A sandstorm was responsible for many high cards yesterday, but no outstanding players were left behind.

Wray's COLUMN

Cashing in His Popularity.

THROUGH with the ring, Jack Dempsey is now cashing in the popularity he won with the soporific socks he dealt out. A failure as a promoter in Chicago, thus far, Jack is still raking in the ducats as an actor and referee.

In New York, this week, Dempsey is so much in demand that he is pulling an almost unheard of stunt—he is "doubling" at two theaters—the Fifty-eighth Street and the Fordham. That probably is without many precedents, if any.

This strenuous feat necessitated two sets of scenery for Jack's act, the "Roadside Razz," and apparently indicates that the fight bugs are buzzing about the old flame of the ring.

$20,000,000 in "Gates."

AN optimist who deals out publicity for Jack, estimates that before he retires, the former champion will have grossed $20,000,000 gate receipts in his appearances in the ring, on the stage and in the movies.

A reasonable commission of 5 per cent on his drawing powers would represent just about Dempsey's actual wealth—$1,000,000.

Many persons believe Dempsey is a multi-millionaire, but this is unlikely. In the days when Dempsey was playing before million-dollar gates and taking in from $300,000 to $750,000 a show, super taxes were extremely high. Guarantees were cut in two or three by the Government.

For example, when William Fox offered Dempsey $500,000 to fight for him, the writer asked the local income tax office at the time how much of that guarantee would remain to Dempsey after his supertaxes had been paid.

This question was shortly after the close of the war, when the peak of excess tax was reached. The reply was $193,000, or less than two-fifths.

* * *

Dempsey, besides, split heavily with his managers. He lost money in theatrical ventures and probably in horse racing, although he says he did not.

If he has $1,000,000 all his own today he would seem to have fared very well.

"He Who Gets Slapped."

AN Eastern critic, in commenting on Tiger Flowers, writes: "For years old Tiger Flowers used to come to New York and slap, slap with his open gloves and get away with decisions; but he blew his title as soon as a referee came along with nerve enough to refuse to score open-hand slaps as points. That was in Chicago." He referred to the Tiger Flowers-Mickey Walker bout.

It may be observed that the brave referee, who was none other than Benny Yanger, has not refereed a bout since (at least none of any consequence).

It may also be mentioned that the Illinois Athletic Commission held executive sessions for two days after the match, cross-examined all concerned and tried to find a loophole for reversing the decision; but under the law could not. What they did do was to change the Illinois system of deciding bouts by taking the power from the referee and putting it in the hands of two judges and the referee.

This writer classed that decision of Yanger's as the worst he had seen rendered in 30 years.

Flowers' "slaps," so the records show, netted the Tiger 47 knockouts, a percentage of .360 of all his fights. That is to say every third man Tiger fought bit the resin.

Pretty good for a slapper.

This From Notre Dame.

THE Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, president of Notre Dame, was reported as having said of the huge football receipts of the colleges of the United States:

"After football has paid in full for all these costly structures, there still remains a debt against the game and against college athletics generally, which will not be liquidated for many years."

The debt, which presumably is ethical, is also intangible; but the profits, and the benefits derived from them by the institutions of the United States, are decidedly real. Football's contribution to the poor box of the nation's physical education, is sufficient to earn it forgiveness for a few more or less imaginary sins.

* * *

Take football receipts from the major institutions of the country and the athletic association will have to go back to begging for funds to keep its other activities alive.

KEENEY PARK RACE MEET TERMINATED BY OFFICIALS

LACK OF STATE LAW PERMITTING BETTING REASON FOR EARLY END

By the Associated Press.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 21.—Keeney Park race track, near here, has been closed three weeks before the scheduled end of its 27-day meeting.

Frank A. Keeney, New York sportsman, and owner of the track, issued a statement during the running of the sixth day's card yesterday to the effect that racing there had been called off until the laws of Florida permitted the pari-mutuel system of wagering. He said his action was in the face of impending injunction proceedings "started by Fred O. Eberhardt, Tallahassee publisher, and other reformers."

After issuing the statement Keeney could not be located for further comment.

William E. Ford, vice president of the Florida Jockey Club and manager of Keeney Park, however, said:

"Mr. Keeney secluded himself upon advice of his physician. He will be at the track some time tomorrow and his statement issued at the track stands. There will be no further racing at this track until Mr. Keeney starts it."

Offers to underwrite the expense of continuing the meeting were said to have been made to track officials but all of them were declined in view of Mr. Keeney's absence.

Hope persisted in some quarters that the meet might be continued after conferences have been held with Mr. Keeney.

Racing was conducted at the Keeney plant last spring and during six days of the meeting just closed with the envelope system of wagering.

Eberhardt's injunction was to have been filed at St. Augustine today on the ground that gambling was being permitted at the track in contravention to State law.

Since the close of the meet Eberhardt has not issued a statement but his attorney here expresed gratification that it had been stopped.

Meanwhile at the Pompano track near Fort Lauderdale, and at Hialeah Park, Miami Jockey Club's track near Miami, plans for opening winter meetings after the first of the year were going forward.

In a statement issued by Maj. Barclay H. Warburton, president of the Miami Jockey Club, he said the Hialeah meeting would go on and it would comply with "every State law against gambling."

We hope they will arrange.

At any rate we still presume
They'll offer ample standing room

New Compulsory Physical Education Course for Girl Students at Washington U.

Under the direction of Miss Alice C. Schriver, head of the women's physical education, Washington University will institute a course of physical training that is new to the Middle West.

Miss Schriver.

"Miss Schriver, who has recently come to Washington, has put into operation a plan of compulsory physical education for women that is radically different from that used in most Western co-educational schools. Under the new plan, going into effect this month each first-year woman student will be required to take an orientation course three times a week for one year. In this orientation course an insight into different sports will be given the girls. In the fall volley ball, speedball, soccer and hockey will be taught; in the winter Danish gymnastics, exercises, dancing and swimming, and in the spring track and field work.

Elective Sport Second Year.

It will be compulsory for all new students to take this course but in their second and last year of required physical education, they may select the activity they wish to continue. The reason for the change from the old method of permitting the girls to participate for two years in any sport they so desired is to make every woman thoroughly conversant with different phases of sport and athletics. This knowledge will be obtained by the girls in their first year, so that when they become sophomores they will have decided what to select and will be able to choose intelligently, after their first year's experience.

There will be a large number of sports available in the second year. In addition to the activities studied in their first year in the orientation course, the women students will be allowed to take advanced dancing, fencing, golf, archery, basketball and advanced swimming.

There are a total of 700 girls in the physical education department, most of whom are in their first or second year of school, as physical education is a required course for the first two years. About 150 of the girls in the department are advanced students and are working for teaching certificates. To obtain this certificate, one is required to take four years of physical education.

Interschool Meets Taboo.

The women's physical department of Washington is a member of the Women's National Amateur Federation. This organization frowns upon intercollegiate competition for women, and Washington abides by its rulings, not participating in meets with other schools. Athletics among classes is, however, stressed, and each year a soccer tournament, with more than 70 girls entered, is held at Washington Field, as well as a hockey tournament, with an entry list of 100. The teams entered in these tournaments are chosen on the basis of merit, and their selection is a matter of great interest to the woman's student body. Tennis and golf tournaments are also held, but they are open to any students of the school, and are not interclass meets.

It is interesting to note that the present championship hockey team is the senior group. The same girls have played together through all four years of college and have won the championship each year. The soccer tournament was won by the freshman girls after a spirited fight.

The governing woman's athletic body at Washington is the Woman's Athletic Association, which is sponsored by the Athletic Conference of American College Women. The women students are awarded athletic letters similar to those given to the men students and their award is based upon general proficiency in sports, sportsmanship, character and number of sports participated in and times out for practice.

Miss Schriver believes that the future of athletics for women is in hockey and basketball for team sports, and swimming, tennis and golf for individual activity. Football, even with modifications, will never become a woman's game, believes Miss Schriver. Women's athletics will take an increasingly important place in the world, Miss Schriver added.

Satisfactory Facilities.

Washington has splendid athletic facilities for the women students. Two gymnasiums, one 90 by 60 feet and the other slightly smaller, are in daily use by the women. The smaller gym is equipped with all types of apparatus and is used more for corrective work and exercises. Both gyms have lockers, dressing rooms and "a generous supply of mirrors," Miss Schriver added. The outdoor equipment includes a full-sized turf hockey field, a regulation size soccer field, tow basketball courts and numerous tennis courts.

The department is under the direct supervision of Miss Schriver, who came to Washington from the Westchester Teachers' College of Pennsylvania, where she had been an instructor for eight years. She is a graduate of the Harvard University School of Physical Education, of New York University and Pennsylvania University.

Miss Dorothy Davies, a graduate of the University of Cincinnati, and Mrs. Franklin D. Windle, a graduate of Ohio, complete the department.

BILL CARRIGAN OUT AS MANAGER OF BOSTON CLUB

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Dec. 21.—The name of Bill Carrigan, manager of the Red Sox, whose career saw the heights and depths of baseball fortune reached by his teams, was added today to the list of big league managers whose activities have ended since the finish of the 1929 season.

President Bob Quinn, who visited Carrigan at his home in Lewiston, Me., revealed on his return that Carrigan had retired from baseball. Quinn said he was not ready to name a successor. Heinie Wagner, Carrigan's right-hand man for many years, has been frequently mentioned.

The change will give Boston its second new, big league manager next year, Bill McKechnie, formerly of the St. Louis Cardinals, having been named to succeed President-Manager Emil Fuchs of the Braves a few months ago.

Carrigan was a catcher for the Sox in 1912 world championship days after being signed in 1906. He was made manager in the late summer of 1913 and his 1915 and 1916 teams won the world series. At the end of the season he retired to his business enterprises at Lewiston.

In 1927, with the team's fortunes at low ebb, Carrigan was again summoned to the helm. The team has remained in last place during the last three seasons. Carrigan, now 46 years old, has a family of two girls and a boy and is one of the wealthiest of former big league baseball players.

KANSAS AND MISSOURI QUINTS MEET TONIGHT

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 21.—Today is the thirty-eighth anniversary of the same of basketball and Dr. James A. Naismith, its inventor, expects to celebrate the event by attending an exhibition game between the Universities of Kansas and Missouri here tonight.

It was Dec. 21, 1891, that Naismith, then a young instructor in the Springfield (Mass.) School of Training Directors, announced he had perfected the new game to meet demands for a fast indoor team sport. Dr. Naismith has been professor of physical education at the University of Kansas for the last 30 years.

The first court game having the distinction of being invented by a single brain at one sitting was first played with two peach baskets nailed opposite each other 10 feet from the floor of the Springfield gymnasium. A soccer ball was used.

NEBRASKA MAY PLAY NEVADA NEXT YEAR

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 21.—"That's right. They are one of a number of teams we are considering to play here next fall," Herbert Gish, Nebraska athletic director, said last night when informed that Nevada was considering Nebraska as 1930 football foe.

He explained that he had telegraphed Nevada to see if officials there were interested in a game with the Cornhuskers. The date has not been definitely offered to them, however, he said.

If the Huskers schedule a game on Oct. 25, their last open date, it will be the ninth one of the 1930 season. Big Six Conference permission has been secured to play a nine-game slate.

EMILE LOUBET, FORMER FRENCH PRESIDENT, DIES

Succumbs at Age of 91—Served From 1899 to 1906—Signed State-Church Separation Order.

GRANTED PARDON TO MAJ. DREYFUS

Also Figured in Grande Chartreuse Scandal—Spent Last Days in Rural Store With Farmers.

By the Associated Press.

MONTELIMAR, France, Dec. 21.—France today mourned Emile Loubet, former President, who died at 9:35 p. m. last night at the age of 91.

He spent most of his latter days sitting at a stove in the village store here, smoking a pipe and discussing current events in a detached manner with peasants. His boyhood ambition was to become a farmer.

He died because as his physician said, "his light was just extinguished by old age." He was conscious to the last though hours of agony preceded his death.

In the seven years of his presidency, from 1899 to 1906, he coped with such fierce outcroppings of racial and religious feeling, the Dreyfus affair, expulsion of the religious congregations, the Grande Chantreuse scandal, murderous strikes and rupture with the Vatican.

His son, Paul, his daughter, Mme. de Saint Prix, and his physician, Dr. Albert, were at his bedside when he died.

Emile Francois Loubet was President of France during a period when the entente cordiale between France and Great Britain was negotiated. What appeared in 1904 to be merely a settlement of long-standing disputes of minor importance between France and England blossomed into that powerful aggregation of nations which the world afterward designated as the Entente. It aligned France, Russia and England in a friendly understanding that held them together at the beginning of the great world conflict, 10 years later, as no "scrap of paper" could hold Germany.

The foundation of the friendly understanding between France and Italy, too, was laid during the regime of President Loubet. When this Latin agreement was reached Theophile Delcasse, the French Foreign Minister, told the French Parliament that Italy would never be used as an instrument of aggression against France; and when the Great War began his prophecy was fulfilled. Italy broke away from the Triple Alliance and threw her fortunes with the Entente.

To what extent President Loubet's influence directed the negotiation of the Entente, history has not disclosed. The actual negotiation has been attributed to Delcasse, but Delcasse was Loubet's Foreign Minister and Loubet supported him even when the brilliant French statesman came into conflict with Germany over the control of Morocco.

Pardoned Major Dreyfus.

Other events of great importance to France transpired during Loubet's term as President from 1899 to 1906. Coming into office suddenly he faced the turmoil over the trial and conviction of Major Dreyfus and left the office when France was in the throes of the political upheaval over the separation of the church and state. As official head of the French Government Loubet had little actual power but his influence was exerted at least in the cast of Captain Dreyfus whom he pardoned after the trial court had convicted that officer. His attitude on the division of the church from the state was known to be opposed to the violent clerical feeling which then dominated the French people, but he signed the separation bill which was passed by the Chamber of Deputies.

Loubet was a man of simple taste and habits, of conservative disposition, sound, sane and sagacious in affairs of state. Son of a peasant proprietor of Marsanne in Southern France he made his way slowly through all the stages of statesmanship to the President's office by applying himself to whatever task he had in hand and saying little about it. Born Dec. 31, 1838, he studied law, was admitted to practice and in 1870 began his political career. Sixteen years later he was elected a member of the French Chamber of Deputies. For two years he was a Senator, and subsequently successively Minister of Public Works, Premier, Minister of the Interior, and, in 1896, President of the Senate.

Chosen by Clemenceau.

When President Faure died suddenly in 1899, the late Georges Clemenceau, the "Tiger" of French politics, picked Loubet as his candidate for the presidency at the eleventh hour, and Loubet's election was assured. He made no brilliant record as President but when he left office, France was on friendly terms with all the world except Germany. His ministers

He made no brilliant record as President but when he left office, France was on friendly terms with all the world except Germany. His ministers brought this about and Loubet sustained them.

Thwarted in his boyhood ambition to become a farmer, Loubet had no overwhelming ambitions to gratify as President. He gave France "safe and sane" administration and when his one term of office expired, gladly retired to his home at Marsanne where he found time in subsequent years to devote himself to his wife, his home, his mother and the out-door life that he loved. He was fond of hunting. In appearance he resembled General Grant, the short, broad figure with large head and Roman features. His chief characteristic in office was firmness. He was devoted to his family and never wearied of praising them. When President he often visited his mother and, donning an apron, helped her with the cooking.

ROBBER, CAUGHT AT MOTHER'S FUNERAL, GETS 9-YEAR-TERM

Louis Deeken Pleads Guilty to Holdup; Sentenced as Habitual Criminal.

Louis Deeken, 29 years old, pleaded guilty of third degree robbery before Circuit Judge Taylor yesterday and was sentenced to nine years as a habitual criminal. An additional sentence of four years, to be served concurrently, was imposed when he pleaded guilty of assaulting Patrolman William A. Sievers last February when the officer attempted to arrest him as a robbery suspect.

Deeken and a companion, who were encountered at night in Benton Park, South St. Louis, were disarmed by Sievers. When the policeman was telephoning for a patrol wagon, they seized his night stick, beat him on the head and escaped. Deeken pleaded guilty of holding up Vincent Boyer in his filling station at 7230 South Broadway earlier in the same evening. Boyer was robbed of $56 in cash and $40 in checks.

Deeken was arrested when he ventured to attend the funeral of his mother, Mrs. Katherine Deeken, last October. Police said he was sentenced to serve two years in 1910 for grand larceny, four years in 1915 for burglary and larceny and five years in 1923 for robbery.

MISTRIAL IN CASE OF MINISTER ACCUSED BY OKLAHOMA GIRL

Hearing Halted When Young Woman's 80-Year-Old Grandfather Attacks Clergyman.

By the Associated Press.

SAYRE, Ok., Dec. 21.—A mistrial was declared yesterday in the case of the Rev. Harry W. Davis, former pastor of Baptist churches at Erick, Madill and Wilburton, Ok., charged with attacking a 16-year-old girl.

The paster was on the witness stand at the time. He was testifying that Maxey Merle Stayton, the prosecuting witness, now 17, had been in the habit of "stepping out" with boys. With an oath, S. R. Warren, 80-year-old grandfather of the girl, rose from his chair and advanced toward the witness with the aid of a cane. When he stood before Davis, he struck at him with the cane. The blow fell short and court attaches, hurrying forward, calmed the aged man.

The girl alleged that the minister attacked her several times while she was a guest at the Davis home for four months in 1928. Davis testified that he and his wife had taken the girl into their home on her mother's request to curb her desires for "chasing about" at night. He asserted that he never had made any advances to her.

59 SCHOOLGIRLS MADE ILL BY LUNCHES TAKEN ON TRAIN

23 Stephens College Students Stop at Kansas City for Treatment; All Recover Quickly.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 21.—With the 36 girls made ill at Springfield, Ill., by tainted food, authorities of Stephens College today had received reports of 59 students affected by contents of box lunches given the girls when they left school Thursday for the Christmas holidays.

Twenty-three girls were taken from a train here Thursday suffering from food poisoning, but none was more than temporarily affected. Four were sent to a hospital, and all received emergency medical treatment, and recovered rapidly.

College authorities on the train which arrived here said they thought ripe olives placed in the lunches were responsible.

Widow of Chicago Politician Gives $150,000 to Charity.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—Mrs. Helen M. Sullivan, widow of Roger Sullivan, Democratic leader, left an estate of $1,100,000, it was disclosed yesterday when her will was filed in Probate Court.

Her four children get $157,100 each. A like amount is distributed among various charities. After several smaller bequests the residue becomes a trust fund, the income to be divided among the children and two grandchildren. Two sons-in-law are named trustees.

AVIATOR HUNTING EIELSON REACHES ICE-LOCKED SHIP

Harold Gillam Flies From Teller to the Nanuk, Which Missing Pilots Were Trying to Aid.

By the Associated Press.

NOME, Alaska, Dec. 21.—Harold Gillam, pilot of one of two planes which left Teller Wednesday in search of Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland, flyers missing since Nov. 9, has reached the fur trading ship Nanuk, icebound near North Cape, Siberia. Eielson and Borland were attempting to rescue the Nanuk passengers when they disappeared.

Gillam reported by wireless from the Nanuk that he and Joe Crosson, pilot of the other plane, flew together about half the distance between Teller and North Cape, making an intermediate landing. On resuming their flight yesterday they became separated in the fog. Gillam thinks Crosson landed because of unfavorable weather.

Pilot Ed Young yesterday flew to East Cape, Siberia, but returned to Teller when he was unable to find a suitable place to land. He said the fog extended 15,000 feet above Bering Strait.

While the planes now available in the North are all of the open cockpit type and poorly adapted to Arctic flying in winter, pilots on the ground are making every effort to find Eielson and his companion at the earliest moment, rather than to wait for the arrival of three large cabin planes from Seattle, Wash.

Eielson and Borland carried considerable food for the Nanuk, in addition to the 30 days' emergency rations in their plane. They were well equipped with shelter material and could withstand an extended siege of the elements in the event they were not injured when forced down.

The plan now being followed by the northern flyers includes establishment of a base of operations in Siberia from which scout planes would operate, thus giving them a wide cruising range. The base would be supplied by planes operating from the Alaskan mainland.

FORMER COLLEGE STUDENT, BANK-ROBBER, GETS 15 YEARS

Youth Had Been on Parole From Indiana Reformatory; Wife Still Held.

By the Associated Press.

VERNON, Ind., Dec. 21.—Gene Alger, 21 years old, a former student at a university in Indianapolis, yesterday pleaded guilty of robbing the Paris Crossing State Bank and was sentenced to 15 years in the State Reformatory. He was on parole from the reformatory when the robbery was committed.

Alger was first sentenced for the killing of a Negro traffic policeman at Indianapolis. He received a sentence of two to 21 years for manslaughter. He was paroled by Gov. Harry G. Leslie several months ago so he could spend a Mother's day at his home in Indianapolis.

Shortly after his parole he married Miss Josephine Miller, Jeffersonville, whom he had met while he was in jail at Danville, awaiting trial on the charge of slaying the policeman. His wife was alleged to have aided him in the Paris Crossing robbery but the charge against her was dismissed yesterday. She is held, however, for officers at Lafontaine, Ind., who hold a warrant for her arrest in connection with a bank robbery which she and her husband are alleged to have committed there.

FARM BOARD CALLS FRUIT GROWERS TO CONFERENCE

Creation of National Co-Operative Sales Organizations to Be Discussed.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—The Federal Farm Board has called on the nation's fruit and vegetable industries to meet with it in Washington on Jan. 14 to discuss the creating of national co-operative sales organizations.

The board's letter of invitation said the conference would decide how to proceed in making effective to the fruit and vegetable industries of the United States the benefit of the agricultural marketing act, and added that the creation of co-operative sales organizations for at least three groups seemed to be the best method.

The letter said an attempt would be made to get the combined judgment of these groups on the following:

"Whether or not it is advisable to attempt an organization of two or more of these groups into a national sales organization.

"Whether it is advisable to organize these groups separately, by commodities, into national co-operative sales organizations.

"Whether or not some plan of production loans may be worked out that will enable co-operatives to secure a larger percentage of commodities which are now controlled through production financing.

SEEKS 13 MILLIONS FOR FLOOD RELIEF ALONG ST. FRANCIS

Bill of Congressman Driver of Arkansas Stipulates Local Interests Will Provide Rights of Way.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—A bill to authorize an appropriation of $13,485,960 for carrying out of the army engineering plan for flood control in the St. Francis River in Missouri and Arkansas was introduced yesterday by Representative Driver of Arkansas.

The measure points out that $17,000,000 has been expended by local interests for flood control, and it would provide that the Federal Government furnish all the funds.

Local interests would furnish, without cost to the Federal Government, all rights of way needed for levees and levee foundations, channels and disposal of spoil. They would also maintain all flood control works after their completion and the Federal Government would not be held responsible for any damage from or by floods or flood waters at any place.

GIRL FOUND CHAINED TO BED; MAN, 53, HELD

Child Rescued by Police From Cellar Under Garage in Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 21.—Suffering from exposure and mistreatment at the hands of a 53-year-old man, Dorothy Van Camp, 14-year-old school girl, was rescued yesterday from an underground chamber of a garage where police found her chained to a bed.

Since Thursday morning the girl had been without heat or water. She had been beaten severely with a strap by her attacker, Russel Arnold, a discharged street car employe. Arnold was arrested and police said he confessed that he dragged her into his home, chained her to a joist, attacked and beat her, then held her captive in the underground room. The girl's ankle around which a chain had been tied to bind her to a bed was bruised badly.

Arnold, police said, admitted that he had enticed the girl into his home Thursday morning, had carried her in a specially constructed box to the room under the garage, mistreated her and then held her prisoner.

Dorothy told the man stopped her while she was walking to the street car alone, that he talked to her and then took her by the arm and pulled her into the house. When she cried out, the man threatened to strike her with an axe, Dorothy told police.

When the girl did not return home Thursday, her mother made inquiries in the neighborhood and a search for her was then started.

U. S. SAILORS ON SHIP REPEL CHINESE ATTACK

Guards Use Machine Guns to Rout Body of Troops on Yangtze River.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 21.—An American naval guard on the steamer Iping of the American Yangtse Rapids Steamship Co. routed a body of unidentified Chinese troops with heavy machine gun fire yesterday after the ship had been subjected to rifle fire.

The Chinese fire on the steamer, which plies the Yantze River, was so heavy that the guard departed from the usual practice of ignoring such attacks.

In recent weeks uncontrolled Chinese soldiers and bandits have repeatedly attacked foreign steamers in the upper Yangtze.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Raw sugar was quiet today and in absence of business prices were unchanged. The undertone was steady, and refiners were said to be interested at last paid prices of 2.77c for nearby sugars, with holders asking 1-3c more.

Price changes in raw futures were narrow and operations were mostly in the form of evening up for over the week-end adjournment and in exchanging from the January to the later positions. There was a little covering and trade buying early which caused advances of 1 point on some positions, but the demand was not aggressive and the inactivity in the spot market seemed to discourage holders, and reactions followed with the market closing net unchanged to 1 point lower. Approximate sales 20,450 tons. December closed 1.82c, January 1.87c, March 2c, May 2.07c, July 2.13c, September, 2.19c.

Refined market was unchanged at 5.10c to 5.15c for fine granulated with a good withdrawal demand, but no new business.

Sugar futures closed steady; approximate sales, 20,450 tons: Dec., 1.82c; Jan., 1.87c; March, 2c; May 2.07c; July, 2.13c; Sept., 2.19c.

Dun's Weekly Review

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Dun's review today says "Even during periods when factors of an unusual character are not operative, a slackening of industrial activity before the year-end holidays is a familiar phase. That condition is accentuated now by the influence of the late speculative breakdown, yet it is reassuring that the recent gain in confidence, the better general feeling, is maintained. The improved sentiment has a tangible basis in the various strong underlying forces, which the surface evidences of recession do not obscure, and their ultimate effect on actual business can scarcely fail to be constructive. Prominent among the supporting elements is the favorable inventory status in most channels, and the bearing of relatively small stocks of goods on future demand is obviously significant. With the further reducing of supplies, there is an increasing belief that early purchasing for replenishment may be necessary in different instances, and this expectation prevails both in the great steel trade and in textile branches. The present caution in buying results in an accompanying restriction of outputs, but the curtailment is being accomplished in an orderly way, and the easing of commodity prices remains gradual.

UTILITIES LEAD UPTURN ON CURB

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—The Curb Market rallied substantially today, in further short covering after yesterday's decline. Leading shares generally closed with net gains of around 2 points. Trading continued rather dull. Further selling appeared in spots during the early trading, and a little week-end profit taking toward the close reduced most of the gains.

Utilities led the upturn, in sympathy with the revival of bullish activity in this group on the "big board." American & Foreign Power warrants closed more than 4 points higher, and such shares as Electric Bond and Share, Allied Power, American Gas, Middle West and United Light gained about 3 points each. Hydro-Electric securities was a soft spot, closing fractionally lower.

A feature of the day's activity was a transaction of 51,000 shares of Bellanca Aircraft at 4⅛, a new low for the year. The stock has been comparatively inactive of late. It sold earlier in the year as high as 24, and touched 5 in the November break. The transaction represented more than one-fourth of the outstanding capital stock. Aviation shares generally continued sluggish with Fokker easing a little.

Such miscellaneous shares as Newmont Mining, Gulf Oil, Lehman Corporation, Trans-America, Goldman Sachs, Cities Service and Otis Elevator new gained a point or two.

Fox Theaters A touched a new low at 5¼, rebounded to 6½ and closed at 5⅝. Pennroad, which has been recently establishing new lows, rallied a point.

Interstate Equities continued heavy, touching a new low at 10. Niagara Hudson Power sold fractionally lower at another new low at 11¼.

WHEAT FUTURES UP OVER 4 CENTS ON LOCAL BOARD

Market Responds to Reported Intervention of Farmers National Grain Corporation on Behalf of Better Prices.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Dec. 21.—Wheat futures closed 4⅛ to 4⅝ cents higher today, following an upward range of over 5 cents at Chicago. Dispatch from there said buoyancy was in response to report of intervention of Farmers' National Grain Corporation in behalf of better price levels for wheat. Export business was estimated at 2,000,000 bushels. Liverpool was strong.

May wheat opened 3¼c higher and most of the gain was held in the early trade. Liverpool closed 1¾ to 2¼d higher. Winnipeg started out more than 4c higher. Corn opened nearly 2c higher and reacted slightly early.

May wheat opened at $1.28¼ and May corn 97c.

Local wheat receipts, which were 30,800 bushels, compared with 78,400 a week ago and 71,400 a year ago, included 7 cars local and 15 through. Corn receipts, which were 50,400 bushels, compared with 36,800 a week ago and 72,800 a year ago, included 28 cars local and 8 through. Oats receipts, which were 22,000 bushels, compared with 44,000 a week ago and 20,000 a year ago, included 9 cars local and 1 through. Hay receipts were 4 cars local and 5 through.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

Sales of cash grain made on the exchange Saturday were as follows:

No. 2 red winter wheat, $1.28½; No. 2 red winter wheat, $1.26; No. 1 hard wheat, $1.25½; No. 2 hard wheat, $1.24½; sample grade hard wheat, $1.10.

No. 4 yellow corn, 85½c; No. 4 white corn, 86c.

WHEAT FUTURES RISE OVER 5C AT CHICAGO

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—Soaring prices for wheat today carried the market here 5⅛c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish, and brought about big rushes of general buying. In connection with the price bulges, European demand for North American wheat to be shipped abroad took on a breadth of volume not witnessed previously in a long while, total trans-Atlantic purchases today amounting to about $2,000,000 bushel. By far the outstanding factor in hoisting wheat values was bidding which was inaugurated by representatives of the Federal Farm Board, at above current market quotations, although little if any actual wheat was obtained on the bids.

The big co-operative's bid of 1¼c above current cash prices after the market closed yesterday had an ameliorating effect on trading not only here but abroad. Closing yesterday about a cent below the farm board's loan level for wheat, the market ended today four cents over the fixed value.

Wheat closed buoyant at virtually the day's level, showing 4⅞ to 5⅛c net gain. Corn closed 1⅜ to 2c up, oats ⅜ to 1⅛c advanced provisions unchanged to a setback of 10 cents.

Much of the unusual buying activity which developed today in the wheat market here came from previous speculative sellers who were unprepared for the aggressive procedure announced by the Farmers' National Grain Corporation in bidding for delivery of wheat at prices fully up to the Federal Farm Board's basis for wheat loans. Traders who were short of wheat to fill December contracts in particular displayed anxiety which at times assumed almost a semi-panic character. Emphasizing the changed outlook resulting from the entrance of the Farmers Corporation into the market was a steep advance of prices today at Liverpool where except for development on this side of Atlantic, a decline had been expected.

Noticeable improvement of export demand today for wheat from North America did a good deal to strengthen wheat values here. It was estimated that well above 1,000,000 bushels had been bought overnight from the United States and Canada to be shipped overseas.

MORE WHEAT SOWN AND CONDITIONS BETTER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—An increase of 2 per cent over 1929 for the entire country in the area sown to winter wheat this fall was reported by the Department of Agriculture.

The sowings were 1.2 per cent greater than reported in August of this year.

The total area given to winter wheat was estimated at 43,690,000 acres. This is 92 per cent of the area planted in the fall of 1927 but is above that of prior years since the autumn of 1922 when 46,091,000 acres were given to winter wheat.

The condition of the winter wheat crop on Dec. 1 was estimated at 86 per cent of normal compared with 84.4 per cent last year and a 10-year average of 84.6.

Sowings in Kansas showed an increase in the report of 5 per cent over those of last fall, giving that leading winter wheat state 12,687,00 acres, or 29 per cent of the United States acreage. Wheat sown in that state, the report said, was a little late but otherwise conditions were ideal.

Texas showed an increase of 8 per cent, Ohio 13 per cent, Colorado 20 per cent and Montana 25 per cent. Pennsylvania and Indiana sowings were slightly heavier than last year. Illinois, Michigan, Missouri, Oklahoma and the Pacific Coast states showed a smaller acreage than last year.

The condition of the growing crop was reported good in most of the inter-wheat belt of the plains area and in the North Central states. In the Pacific Northwest and in California, the condition was reported low owing to dry weather in recent months.

Winter rye was sown on 3,446,000 acres, of three-tenths of 1 per cent more than the acreage sown in the fall of 1928. The acreage is 14 per cent less than that sown in 1927.

Rye condition was reported as 87.2 per cent of normal compared with 84.4 per cent last year at the same time and 88.2 per cent over the past 10 years.

The abandonment in 1929 of winter wheat was 6.2 per cent of the acreage sown in 1928 it was 23.5 per cent, and the average for the 10 years 1918-27 was 10.8 per cent.

COTTON CLOSES HIGHER IN NEW YORK MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Cotton was higher today on trade buying and week-end covering. The advance was considered partially a reflection of the market's technical position following recent declines, while the buying was encouraged by rather more cheerful reports from the goods markets and comparatively small offerings from the South. January contracts sold up to 17.02c and closed at 17.01c, with the general market closing firm at net advances of 23 to 27 points.

Cotton opened setady at unchanged prices to a decline of 5 poins, with active months selling 3 to 7 points net lower during the first few minutes, under further liquidation and local selling promoted by easier Liverpool cables.

Futures closed firm, 23@27 points higher: Dec., 17c; Jan., 17.01@17.02c; March, 17.32c; May, 17.56@17.58c; July, 17.75@17.77c; Oct., 17.75@17.77c. Spot steady; middling, 17.25c.

Prices made new low ground on all deliveries, with January selling at 16.70c and May at 17.27c, but this decline brought in some trade buying as well as week-end covering and the market just about recovered its initial losses, with prices holding steady before session had advanced far.

Cable advices said that hedging and liquidation had been absorbed by trade calling at the decline in Liverpool.

New Orleans Spot Cotton.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 21.—Spot cotton closed quiet 27 points up. Sales 623; low middling 15.46; middling 16.96; good middling 17.51. Receipts 3533; stock 514,350.

EARNINGS AND DIVIDENDS

Orders, factory productions and other business items, complied daily by Standard Statistics Co., Inc., New York.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—The week closed with business reports supplying little additional information on the current situation. The weekly mercantile reviews on business, as in the previous week, point out that retail trade is brisk, while wholesale trade, jobbing and manufacturing are slowing down. These tendencies are, of course, seasonal and the real trend, uninfluenced by the holiday period, will be more clearly defined after the turn of the year.

Bank clearings for the week ended Dec. 19, while slightly above the previous week, were again well below the corresponding week of 1928. Total clearings amounted to $11,914,755,000, a reduction of 10.9 per cent from a year ago. New York reported a decline of 12.7 per cent, while the 22 centers outside of New York recorded a 7.2 per cent drop.

WOMAN LINKED WITH MURDER OF GAMBLER

Teeth Marks on Body of Walter Le Vey Lead Police to This Theory.

East Side investigators of the murder of Walter Le Vey, roulette wheel operator at the Mounds Country Club, today advanced the theory that he had quarreled with a woman before being shot to death last Thursday.

The theory was based on the discovery of teeth marks on Le Vey's neck and right wrist by Deputy Coroner Madden who performed an autopsy.

"They are small teeth marks, apparently those of a woman," Madden said.

Le Vey died at St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis, Thursday noon, shortly after being taken there by James Noonan, floorman at the Mounds club, and Harry Wolf, a frequenter of the gambling resort, who told police they had found him leaning against a telephone pole three blocks from the hospital.

"Whoever got my money shot me," was Le Vey's only statement to police before he died. However, investigators do not think robbery was the motive for the killing. Le Vey was shot twice in the chest at close range.

FREE IN DEATH OF WIFE HE ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

Dr. Frank Bellows, Dentist, Released — Mate Died of Pneumonia.

A Coroner's verdict of death from acute bronchial pneumonia, with erysipelas as a contributory cause, was returned today following an autopsy on Mrs. Clara Bellows, 60 years old, wife of Dr. Frank Bellows, a dentist, 2631 Keokuk street.

Mrs. Bellows, who died at Isolation Hospital yesterday, was taken to City Hospital on Nov. 23 suffering from a bullet wound in her knee. On her statement that she suffered the wound while leaving her home following a quarrel with her husband, who had been drinking, Dr. Bellows was arrested.

Patrolman George Heier, who investigated, testified Dr. Bellows had explained he dropped a revolver he intended to hide from his wife, as she left their home, and the bullet passed through the front door and struck her in the knee. Heier said he found a bullet hole in the door. Dr. Bellows, according to Heier, said his wife had been ill and threatened to "jump in the river," causing him to hide the revolver. Another policeman testified Mrs. Bellows stated she did not wish to prosecute her husband.

Mrs. Agnes Jordan, 2633 Keokuk street, testified Mrs. Bellows had complained to her of being ill and spoke of ending her life.

Dr. Bellows, who did not testify upon being advised of his constitutional rights, was ordered released following the inquest.

LEGION AGAINST DIVERTING CIVIL WAR ORPHANS' FUND

Wants $67,000 Remaining in It Used for Orphans of Subsequent Wars.

Opposition to diversion of the Civil War soldiers' orphan fund will be made Monday by the American Legion when a petition for such diversion is taken up by Circuit Judge Landwehr, says Charles E. Downs, chairman of the commanders' conference of the Legion.

"It seems only fair," he said, "that money raised for the benefit of orphans of the Civil War should continue to serve its purpose. In the wake of the later wars there exists exactly the same sort of need as existed when the fund was created."

The fund was created at the close of the Civil War and has been used for caring for orphans of that war, but as this need no longer exists the trustees have asked permission to turn it over to the Women's Christian Home, 2709 Locust street. About $67,000 remains.

URGES STUDY OF FACES ON NEW BILLS TO DETECT RAISED NOTES

Secret Service Agent Gives Warning Against Counterfeit Money Recently Reported.

The local bureau of the United States Secret Service has issued a warning to tradesmen against raised notes of the new issues of small bills, which recently have appeared in several of the larger cities of the country. During the last few weeks many of the counterfeits have been passed in Kansas City—$1 bills raised to $10 and $5 bills raised to $20.

Leo Smugal, head of the Secret Service here, suggests that clerks and cashiers familiarize themselves with the pictures of the great Americans that appear on the various bills and thus have a certain means of detecting the spurious bills. The new currency bears pictures of Washington on $1 bills, Jefferson on $2 bills, Lincoln on $5 bills, Hamilton on $10 bills, and Jackson on $20 bills.

SENTENCED TO A YEAR FOR BITING OFF MAN'S EAR

John Price Convicted of Mayhem for Attack on Bartender Who Refused Him Whisky.

John Price, 28-year-old machinist of 4517 Maffit avenue, was sentenced to a year in the Workhouse by a jury in Circuit Judge Calhoun's Court yesterday, on a charge of mayhem, for biting off part of the ear of John Doggendorf, 41 years old, in a fight in the latter's saloon and restaurant at 3101 South Seventh street, last October. The jury deliberated two hours.

Doggendorf testified that Price and his wife came in the saloon and demanded whisky. When he told them he did not sell whisky, he said, Price attacked him and Mrs. Price joined in, sitting on Doggendorf while her husband bit him. The piece of ear, preserved in alcohol was presented as evidence.

CALLS ON HOOVER FOR STATEMENT ON SUGAR TARIFF

Congressman Garner Asks Him to Deny or Affirm Charge That He Aided Lobby.

SAYS HE OWES HIS NATION DECLARATION

If Statement Credited to Him Is Untrue Accuser Should Be Prosecuted, He Asserts.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Representative John Garner of Texas, Democratic leader of the House, declared yesterday that if Gov. Smith had been elected President last year and his name had been bandied about as H. C. Lakin, president of the Cuba Co., has used President Hoover's name, impeachment proceedings would have been discussed in the House of Representatives before now.

"The statements in the letters of Lakin and the President's friend, Edwin P. Shattuck, representing that the President of the United States has been directly and indirectly engaged in conniving with the Cuban sugar lobby to effect tariff legislation, should not be permitted to go unanswered or unaccounted for," Garner said. "Mr. Shattuck's denial that he had discussed sugar legislation with the President by no means disposes of the matter. There are definite statements in the letters of the sugar lobbyists that imply the absolute contrary."

Garner stated that, if it could be proved that Lakin and Shattuck had misrepresented the President, they should be prosecuted for obtaining money under false pretenses and be disbarred.

Calls for Declaration.

"In justice to the presidential office," Garner said, "Mr. Hoover owes to the country a direct, definite and positive declaration on the subject. Failing this, a great many people will accept the evidence as proving that the President of the United States has been participating in the secret conspiracy against the interests of his own countrymen engaged in the sugar industry.

"It is not part of the question whether the Cubans have the right or the wrong of the controversy.

"The President has declared on more than one occasion that he would not meddle in the legislative affairs of the country. The documentary evidence would convey the impression that the President was untrue to his own word.

"Take the other explanation of the episode. If the President, either personally or through his secretary, Walter Newton, did not say the things and do the things mentioned in these letters, some method should be found o punish the men who assumed to speak by his authority and who reported to the head of a foreign government that our President had committed himself to aid their plans. If they deliberately misrepresented the President in order to impress President Machado of Cuba with their importance, for the purpose of getting large fees, they are guilty of the vulgar crime of obtaining money under false pretenses and the lawyers among them should be disbarred. It may be that they have also offended against the Logan law, which forbids an unauthorized person to negotiate with a foreign government on matters appertaining o tour government.

Action Up to President.

"Unless President Hoover speaks out, there will be no such visitation upon the men guilty of these offenses, and the Cuban Government will continue to believe, as the correspondence shows it now believes, that President Hoover was a party to the attempt covertly to influence the Congress of the United States.

"Had a Democratic President figured in this matter as Mr. Hoover figures, the Republican press of the United States would be ringing with his denunciation. It is a repetition of what happened when the stock market crash had threatened the country with a disastrous panic. Had Smith been President that would have been hailed as the natural consequence of Democratic ineptness and incapacity. As it is, the Republicans hotly protest against the description of the crash as a 'Hoover panic.'"

MAN EXECUTED FOR MURDER OF 7-YEAR-OLD BOY

By the Associated Press.

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 21.—Nervous and unable to repeat the prayers uttered by his priest, Peter Kudzinowski, slayer of a 7-year-old New York boy, died in the electric chair at the State Prison last night.

Kudzinowski, who lured Joseph Storelli from his East Side playmates with a bag of candy, killed him when he cried for his mother, and then in a drunken ramble confessed to police.

He was accompanied by the Rev. Louis Guzzardi, who a few hours before had heard his confession and given him holy communion.

ONLY SEVEN PERSONS TO SEE HELEN WILLS MARRIED

And One of These Is Rector Who Will Perform Ceremony Monday.

By the Associated Press.

BERKELEY, Cal., Dec. 21.—Only nine persons will be in St. Clements chapel here next Monday noon, when Helen Wills, tennis star, weds Frederick S. Moody Jr., San Francisco broker.

These persons will be present: The bride and bridegroom; the Rev. Lindley H. Miller, rector of the chapel, who will perform the ceremony; the parents of the bride, Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Wills of Berkeley; the parents of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick S. Moody Sr. of San Francisco, and Mr. and Mrs. Corbitt Moody of Burlingame, Cal. Corbitt Moody is a brother of the bridegroom.

The world's woman tennis champion will not wear the traditional bridal gown, but will go to the altar dressed in a Patou model brown tailored suit, with felt hat to match. After the ceremony the party will go to the Wills home for an informal wedding breakfast. Then Mr. and Mrs. Moody Jr. will depart on a wedding journey of two or three weeks.

Just where the honeymoon trip will take them remains a secret, but rumors persisted that they would sail down the Mexican coast on the yacht Galatea, owned by Cyril Tobin, San Francisco attorney.

The young pair will make their home in San Francisco. Messages of congratulation and best wishes poured into the Wills home today from all parts of the world.

FARMERS' GRAIN CORPORATION TO BID IN LEADING MARKETS

Enters Chicago Trade by Offering $1.18 for No. 1 Hard Wheat.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—Following the action of the Farmers' National Grain Corporation in going into the Chicago wheat market yesterday with a bid of $1.18 for No. 1 hard wheat, country run, it was announced at the corporation's offices here that similar action would be taken immediately in all other principal markets.

Corporation officials added that the organization would probably be buying wheat on all principal markets by Monday.

The bid of $1.18 was 1¼ cents above Friday's close.

The corporation also announced it had entered into a contract with W. G. Kellogg of Minneapolis to take charge of the corporation's grain marketing operations. Mr. Kellogg started in the grain business in Milwaukee 25 years ago. He has been connected with Archer, Daniels Midland Co. of Minneapolis, the Delmar Co. of Minneapolis, a subsidiary of the Armour Grain Co., and the firm of Stacks & Kellogg, Milwaukee.

THREE MEN, WHO TRIED TO ROB HOTEL IN LONDON, CAPTURED

Cashier Shouts for Help and Other Employes Sound Police Whistles.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 21.—Three men, smartly dressed, who attempted to rob the cash box of the fashionable Savoy Hotel in the Strand last evening were captured by police despite a desperate struggle. A fourth escaped.

The men entered the hotel when it was thronged with dinner and dance guests. They asked the cashier to change Canadian notes into English money. The cashier shouted for help when they reached for the cash box and hotel attendants promptly sounded police whistles and chased the fleeing raiders.

The chase drew an immense crowd and stopped traffic on the Strand.

The three men arrested will appear in police court today on charges of attempting to steal £42 (about $200) which was the amount found near where they were taken.

PROF. MICHELSON, SCIENTIST, RESIGNS CHICAGO U. POST

Noted Physicist Quits Job Because of Health; Is 77 Years Old.

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—Prof. Albert A. Michelson, world-famous physicist who observed his seventy-seventh birthday Thursday, has resigned as head of the physics department of the University of Chicago. The famous scientist asked to be relieved from duty at the end of the school year, in June, 1930, because of his health. His action came unexpectedly and was not disclosed until the Board of Trustees announced the acceptance of the resignation last night.

With Mrs. Michelson, the scientist will travel to Bermuda. Before spring Prof. Michelson plans to go to California to continue experiments calculated to determine more minutely the speed of light.

"And after that is completed, maybe I'll take life easy. Maybe I'll begin to think about retiring," said the man who has devoted 54 years in scientific research.

70,000 HEAR POPE SAY MASS AT ST. PETER'S

Pontiff Cheered and Applauded on Fiftieth Anniversary of His Priesthood.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Dec. 21.—Pope Pius XI today descended into St. Peter's and celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his first mass. The ceremony was in striking contrast to his historic exit from the Vatican yesterday to take possession for the first time in 69 years of the church of St. John Lateran, the seat of his diocese as Bishop of Rome.

Today's ceremony was attended by all the color and sound which accompanies the papal mass in the world's largest church. The cathedral, with a capacity of 70,000, was filled for the event.

Pope Pius was ordained a priest Dec. 20, 1879, as Don Ratti. He said his first mass the following day at San Carlo al Corso, in Rome, the church dedicated to St. Charles Borromeo, patron of the Lombardy region from which he came.

Today to the strains of the famous silver trumpets of the Noble Guard, the Pope was borne in on the Sedia Gestatoria by his eight stalwart bearers, while the congregation, at first sight of him, broke into applause punctured by cheers of "Viva il Papa!" (long live the Pope!). The handclapping and cheering increased as he went up the nave. The Pontiff tried to quell it with a gesture, but to no avail. He had to content himself with moving his right hand slowly, making the sign of the cross, in benediction to the throng below.

When he was half way to the altar the Sistine choir began to sing "Tu es Petrus" (Thou Art Peter), which always greets the Pope on a formal occasion. After the time necessary for his putting on the vestments, the Pontiff knelt at the bottom of the altar steps and began the mass.

The feast day commemorated was that of St. Thomas the Apostle, and as the celebration occurred in advent, a mourning season, several prayers normally used were omitted. At the moment of the elevation of the host, after the consecration, the silver trumpets sounded again. After the last Gospel had been read by the Pope, the congregation started singing the Nicene Creed. The Pontiff then imparted the apostolic benediction.

Forty cardinals attended the service, including Cardinals Daugherty and Hayes of the United States. Bishop O'Reilly of Scranton, Pa., and Auxiliary Bishop O'Hara of Philadelphia took part in the procession.

At the close of the ceremony, the Pope greeted each of the 40 cardinals personally. He said to Cardinal Hayes: "My blessing on yourself, New York and all America."

The Pope returned to his private apartments as he had come, applauded and cheered all the way.

SAID TO HAVE SEIZED LEADERS IN MEXICAN POLITICAL PLOT

Gen. Benignos Reported to Be Taking Vasconcelos Followers From Tampico to Mexico City.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 21.—Dispatches to El Universal from Tampico say Gen. Arturo Benignos, who has been investigating an alleged plot against the Government by followers of Jose Vasconcelos, defeated candidate for the presidency, is on his way to the capital with leaders of the plot, whose names were not divulged.

In addition to 50 persons detained at Tampico on Wednesday a number of arrests have been made at Villa Cecilia, near there. Many others appeared voluntarily before the authorities to attest their innocence.

The Instituto Comercial de Ingles y Espanol was closed at Tampico, and the principal, Miss Elisa Rivera, was arrested and a quantity of Vasconcellos propaganda was confiscated. A private home in Mexico City was raided Thursday night and 10 persons were arrested on charges of plotting against the Government. Their names were not made public.

MANUFACTURER IS KILLED IN TUNNEL UNDER HUDSON

J. C. Waterbury of New York Thought to Have Taken Own Life.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—There was some mystery today over the death of John C. Waterbury, 49 years old, manufacturer and socially prominent New Yorker, whose body was found yesterday along the tracks in the Pennsylvania Railroad tunnel under the Hudson River.

He was returning aboard a Lehigh Valley Railroad train from Wilkes-Barre, Pa., where he had gone earlier in the week on business.

E. J. Pyne, district claim agent of the Lehigh Valley, said reports to his office indicated Waterbury had killed himself. To support this theory he pointed to the fact that the door of the compartment occupied by Waterbury was locked from the inside and a window open.

$235,000 for Ohio River Work.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20. — The War Department today approved allotment of $235,000 for dredging the lower section of the Ohio River to provide a minimum channel depth of nine feet. These funds are to be taken from allotments previously made for dams numbers 50 and 51, on the Lower Ohio.

MUST STAND TRIAL FOR KILLING OF BRIDE

Idaho Salesman Says He Told Her to Leap From Burning Auto.

By the Associated Press.

EMMETT, Idaho, Dec. 21.—John C. McClurg, real estate and automobile salesman, was bound over yesterday for trial on a charge of murdering and burning his bride, Mary McClurg, 21 years old, on Dec. 9.

The body of Mrs. McClurg was found in the burned wreckage of the McClurg automobile after the machine had plunged over a steep grade on the road between Emmett and Caldwell. McClurg declares the car got out of his control and he leaped to safety after calling to his bride to do likewise.

It is the contention of prosecution that McClurg killed his wife to collect on a $10,000 double indemnity insurance policy for which she had applied 10 days before her death.

58 SHIPS DOCK AT NEW YORK IN DAY, A RECORD, AS FOG LIFTS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—A new record for incoming vessels was set in the New York Harbor yesterday when 58 ships, most of them fog-bound outside the channel 12 to 48 hours, proceeded to their piers as a stiff west wind lifted the heavy fog which has paralyzed shipping for days.

The previous record of 57 ships was set on Jan. 19, 1926, when a heavy fog which enveloped the harbor brought about a similar delay in arrivals.

Ten trans-Atlantic liners and seven other passenger ships were among the incoming vessels yesterday, several of them two days late.

Together with 42 freighters and tankers, they had remained outside the harbor waiting for the fog to lift, unable to penetrate the thick blanket in view of the added menace to navigation presented by the wreckage of the liner Fort Victoria, rammed and sunk by the Algonquin Wednesday. The wreck lies in 60 feet of water in the channel with part of the hull awash.

RUSSIA DISAPPROVES CONSULS' TRIP TO MANCHURIAN WAR AREA

Moscow Replies to Japanese Note; Train Being Held Up at Buchatu.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Dec. 21.—Disapproval by the Russian Government of the visit of an international train to war-torn Northwestern Manchuria was officially intimated to the Japanese Embassy at Moscow, official dispatches here stated today.

Meanwhile, the train, bearing Consuls of several nations who are trying to learn of the conditions of their nationals in the war area, remains at Buchatu. Consuls at Harbin and Mukden are attempting to overcome Chinese objections to investigators proceeding to the scene of the recent Russian invasion west of the Khingan Mountains.

In reply to recent notes from the Japanese Ambassador at Moscow, the Soviet Government today indicated its willingness to investigate and indemnify Japan, if it were proven that Russians were responsible for alleged deaths of Japanese at Manchuria early this week.

INDECENT BOOK PLOT CHARGED

Objectionable Matter Said to Have Been Offered to Students.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—John S. Sumner, superintendent of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, told Magistrate Dodge yesterday that his agents had uncovered a scheme for the circulation of indecent books among students of 200 colleges and universities.

Sumner's charge was directed against Earl D. Marks, 32 years old, who was arraigned on a charge of selling indecent literature. Sumner said agents for Marks offered students copies of prohibited books if they would subscribe $7.80 for standard magazines. The book which led to the arrest of Marks was "Aphrodite," by Pierre Louys. Magistrate Dodge adjourned the hearing until Jan. 24.

ARMS DELEGATE FOR CANADA

Defense Minister Named to Attend Naval Parley at London.

By the Associated Press.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 21.—Col. J. L. Ralston, Minister of National Defense, last night was appointed as Canada's representative at the London conference on naval disarmament. Announcement of the appointment was made by Prime Minister Mackenzie King after a lenghty Cabinet meeting.

Col. Ralston will be accompanied by Commodore W. Hose, chief of the naval staff of the National Defense Department. Maj. Vanier, who is at present overseas on Government business, probably will join Ralston in London.

BELGIAN PROTEST ON TAXES

Stores Close and Neither Meals Nor Drink Are on Sale.

BRUSSELS, Dec. 21.—A city-wide demonstration in favor of tax reductions began last night. Shopkeepers complied with the request of the trades unions and closed, leaving Christmas shoppers uncertainly milling about in the streets.

For the first time in Belgian history, one could not get a drink or a meal in any of the many thousands of cafes, bars and restaurants. A few theaters were open but most people preferred to attend protest meetings.

HEARTS HAVEN

By Mildred Barbour

The Struggle of The Heart and Conscience of Christine Farr

CHAPTER 30.

THE BEGINNING OF A CHANCE.

CHRISTINE found her new work pleasant. It brought her into contact with a new and interesting class of people—quite different from the staff in the magazine office where she had worked under the autocratic Miss Perkins; far removed from the cheap little cabaret where she had danced. Different, too, from the salesroom of the smart little specialty shop where she had earned a scanty living.

She was both eager and thrilled about the theatrical people with whom she came in contact every day. To her, the glamour of the footlights was still about them, even when they received her in negligee, in none too tidy apartments, and talked to her over their morning coffee.

At first her interviews were notable for their originality. She asked eager and naive questions, and voiced the curiosity she felt. Sometimes her queries brought forth gales of laughter; sometimes they were met with a gravity which induced some really worthy response. She had the knack of interpreting any mood, and she put into her work all the freshness and enthusiasm which still struggled to survive, in spite of her bitter experience.

But, little by little the character of her work changed. It began to take on some of the hardness and sophistication which she encountered on every hand. This was due partly to the fact that she had learned to be ready with a flippant retort when someone made an impertinent remark to her; that she had discovered it was best to wink at things which formerly would have shocked her.

Christine learned to laugh and answer with some flippant, current phrase. Slang seemed to creep into her vocabulary very easily. Almost before she knew it she had become as New Yorkese as any other of the thousands of so-called New Yorkers who were born in small towns throughout the country.

She had another bitter experience about that time.

* * *

THE bills for medical care for Junior were so large that she could not meet them. She swallowed her pride and, for the first time, wrote to her family for financial assistance. She would not have done it for herself, but for him she felt no sacrifice was too great. Her father sent her the money—with a rebuke.

About that time she made the acquaintance of a girl named Nina Marcy. She was not quite sure what Nina's job was. It had something to do with advance publicity for shows, and it seemed to net Nina a pretty good income. She had an apartment of her own and dressed stunningly.

"Quite simple to manage," Nina explained with a shrug, when Christine admired a leopard-skin coat she was wearing. "Outside of my apartment, all my salary goes on my back. I rarely have to buy a meal, except breakfast. There are plenty of men in this fair city who are willing to buy a good-looking girl a dinner or a lunch."

"It must be nice to have so many friends," sighed Christine wistfully.

"Friends! Pouf!" shrugged Nina. "They are mere acquaintances. Of course, they are, most of them, hoping for something more, but you can kid them for a long time before they tumble. You are a fool not to accept all the invitations that must come your way in the course of a day's work."

It struck Christine that Nina was a second edition—more refined, but not quite so honest or so nice—of little Rosa who had been on the cabaret program of the Paradise, and yet she liked Nina and found her easy optimism very reassuring. But then, Nina could afford to be cheerful and careless and indulge her really excellent taste. She had neither the moral nor financial responsibility of two small children.

"Why don't you come up to my apartment some Friday night?" suggested Nina. "It's my night at home, and I always have a shindig. Some of my friends are interesting—a few playwrights and authors, an artist or two, and often some of the big men in the producing end of the game. You are likely to find yourself a beau," she added laughingly.

"I don't want a beau as much as I want a man who'd believe in me and give me a chance to do some real writing," said Christine.

Nina shook her head: "You won't find any of us very serious at my parties. We talk shop, but not for business purposes. Come this Friday night, anyway."

Christine went that Friday night and the next Friday and the next, and so on for week after week. She became a part of that gay crowd. It was there she first met Henry Sanford. He was a millionaire and a well-known backer of shows.

* * *

NINA'S apartment was as daring and colorful as her own personality. It was reached by a queer, greenish-blue door, bearing a brass knocker in the shape of a lion's head. Her living-room, or studio, as she preferred to call it, was hung with cheese-cloth dyed a bright orange. There were black divans and black and red cushions, and peacock feathers arranged in the shape of a fan over a big, empty fireplace, defying superstition as Nina defied convention.

A piano in one corner was used mainly for holding trays of cocktails. The chairs and tables were put to a similar use, and the guests generally sat on cushions on the floor, surrounded by cigarettes and ash-trays.

Nina worked hard in preparation for her guests, making innumerable sandwiches in her small kitchenette, and squeezing lemons and oranges, but the men brought the liquor and frequently other delicacies for a late supper, for they all knew Nina's little way.

Around 11 o'clock, if no one had brought anything, she was in the habit of saying:

"Dear me, aren't we all famished? If I only had some mushrooms and some cheese, I could stir up the most heavenly dish. Tommy, won't you be a darling and run over to the delicatessen in the next block? Wait till I get my purse."

Of course, Tommy, or Jimmy, or Jerry, as the case might be, gallantly declined to be reimbursed for his purchases, and somehow Nina never had exactly the right change to give them before they left.

Christine first heard of Henry Sanford in connection with this little ruse of Nina's.

"Henry is the only one that ever called her bluff," one of Nina's friends confided to Christine. "My dear, he did it, actually, and he's a millionaire! Gosh, you should have seen her face when he took a dollar and seventy-five cents out of her two-dollar bill and gravely gave her 25 cents in change. I'll say Nina was game, though. She told him to keep the quarter for a tip, and he laughed and did it. Of course, he sent her gorgeous orchids the next day."

* * *

CHRISTINE had remembered the name of Sanford, and, when she come one Friday evening, Nina told her that she was expecting him that night.

"Oh, I am glad. I have always wanted to meet him."

Nina looked up from the bread she was cutting and made a significant grimace.

"You are not the only little girl who has an eye out for Sandy. He hasn't a thing to do but spend money, and he amuses himself by backing theatrical productions, especially plays by new talent. I think he likes to be spoken of as a patron of the arts but I'll tell you privately that he doesn't know whether Rembrandt is a cheese or a painter."

Christine tied an apron over her frock and began to butter thin slices of bread.

"Gosh, I am tired!" sighed Nina. "I wish you had come earlier."

"I tried to, but I am worried about Junior. I won't dare stay long, because I don't trust that girl very much. He had one of his spells of high spirits this evening and I'm afraid it has left him very tired."

"Is he a temperamental youngster?" asked Nina.

"He is exactly like his father," Christine said quickly, as if she thrust back an unwelcome thought. "Just as briliant and gay and laughing. I think he is going to develop into a genius."

"Oh, good Heavens, you are not going to start the maternal bragging, are you, Christine? There is the bell. Somebody's arrived. Finish up the sandwiches, will you?"

Christine remained in the kitchenette while the rest of the guests arrived. One of them poked his head through the swinging door and said:

"Great jumping catfish! Look what Nina's got working for her now. Listen, child, I'm going to help."

He came in, and Christine laughingly tied an apron around his waist. They finished the sandwiches together, stopping for a surreptitious cocktail or two. Their absence was finally noticed by the rest of the guests, who invaded the kitchenette and dragged them forth.

"No spooning so early in the evening," one of the men declared. "And besides, I have already engaged the kitchenette for that purpose later tonight."

The group settled itself on cushions on the floor. The cigarettes were passed around and the evening's babble of conversation began.

It was then that Christine noticed the new man who sat a little apart from the others. Introductions were always dispensed with at Nina's, so she whispered to her neighbor:

"Who is the lean, dark, saturnine soul who looks at us as if we were frolicsome puppies?"

"That's Sandy—Henry Sanford, the millionaire."

Christine rose deliberately, walked over to the thin, dark man by the fireplace and seated herself beside him.

She looked up at him with her most enchanting smile.

PAID IN HEALTH FOR HIS RICHES

Ten Furious Years of Building Up His Empire of Oil Left Him Weak.

By JOHN K. WINKLER.

CHAPTER VI

IN 1882, John Rockefeller sat modestly in a modest office at 44 Broadway, New York, with the world in his lap. This was three years before the great Standard Oil enterprises moved a few doors down the street and 26 Broadway became the best known business address on earth.

By a series of maneuvers, Rockefeller had concentrated into his own hands an emperor's power over an industry. He was in the dictator's seat and setting the price foreign countries were required to pay for oil. Above all, he had scattered and routed the producers.

It was during this bitter but brilliant strife that Rockefeller's genius reached its zenith. But, in the fires of that consuming struggle, were laid the foundations for digestive and nervous maladies that later almost cost Rockefeller his life and did cost him his stomach, reducing his diet to that of the pauper.

A Different Man.

The Rockefeller of 1882 was a very different man from the vigorous, vital Rockefeller of 10 years before. A wisp of frost showed in this later Rockefeller's hair and in the mop of moustache that completely covered his thin lips. There was a noticeable stoop in the shoulders. Vertical furrows were beginning to plow the cheeks. A slight film clouded the cold blue eyes that seemed to look through rather than at one.

John D. had gone through more than a lifetime in these 10 years. Often his mail had been heavy with death threats. The "Holy Blue" Standard barrels had often been scrawled with cross-and-skulls. Rioting men had cursed his name. He had been indicted by a grand jury as a business fraud and conspirator against his fellow man. The price of ambition was stiff. But he was willing to pay it.

PUBLIC outcry had killed the notorious South Improvement Company. But certain features of the scheme appealed mightily to Rockefeller, Flagler and their associates in the powerful Standard Oil Company of Cleveland. The rebate and the drawback allured them.

So, quietly, they negotiated another rebate with the New York Central system. They dickered with William H. Vanderbilt—Son Billy—who'd say: "These men are smarter than I." This rebate did not become publicly known until blurted out years later in one of the numerous anti-trust investigations. Possibly as a bit of salve to the Vanderbilt conscience, Son Billy was sold (or given) stock in the Standard Oil Company.

About the same period, 1874, Jay Gould's Erie Railroad saw the advantage of an alliance with Rockefeller and Flagler.

A contract was signed, under date of April 17, 1874, by which the Weehawken yards passed into the control of the Standard in return for the latter's pledge to ship 50 per cent of the products of its Western refineries over the Erie. The agreement gave Rockefeller wonderful advantages. He now had two trunk lines in his pocket—Central and Erie. He could play one against the other. He was in a position to spy out the activities of other oil shippers. In those days half the battle lay in knowing what the other fellow was doing and with whom he was allied.

Planned His Trust.

He planned an organisation of the strongest refineries of the country, under his control. This was the crux of his dream and the entering wedge by which he was eventually to control no less than 85 per cent of the oil industry.

ACCORDINGLY, in the summer of 1874, Rockefeller wrote to William G. Warden of Philadelphia, a colleague of two years before in the South Improvement Co., inviting him and Charles Lockhart of Pittsburg to a conference at Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

Warden was hesitant. But he had met Rockefeller often enough to realize that this striding young Goliath was no man to ignore. So he approached Lockhart, strongest of the Pittsburg refiners, and together they entrained for Saratoga.

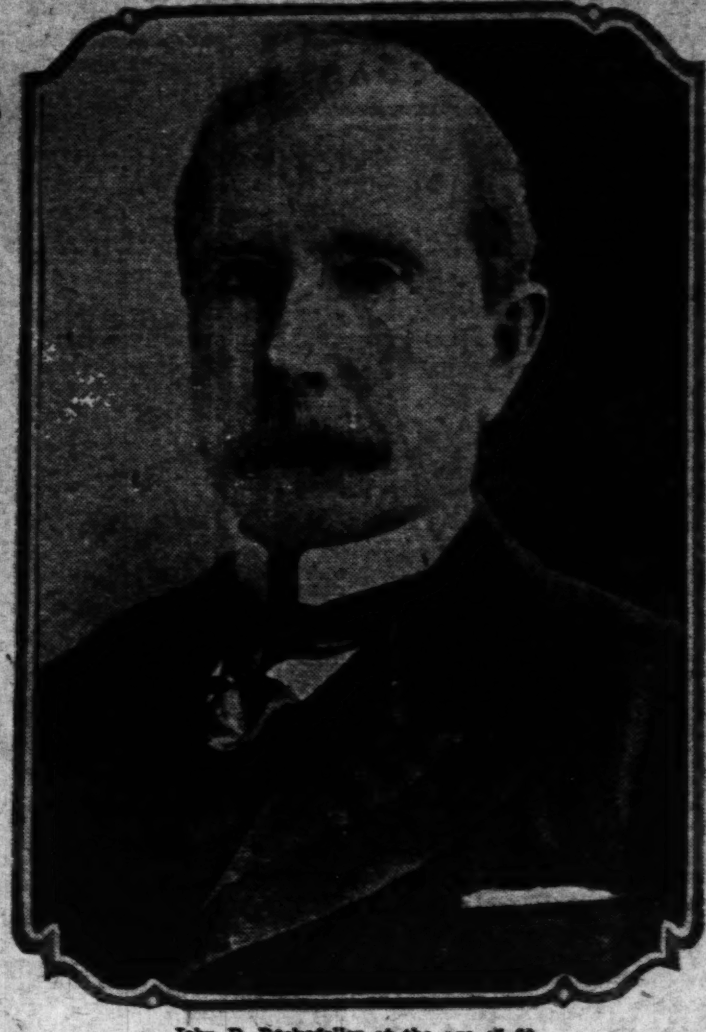

Flagler and Rockefeller had been at the Spa for a week enjoying the waters and the races. John D. has always loved horses, though, as a man strictly opposed to gambling in any form, he has never bet on the races. He has owned some fine pacers and trotters. Even in this horseless age, his stables at Pocantico house 40 mounts.

So the four oil men—Rockefeller, Flagler, Warden and Lockhart—came together at breakfast in Saratoga.

In the clear, azure sunshine of August, they strolled out to a pavilion. Six hours passed. The Standard Oil men confided to their guests that their profits for the preceding year had been more than $1,000,000 on a capitalization of $2,500,000. The very satisfactory profit they explained, was the sole result of combination in one refining center.

They proposed the formation of a secret alliance to be called the Central Association. This Association would take over their plants and others and operate jointly. Needless to say, the Central Association was, in reality, the Standard Oil Co.

At the end of the fateful conference, Warden and Lockhart agreed not only to join the new Association but actually to sell their plants to the Standard Oil Co., taking stock in exchange. Also they agreed to buy out rival refineries in their districts.

John D. Rockefeller at the age of 60.

THE material for this intimate narrative of the life of the founder of the great Standard Oil fortune was obtained by the author from legal records, from old-time associates, and, in some details, from members of the family.

Now John D. was launched upon the greatest adventures of his life! A dream of years coming true. . . . . .

Rockefeller and Flagler then went to New York and in October of that momentous 1874 persuaded Charles Pratt and H. H. Rogers (grandfather of Millicent Rogers), of Charles Pratt & Co. to sell out to them. Pratt & Co. was a solidly established firm. Pratt & Rogers received stock in the Standard.

ON March 10 of the following year, 1875, the Standard Oil Co.'s capitalisation was increased from $2,500,000 to $3,500,000. There were more than a dozen new stockholders, including W. H. Vanderbilt and John Huntington, the gravel roof man.

Helped Associates.

Rockefeller played fair with his new associates, demanding and securing for them from the New York Central and the Erie the same 10 per cent secret rebate the Standard was enjoying. He presented a similar demand to the Pennsylvania, with similarly satisfactory results. Col. Joseph D. Potts objected. He was president of the great Empire Transportation Co., pipe line ally of the Pennsylvania.

But the implacable, relentless Rockefeller had his way. Everywhere refineries sold or leased to his Central Association.

Needless to say, Frank Rockefeller was not among those who sold. John D.'s younger brother had gone into refining on his own and was barely managing to keep afloat his concern—the Pioneer Oil Co. Whenever there was a public probe of the Standard (and there have been dozens) Frank always attended without subpena and eagerly awaited an opportunity to denounce his brother. Generally, John D.'s only reply was: "Poor Frank, I carried him in my arms when he was a baby."

WITHIN a year the Central Association was riding high. However, one element threatened its complete suzerainty. This was the powerful Empire Pipe Line.

The extremely able Empire president, Col. Potts, had quietly decided to build up some more business for the Empire by buying into several of the remaining independent seaboard refineries.

When Rockefeller learned (and depend upon it he learned immediately) that Potts had purchased two refineries, he was as mad as a hornet. He buzzed into the offices of Tom Scott, president of the Pennsylvania, and of A. J. Cassatt, then third vice president in charge of transportation, and protested bitterly. "Here, I have gone out of my way," said the outraged John D., "to be friendly to the Pennsylvania in the allotment of oil shipments and now you gentlemen are permitting your associate, Col. Potts, actually to invade the Central Association's field. Why, it is nothing more nor less than piracy. You must call off this peacher, Potts."

But old Tom and A. J. stood firm. They couldn't see that the Empire had done anything so dreadful in buying a couple of Philadelphia and New York refineries. Hadn't Rockefeller bought up or built many hundreds of miles of pipe lines? Wasn't his own shoe more pinching than that of Potts?

Were Afraid of Him.

Truth is, Scott and Cassatt were beginning to take fright at Rockefeller's growing power. They were keen minds. They had begun to wonder whether the great Pennsylvania Railroad — itself bitterly attacked as an Octopus—would eventually become enclosed in the coils of the Rockefeller Anaconda.

So they sent John D. away—the latter in a mood almost smoking. The war was on. It lasted almost 18 months. The Standard, of course, withdrew every ounce of freight from the Pennsylvania. The Erie and Central Rockefeller allies cut rates and enticed independents from the Pennsy. Here was the opportunity of the century for the three systems to combine and bring Rockefeller to heel. But the roads were gangrened with jealousy. John D. profited.

Despite grievious losses, the Pennsylvania remained strong and full of fight until the summer of 1877. Then a general strike tied up its traffic for weeks. The road lost millions and for the first time had to pass dividends.

To shorten a lengthy story, Cassatt went to Cleveland in the late summer of '77, saw Rockefeller and Flagler and sued for peace. On Oct. 17, 1877, the Standard Oil Co. purchased the Empire Transportation Co.'s pipe lines, refining interests, tank cars and personal property for $3,400,000. Of this vast sum, $2,500,000 was paid immediately in certified checks.

Daily Story FOR CHILDREN

By Mary Graham Bonner

The Clock's Family.

"I COULDN'T resist having you meet some of my family who are about to take a journey," the Little Black Clock said.

John and Peggy couldn't imagine what the Little Black Clock was going to do.

He led them to a railway station, and there they saw a flat car ready to be attached to the regular train.

"Some of my family are traveling in that flat car," the Little Black Clock said, "and then they're going to be fixed up into a gorgeous big clock in another city.

"They wouldn't be comfortable in an ordinary box car, and they wouldn't fit into it very well, so they've had this car made specially for them. Isn't that a great honor?

"Oh, really you'll forgive me if I chatter a little! I'm so proud of my family. There are so many of us. We are an enormous family, and we are made in all sorts of different ways.

"Some of the family go outside of huge buildings, some go in big halls, some have wonderful faces made for them, and others have gorgeous chimes and bells.

"Oh, there are so many clock styles and so many clock ways, and you must admit that we're one of the largest families in the world.

"My dears, you can't go anywhere, hardly, where there isn't some member of the family to be found.

"And we really keep in very good health. Of course sometimes we have to have doctors—and the clocks that live an outdoor life have to be looked after."

"How do they have to be looked after?" asked John.

"That's all I want! A question! I'll answer it with pleasure," the Little Black Clock said delightedly. So they sat down by the flat car which was to take a clock on a journey and waited for the Little Black Clock to continue.

THE MARRY-GO-ROUND
By Helen Rowland.

LOVERS—AND OTHERS.

A SUPER-WOMAN is one who can win an argument with a man—and then get him to say that he loves her.

A man's wife is something like the Equator; in a subconscious way, he knows she's there—but he can look right at her without seeing her.

* * *

What no woman can understand is why a man will spend weeks trying to wedge his way into a girl's affections—and then, suddenly turn around in a panic and try to squirm out of them.

* * *

The shyest man on earth never doubts but that SOME woman wants to marry him. The shyest man in the world will "shy" at anything that is thrown at his head—particularly if it happens to be a woman.

* * *

Infatuation, like paralysis, is so often all on one side.

* * *

Here's to that woman-politician, who boasts that she has been happily married to the same man for over thirty years! It takes far more courage to go on living with the average man, than to walk out to a good-looking lawyer and spill your tears and your troubles all over his desk.

* * *

It's hard for a man to forget a woman's beauty—especially, when she leaves most of it on his coat-lapel.

* * *

A bachelor should always be a cheerful loser. He can lose at cards, without having to explain to anybody; he can lose an argument without having to start it all over again, next morning; and he can lose a woman, without having to pay alimony.

* * *

THE PROBLEM OF THE ONLY CHILD
By Dr. Logan Clendening.

OF all the kinds of children who give trouble to the world the most hateful is the only child. And of all the problems of problem children this one is the easiest to correct, and prevent. One dislikes to increase the number of societies and of executive secretaries in the world, but I find myself in favor of forming a society for the Condign Chastisement of Parents of only children.

The one kind of children I would be seriously in favor of taking away from their parents' care are only children. The only children of the world should be herded together and put in homes in groups of 12 under the care of foster parents.

The best trainers of children are other children. The best disciplinarians. The best training for life is given by people of the child's own age. They teach it that it cannot afford to be selfish, that the world was not made for it alone, that if it wants something it must fight or compete for it, that it may lose out on something it wants and if so it must buck up and start all over. It isn't so much for their loving sympathy and kindness that we owe a debt to your brothers and sisters, but for their hardness and competitiveness.

Think of what the only child has to endure. When it is very young no brotherly or sisterly hands reach over to swipe its cake. All its toys belong only to itself alone. When it gets older everything it says is listened to. It is Sir Oracle. It is the center of a little world. Its importance is simply monumental. Its plans are considered as carefully as a Duke's. Its opinions are weighed as seriously as Henry Ford's or George Bernard Shaw.

Then when this oracle, this little king, gets out in the big world! Oh! Baby! What that big world does do to it! How that big world does roll it for loop after loop. It has tough going for about 20 years. If the only child ever amounts to anything—which it seldom does—it is only after it has passed the age of 40.

As solemnly as I can, I urge every young mother and father to have at least four children. People worry about the expense. How are they going to send all their children to school? How will they provide for their future? Never mind. The child who has three brothers or sisters already has its education and its future provided for.

W LAW NEEDED PUT I. C. C. RAIL ERGER IN EFFECT ATSON DECLARES

Manamy and Porter Criticise Parts of Proposal, Eastman Warns of Dangers in Consolidations.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader and a former chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, expressed the conviction that additional legislation would be required to put into effect the consolidation of steam railroads into 19 competing units proposed by the Interstate Commerce Commission today in its long-awaited unification proposals drawn at the direction of Congress. Watson said he would favor legislation on that line when the tariff bill was disposed of.

Senator Pittman (Dem.), Nevada, thought the commission should arrange the consolidation without further authority of Congress. Watson, however, said the commission would require additional authority to enforce compulsory consolidations.

Plans to Consult Commission.

Senator Fess of Ohio, the author of compulsory consolidation bill before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, planned an early conference with members of the commission to determine their views on legislation.

While Senators Fess and Watson spoke of compulsory legislation for consolidation, Commissioner Eastman, in a separate opinion concurred in the commission's plan, saying that "we should proceed slowly in this matter," and added that the best consolidation plan would probably be so constructed that if good results later develops, after we have had more experience, for carrying the process of unification further, it could be done by merely recombining some of the smaller systems."

Democrats Attack Plan.

The plan was assailed from the Democratic side of the Senate for failure to provide through transcontinental lines connecting the Pacific and Atlantic coasts.

Consolidation of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railroads, as proposed in the plan, would be a great calamity for the Northwest, Senator Wheeler (Dem.), Montana, asserted.

Presenting the commission's report for incorporation in the Congressional Record, Wheeler said that the two Northwestern lines were competing roads and added that he would vigorously oppose any attempt to join them in a single system. To permit it, he said, would be carrying out "practically what the Supreme Court said Jim Crow couldn't do because it would be a violation of the antitrust law." He was "perfectly amazed" at the proposal. It would result in loss of employment to many persons in the Northwest and in closing various communities with railroad transportation facilities.

Instead of this combination, Wheeler suggested it would be better to link the Great Northern with some transcontinental road.

Senator Pittman also opposed the unification of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern, saying it would afford no reduction in freight rates on farm products, minerals and logs, which make up the chief freight of the Northwest. Senator Howell (Rep.), Nebraska, said the Interstate Commerce Commission expressed pleasure that the plan contemplated as many key systems as it did, but questioned the advantages to be gained even under the proposed plan.

Summary of the Plan.

Under the Interstate Commerce Commission's proposal, five Eastern trunk lines would be formed, headed by the Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, Wabash-Seaboard, New York Central and Chesapeake & Ohio. The Boston & Maine and the New York, New Haven & Hartford would form the key system in New England.

In the South there would be two systems headed by the Atlantic Coast Line, the Southern Railway and the Illinois Central. The Western key systems under the plan are as follows: The Great
